

BRITISH PATROL ATTACKED IN PORT SAID BY GUERRILLAS

Urgent Protest Sent to U.N. Emergency Force Accuses Egypt of Violating Cease-Fire.

PORT SAID, Egypt, Dec. 10 (AP)—Egyptian guerrillas attacked a British patrol from a rooftop in Port Said's Arab quarter early today with a burst of machine gun fire and a hail of hand grenades.

One soldier of the eight-man Royal Scots Regiment patrol was wounded slightly. The British-French command sent an urgent protest to headquarters of the United Nations Emergency Force, accusing Egypt of violating the cease-fire.

The patrol called reinforcements and surrounded the area. Seven Egyptians were arrested. The ambush was the first such attack in Port Said by the Egyptian underground since the cease-fire became effective Nov. 8. Previously, there have been scattered shots fired occasionally.

Harassment Tactic.
The aim apparently was to harass the diminishing British-French forces as it rushed withdrawal ordered by the U.N. General Assembly. The bulk of British and French troops is expected to be gone from Egypt within three days.

The Egyptian underground has been growing more openly hostile as the day of the final British-French pullout nears. The occupation commanders have strengthened patrols and put their men on the alert for a final Egyptian show of defiance.

A barbed-wire barricade was stretched around the Port Said dock area in preparation for the final withdrawal. Troops were barred from streets except on essential duties. British tanks took positions around the harbor.

The plan is for a defensive ring of tanks and infantry to guard the dock area until most other troops have left. Then the defense force will be drawn gradually behind the barbed-wire barrier to the docks.

Fearful of possible reprisals, most foreigners in Port Said were packing to leave. More than 400 British civilians were to sail today on the troopship Asturias. The French will take 50 of their nationals and a number of other nationalities.

Italy Sending Ship.
The Italian government announced it is sending the passenger liner Argentina tomorrow or Wednesday to evacuate the Italian colony. Most of the 750 Italians in Port Said are anxious to leave because of Egyptian threats that they would be "kicked out" when the British and French leave. Some of the families had lived here as long as 30 years.

In Cairo, Interior Minister Zakaria Mohiaddin said a big Egyptian police force was ready to enter Port Said as soon as the British and French leave. He told the newspaper Al Mesasa it would maintain security and organize the return of war refugees.

The British and French have been hoping the U.N. force taking over from them would remain in control of their beachhead at the northern end of the Suez canal until Egypt agrees to international operation of the waterway, something Egypt has rejected.

Egypt has agreed to let the U.N. help clear the scuttled ships and bridges that block the canal, but has asserted it will take over all areas occupied by foreign troops after the U.N. police force oversees the withdrawal of British, French and Israeli.

Tours Sinai Area.
The U.N. commander, Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, toured the western quarter of the Sinai peninsula, which has been given up by the Israelis to Yugoslav U.N. troops.

The Swiss diplomat representing Britain and France in Egypt said the Egyptians are "continuing relentlessly" a large-scale expulsion of British and French citizens. Arriving in Zurich for consultations with the Swiss government, Dr. Max Koenig also said that Egypt seems "to be placing more and more difficulties in the way" of the U.N. police force.

Interior Minister Mohiaddin said in Cairo that only 1432 of the 18,000 British and French nationals in the country have been expelled. He said Egypt had asked the International Red Cross to find refuge in other countries for 280 stateless Jews being asked to leave for security reasons.

In Tel Aviv, a Red Cross representative said Cairo authorities rejected a proposal to exchange 400 Egyptian civilians taken in the Gaza strip for an equal number of Jews in Egypt. The Red Cross made the proposal on behalf of the Israelis.

There were rumblings of discontent in Israel about the country's agreement to withdraw all the way from the Sinai peninsula.

Speakers for parties of both the right and left demanded at mass meetings that Israel call a halt to the withdrawal. However, there was no indication Premier David Ben-Gurion's government would not stick to its promise.

NARCOTICS TRAFFIC REPORTED SLOWED BY MIDEAST CRISIS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (INS)—Narcotics Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger disclosed today that the Middle East crisis has slowed the traffic in narcotics.

He said that secret reports indicate that the flow has subsided considerably from Syria and Egypt, and that the price of opium has dropped in Lebanon.

Anslinger said that much of the credit for the slackened traffic must go to Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser, who has imposed 15-year-to-life sentences for addiction and traffic in narcotics. He said these penalties are being enforced and have made a considerable dent in the smuggling of dope across Egypt's borders.

"Despite the slackening of the Middle East traffic," Anslinger declared, "dope is still reaching this country through the Mediterranean, Italy and France, and across the Pacific from Red China through Hong Kong, Bangkok and Dairen."

He revealed, however, that the narcotics situation in this country is better now than in many decades.

INDONESIA CLAIMS U.S. HAS CUT AID PROGRAM IN HALF

JAKARTA, Dec. 10 (UP)—The United States has reduced by nearly half the aid program Indonesia expected this year, in an apparent "contradiction" of American policy to win the friendship of neutrals, a foreign office spokesman said today.

However, foreign office spokesman Suwito Kusumawidagdo denied any knowledge of reports circulating in Jakarta that America reduced its aid program because it believed Indonesia to be too pro-Communist.

Suwito said in an interview that the United States had been asked to explain the reasons for the cut to about $15,000,000 from an expected $35,000,000.

YOUNGSTERS RIOT IN BOTH EAST AND WEST BERLIN

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP)—Youngsters gave riot police of both East and West Berlin a workout Saturday night.

A fistfight snowballed into a free-for-all among several hundred youths at the annual Christmas market in Communist East Berlin. Police used fire hoses to break it up. They made several arrests. Shop owners who saw the fight said politics didn't seem to be involved.

The West Berlin outbreak came at the end of a rock 'n' roll session in the Sportplatz. Excited teen-agers smashed chairs. Police moved in on a howling crowd of 300, arrested 40 of the noisiest and dispersed the rest.

FOUR PRISONERS ESCAPE THROUGH 8-BY-12-INCH HOLE

BRIDGETON, N.J., Dec. 10 (AP)—Police along the eastern seaboard today hunted a convicted murderer and another man charged with murder following the escape of four prisoners from the Cumberland county jail.

Two of the escapees were back in custody before the day was out after the four squeezed through an 8-by-12-inch hole in the jail roof yesterday.

Sheriff William P. Riggin said officials "are all wondering" how the four managed to get through the tiny opening. The men weighed up to 170 pounds, he said, and may have used hair pomade to grease their bodies so they could slide through the hole.

One prisoner surrendered to Philadelphia police and another was arrested in northern Virginia in a stolen car.

Sought by Clearthurn Rainey, 18 years old, Bridgeton, and Alonzo Walker Sr., 30, of Philadelphia, Rainey was convicted last Thursday of second-degree murder in the killing of a Carmel (N.J.) tavern owner on June 10. Walker was awaiting trial on a charge of murdering a 30-year-old Philadelphia woman in Bridgeton on Sept. 9.

MOLLET WINS CONFIDENCE VOTES ON FRENCH BUDGET

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Premier Mollet won confidence votes in the National Assembly tonight on two points of his proposed deficit budget for 1957.

The Socialist Premier was thus virtually assured of approval of his fiscal program. The Assembly still has to vote on three other points and then on the budget as a whole.

Mollet's budget calls for expenditures of 44.4 billion francs ($12,837,166,000) for metropolitan France alone, and increase of 310 billion francs ($85,715,880) will probably be voted for Algeria. This, it estimated, will mean a deficit of 980 billion francs ($2,828,576,000) in the 1957 national budget.

The Assembly voted 242 to 193 on the questions of allocations to farm families and 210 to 106 on the issue of agricultural refunds.

Norwegian Aid for Hungarians.

OSLO, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Norwegian parliament appropriated a million kroner (about $143,000) today for the relief of Hungarian refugees. The vote was unanimous. Parliament earlier had appropriated half a million kroner for Hungarian refugee work.

BRITISH LIKELY TO CUT ARMY IN WEST GERMANY

Blow Dealt to Economy by Suez Crisis to Force Revision of Commitments.

LONDON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Britain will tell its Atlantic allies the crushing blow dealt by the Suez canal crisis to its economy will force drastic revision in British defense commitments to the West, informed sources said today.

The economic effects of the closure of the Suez canal were hitting home hard even while Prime Minister Eden was winding up a three-week rest cure in the British West Indies.

Eden is scheduled to return from Jamaica Friday. While his political future is uncertain, he is in no immediate danger. The torrent of speculation that he would resign because of the abortive British-French action in Egypt already had slowed to a mere trickle.

Anti-American resentment also was subsiding although there were still a few querulous attacks on Washington for not "doing more" to help Britain.

Reduction in Army.
Reports of the impending defense slashes—which may include a heavy reduction in the British army of the Rhine in Western Germany—were printed prominently in the British press. They overshadowed reports that Eden would make an "important" statement from Jamaica tomorrow and rumors of a new cabinet reshuffle.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd both hinted in Parliament last week that sharp cuts in defense spending must come as a result of the Suez economic crisis.

Most of the British press has backed them and called on the government to stop trying to match the United States and the Soviet Union with independent armaments capacity.

Macmillan told the House of Commons that the British future would be closer co-operation and co-ordination with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Macmillan, Lloyd and Defense Minister Anthony Head are in Paris to attend NATO meetings opening tomorrow.

30 Per Cent Cut Likely.
Britain is believed to be ready to inform its NATO allies it will cut its army in Germany, now numbering 80,000 men, to half that number. The ministers are expected to point out that the cost of this reduction would be a most effective incentive to West Germany to get on with its lagging army-building.

The Daily Express also speculated on the possible merger of the army and the Royal Air Force into one streamlined atomic-age service. Such a merger, it was said, would eliminate considerable duplication of effort with a resultant saving in economy.

Most of the cabinet reshuffle reports were of minor changes. Paymaster General Sir Walter Monckton was reported anxious to retire and Postmaster General Dr. Charles Hill and Transport Minister Harold Watkinson were reported due for promotions.

But the so-called Suez ministers, who were under fire from their party's own rebels last week, are reported solidly entrenched. They were reported last week mapping a campaign to whip Tory mavericks into line behind Eden.

RUSSIANS APPEAR INDIFFERENT AS HUNGARIANS FLEE

Austria Although Reds Have Had Weeks to Seal Border.

VIENNA, Dec. 10 (AP)—Despite martial law in Hungary, refugees continued to stream into Austria. Austrian authorities said 2580 refugees came across the border last night.

This continued stream is one of the major mysteries of the Hungarian crisis. Although the Russians have had weeks to seal off the Hungarian-Austrian border if they wished, the refugee slip through, some in groups of 50. The total is now approaching the 130,000 mark.

One refugee said he was certain that Russian troops near the frontier heard his party approaching the border during the night, since several babies were crying loudly. No effort was made to stop the party.

Another refugee reported that insurgents in the Pecs area had blown up parts of the coal mines there. The report could not be confirmed.

Other refugees told how they had been misled by red-white-red Austrian flags planted several miles inside the Hungarian border by Russian or Hungarian troops. This was taken as an effort to make refugees believe they had reached Austria and to facilitate their capture.

Large numbers of refugees undoubtedly have been stopped and sent back to their homes. But the large stream still coming testified to unbelievable military inefficiency or a willingness to see anti-Communist leave.

About 300 refugees who fled Hungary have gone back to their homeland, some perhaps to help friends and relatives escape to Austria.

The office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees said up to Thursday it had returned 143 Hungarians. Since then 90 of about 1200 interned soldiers have gone home and two busloads crossed back into Hungary Saturday.

In Budapest, the official Communist newspaper Nepszabadsag asserted the number of those brought back is "gradually increasing" but mentioned no figures.

The crowded condition of the refugee camps and uncertainty as to the future may have caused some to return to Hungary.

Buses carrying 350 Hungarian refugees for the United States military airlift left Salzburg today for Munich. The first Air Force plane was due to take off from there Tuesday.

A lift of chartered civilian planes took off with 434 of the refugees yesterday from Austria for McGuire Field, N. J. Another four planes were due to take off from Austrian fields today.

Eisenhower Denounces Russian Brutality in Crushing Hungary

Asserts Soviet Tyranny Negates Almost Every Article of U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 10—President Eisenhower, strongly denouncing Russian "brutality" in suppressing the Hungarian revolt, urged that the world "never forget what tyranny has done to our fellow man in Hungary."

In a statement on today's observance of United Nations Human Rights day, Mr. Eisenhower said Soviet violation of human rights in Hungary "is a cause for world mourning."

The President used his sharp language thus far in assailing Russian use of force against the Hungarian people. He said this had produced "reactions of horror and revulsion" throughout the world.

He charged that "the terror imposed upon Hungary repudiates and negates almost every article" in the universal Declaration of Human Rights adopted by the U.N. General Assembly eight years ago.

Mr. Eisenhower pledged that the United States would "continue to offer shelter to the homeless, as we shall go on feeding the hungry, and providing medicine and care for the sick."

His statement, issued yesterday, did not advocate armed revolt in other Soviet satellite countries of Eastern Europe, but called on the world "to reaffirm, in word and in deed, our faith in cause of freedom everywhere."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has said the Administration believes Soviet-dominated countries will gain their freedom by "evolution" rather than "revolution."

Text of Statement.
The text of the President's Human Rights day statement follows:

"December tenth, the United States together with many other nations will observe Human Rights day. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights over-whelmingly approved by the General Assembly of the United Nations eight years ago has rightly been hailed as an important milestone along the road that leads to world-wide recognition of the inherent dignity of man."

"This year the free world has the most compelling reasons for observing Human Rights day with renewed awareness and resolution, but it has little cause to do so. Let us resolve on this day that the world shall never forget what tyranny has done to our fellow man in Hungary."

"So doing, these honored dead shall not have died in vain."

Prime Minister Louis S. St. Laurent of Canada will arrive tomorrow for an "entirely social" visit and a round of golf with the President, it was announced today.

"On this Human Rights day, it is for each one of us to recognize anew that we are brothers in our Father's house, and each is truly his brother's keeper. We cannot shed that responsibility, nor do we want to do so. Let us resolve on this day that the world shall never forget what tyranny has done to our fellow man in Hungary."

RUSSIA ASSAILED OVER HUNGARY BY ITALIAN RED

Critiqued at Party Meeting—Soviet Delegates Present.

ROME, Dec. 10 (AP)—Open criticism of Soviet intervention in Hungary broke out today at the national congress of the Italian Communist party, the biggest in the Western world.

The verbal attack came despite endorsement of the Soviet line by Palmiro Togliatti, the tough party secretary who has bossed Italy's 2,000,000 Communist party members for years.

Antonio Giolitti, a Communist member of the Chamber of Deputies, spoke out for the critics. He said Soviet intervention in Hungary "cannot be reconciled with the principles of socialism."

"In Hungary and in Poland," he said, "the party was not defended by the comrades who kept silent, but by those who have spoken."

Giolitti also called for "increased democracy and freedom of expression, (which are) essential conditions for the tireless process of renewal inside our party. If it is impossible to correct men, one must change them."

This last phrase was taken as a suggestion that present party leaders be changed.

Giolitti's speech was heard in silence by the several hundred Communist delegates, carefully picked from all over Italy by the party executive committee. Then several rose to congratulate him.

In the audience were delegations from the Soviet Union and the Communist parties of many other nations. Russia's No. 1 woman Communist, Ekaterina Furseva, in a speech to the convention yesterday defended Russia's intervention in Hungary and said it had "saved millions of workers from fascism."

Mrs. Furseva, who was given a standing ovation when she arose to speak, yesterday finished, told the Italians they should "seek a regrouping of all the healthy forces of the Italian people."

"We hope that the points of view of the Communist and Socialist parties will continue to come closer," she said.

HIGH COURT SAYS NLRB CAN ORDER FIRMS TO GIVE UNIONS PAY DATA

in Woolworth Case—Rules U.S. Can't Punish Union for False
Non-Red Oath.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that the National Labor Relations Board has discretionary power to order an employer to furnish detailed wage data to a union as an aid to collective bargaining.

In a brief, unanimous order, the high tribunal reversed a recent decision by the Ninth United States Circuit Court of Appeals in a California case.

The lower court had refused to enforce an NLRB order to the F. W. Woolworth Co., San Bernardino, Calif., to furnish a breakdown of its employees' wage rates and hours to a retail clerks union. The circuit judge said the union had not shown a "reasonable need" for the data.

But the Supreme Court held that the NLRB "acted within its allowable discretion." It said the NLRB had authority to decide that "under the circumstances of this case failure to furnish the wage information constituted an unfair labor practice."

The Supreme Court ruling was "by the court" with no written opinion by an individual justice. The court cited another recent decision in which it held that an employer who pleads inability to grant wage increase may in some circumstances be required to produce financial data to support the plea.

Ruling on False Oath.
In another action today affecting labor, the court ruled unanimously that the NLRB may not withdraw recognition from a union because one of its officers has been found guilty of filing a false non-Communist affidavit.

The NLRB has sought to strip federal benefits from two left-wing unions on those grounds. But Justice William O. Douglas, speaking for the court, said the only legal remedy for filing a false non-Communist affidavit is criminal, perjury charges against the offending officer.

To strip the union of recognition as an "additional" punishment, he said, would "in practical effect" be a punishment of members of the union and "not their guilty officers."

The issue was brought to the court in two cases stemming from charges that union officers filed a false affidavit with the National Labor Relations Board. The men are Ben Gold, former president of the International Fur & Leather Workers Union (now merged with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters); and Maurice E. Travis, former secretary-treasurer of the Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers.

Taft Law Provision.
The Taft-Hartley law requires all union officials to file non-Communist oaths with the board. Failure to comply disqualifies a union from board services. The services consist mainly of hearing unfair labor practice complaints and conducting elections when a union wants to be the bargaining representative for a group of workers.

The board for a long time has wanted to withhold its benefits when an officer has been found to have sworn falsely. But the United States Court of Appeals in Washington had previously refused to go along with the policy.

The court dismissed a challenge to a new South Carolina law which bars the practice of naturopathy, a method of treating disease based on "assisting nature." "Naturopathic physicians" now barred from practice in South Carolina complained that the court that their constitutional rights had been violated.

The Supreme Court ruled 6-2 that the city of Hutchinson, Kan., failed to give proper notice to an aged Negro whose

Power, Cut Off by Ice Storm, Is Restored to 100,000 Homes

Householders Had Been Without Light and Heat for Varying Periods—Traffic Almost Normal.

Electric power had been restored today to most of the estimated 100,000 homes in the St. Louis area which had been without light and heat for varying periods because of Saturday's severe ice storm.

Higher temperatures today began to thaw the ice that coated trees and shrubbery, causing extensive damage, and made highways and streets slippery. Traffic had returned to almost normal this morning.

In some instances, melting ice caused electrical circuits to go out today, cutting off power to some homes not affected over the weekend.

Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren forecast high temperatures in the low 40s today and low 50s tomorrow afternoon. He saw no likelihood of more sleet or icy rain in the immediate future.

Although homes in some areas, particularly in St. Louis county, were still without electricity this morning, a Union Electric Co. spokesman said power should be restored to almost all residences by the end of the day.

"We are concentrating entirely on getting these homes into service," he said. "We are letting permanent repairs go until later."

Referring to the large number of power failures caused by the falling of ice-weighted tree limbs on electric lines, he said: "Fortunately we had no strong winds last night. Then we would have been in real trouble."

In addition to putting all available men to work in restoring emergency crews from the company's installations at Festus, Mo., and Keokuk, Ia., and employed repairmen working for private electrical contractors.

Park Commissioner Palmer B. Baumes announced that all available men and trucks were being used today to remove broken tree branches and limbs that littered streets.

"Our first job is to clean up the streets," he said. "We'll let the parks go until later."

Department employees who normally work in the city parks were assigned today to help the 12 forestry crews that have been removing debris the last two days. The addition of the park workers doubled the clean-up squad.

Baumes said the storm damage to trees, particularly Chinese elms, was extensive. The ice storm was reported to be one of the worst in recent years.

However, Paul Bernard, county agricultural agent, said the heavy precipitation, including a heavy rain Thursday, was greatly beneficial to fall-planted wheat and pasture crops.

"It looks as if it's also going to help in refilling dry ponds and wells and getting needed moisture to trees. From a soil viewpoint, the rain and sleet was a distinct benefit," he added.

So far this month, the total precipitation in St. Louis has been 3.10 inches, compared with a normal of 2.43 for the entire month. In December last year, there was only .08 of an inch of rain, making it the driest December during the 121 years records have been kept.

This month already is the wettest December since 1949, when precipitation totaled 3.81 inches, and Wahlgren believes there is a good chance that total will be exceeded in the next 21 days.

Temperatures remained almost constant yesterday and last night, varying only three degrees—from a low of 24 to a high of 27—from midnight Saturday to 8 o'clock this morning.

Zero in Kirksville. In Kirksville, Mo., yesterday the mercury dropped to zero. The high was recorded at St. Joseph, where temperatures went up to 40 degrees.

In Highway 11 in the St. Louis area and throughout most of the state were reported in good condition today. In the St. Louis area, only streets in little-traveled residential sections remained slippery this morning.

Streets were slowed first by ice on power wires Saturday and then by stalled automobiles on tracks, was reported back to normal today. The Public Service Co. had its salt spreaders on the streets and streetcars with ice cutters late Saturday.

COSTELLO FRIEND ARRESTED ON PERJURY INDICTMENT

James W. Price, Negro tavern operator and a friend of Joseph Costello, ex-convict head of Ace Cab Co., was arrested today on an indictment charging him with perjury before a federal grand jury.

Price was picked up at his home, 5762 Kingsbury place, by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents. He was charged with falsely testifying last April 21 that he did not own any side-arm other than the one under inquiry by the grand jury.

The grand jury was investigating Costello and Joseph J. Cannella, a supervisor and driver for Ace Cab Co., under the Federal Firearms Act. Indictments were returned charging the two men with conspiring to ship two .38-caliber revolvers from Granite City to St. Louis a year ago. Price's tavern is in the 4400 block of Olive street.

SAFE BURGLARS STEAL $100

A safe at the Rethemeyer Coffee Co., 1711 North Broadway, was forced open Saturday night by burglars, who fled with $100.

The safe was wheeled from an office to a shipping room, where it was opened. Entrance to the building was gained by forcing a window, which was discovered open yesterday.

$500,000 TAX CLAIM SETTLED FOR $155,000

Elmer Vorhof and Milton Duenke Subdivision Firms Reach Agreement With U.S.

A $500,000 federal income tax claim against a group of St. Louis county subdivision development companies headed by Elmer E. Vorhof and Milton Duenke was settled for $155,000 in United States Tax Court here today.

The dispute involved taxes owed by the Vorhof-Duenke companies for 1950-52, and the amount to be paid will include 6 per cent interest from those years, in addition to the $155,000. A hearing had been scheduled before Judge Allin Pierce of the tax court, meeting in St. Louis.

Three major points were at issue in the case. First, whether the 13 companies operated by the pair were bona fide separate concerns; second, whether salaries paid Vorhof and Duenke were excessive, and third, whether certain company profits should be taxed as ordinary income, as the government contended, or as capital gains, as argued by the companies.

Ray H. Garrison, St. Louis, a special attorney for the Internal Revenue Service, said that in out-of-court negotiations leading to the settlement the Vorhof-Duenke group produced 1300 exhibits to satisfy the government that the 13 companies actually were separate operations. The other two points were settled by compromise, Garrison said.

Companies operated or controlled by Vorhof and Duenke, who have main offices at 7567 St. Charles road, include Milton Construction and Supply Co., County Lumber & Supply Co., and Vorhof-Duenke Real Estate Co.

Ten other corporations were formed in connection with their operations, which include development of the Hathaway Hills, Hathaway Manor and Hathaway Meadows subdivisions in north St. Louis county. The firms have built about 7500 homes since 1946.

COUNTY ESCAPEE GETS 20 YEARS FOR $40 HOLDUP

Homer Lewellyn, Who Disabled Deputy With Handcuffs, Had Pleaded Guilty.

Homer J. Lewellyn, who used his handcuffs to disable a St. Louis county deputy sheriff and escape last Sept. 25—only to lose his freedom again four days later—was sentenced to 20 years in prison today by Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss at Clayton.

The sentence was on a robbery charge, to which Lewellyn pleaded guilty. He admitted taking $40 from Mrs. William L. Sachs, whose automobile he took over at gunpoint shortly after escaping from Deputy Sheriff Otto Kissner.

The prosecuting attorney's office recommended a 25-year term for Lewellyn, who is 21 years old.

The 20-year sentence was made to run concurrently with a two-year term imposed today by Circuit Judge Michael J. Carroll after Lewellyn also pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking jail. Two years is the maximum sentence on the charge.

Lewellyn was sentenced to two consecutive two-year terms last Nov. 19 by Circuit Judge Raymond E. Ladrerie after pleading guilty to charges of burglary and theft. Those terms also are to be served along with the latest sentence.

The defendant, an automobile assembler who lived at St. Charles, broke away as Deputy Kissner was driving him and another prisoner, Richard G. Bevans, from St. Louis County Hospital to the county jail.

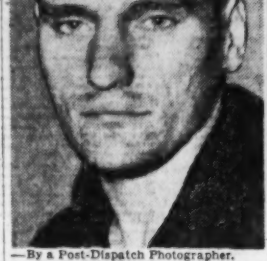

Lewellyn, sitting in the back seat, struck the officer on the head with his handcuffs, then slipped his arms over his neck and pinned him down. He jumped over to the front seat, but Bevans held him with his head and managed to get hold of his revolver.

Lewellyn threatened to kill the deputy, but Bevans begged him not to do it, saying, "You'll only make more trouble for yourself." Bevans also talked him out of locking the two of them in the trunk of the car.

Bevans, who was held on a first-degree murder charge, was given a 20-year sentence by Judge Ferriss Oct. 22 after the charge was reduced to second-degree murder.

Lewellyn fled in Kissner's car but soon abandoned it and got into Mrs. Sachs' machine as she stopped for a traffic signal. With pistol drawn, he forced her to move over from the driver's seat and then took $40 from her purse. She lives at 7028 Lena avenue, Jennings. He drove around for a while, and on seeing that the car was about to run out of gasoline left it at Natural Bridge and Arlington avenues and continued on foot.

Lewellyn was arrested four days later at Quincy, Ill.

METAL DETECTOR IN COUNTY JAIL TOO EFFICIENT

The St. Louis County Jail's $2200 metal detector has been turned off because it sounds its buzzer alarm as readily for the cellblock's steel bars as it does for any metal objects on incoming prisoners and visitors.

Richard James, head jailer, said the device was bought last August to help prevent jailbreaks by detecting concealed weapons such as saws and guns. When the detector's alarm buzzer sounded continuously and its alarm light never ceased flashing, James decided the machine was working improperly and disconnected it to escape the noise.

But representatives of the manufacturer say the trouble is that the device works too well. Mounted in a doorway between the jailer's office and the cellblock, it is reporting the presence of steel bars, they say.

The manufacturer said the device is always installed in ante-rooms in other jails, and works satisfactorily. James says he has no anteroom. The manufacturer is now trying to figure how the machine can be re-modeled so it will buzz and blink only for concealed metal.

CITY WILL SEEK TO RETAIN NAVY AIR SAFETY UNIT

Briscoe Plans Action to Delay Transfer of Ground Control Approach Outfit.

The City of St. Louis will make every effort to persuade the Navy to delay the scheduled transfer of a Ground Control Approach unit which it has had at Lambert-St. Louis Field since 1948, Director of Public Utilities Conway B. Briscoe said today.

The unit, which is portable, is used to "talk down" pilots who find themselves in difficulty and unable to make the field on their own. It has been credited with saving more than 100 planes.

Briscoe said the city was not informed of the scheduled transfer, and that he was asking Airport Manager David E. Leigh to look into the matter.

The Navy plans to move the unit to the Glyco Naval Air Station at Brunswick, Ga., next month, with Jan. 3 as its last day in operation here.

Lambert Field will still have two systems for emergency landings, but they require special receivers in incoming planes. With the Navy GCA, a radio receiver in a plane is enough.

The other systems are supplied and operated by the Civil Aeronautics Administration. It plans to bring in additional equipment by next March which will make present facilities equivalent to the GCA in providing maximum safety. Briscoe said he would try to have the GCA transfer delayed until that new equipment is installed.

DISCUSSES FARMERS' DEMANDS FOR CREDIT

A.B.A. Official Says They Are Competing With Merchants and Consumers.

Needed mechanization on American farms depends upon increased bank credit, Joseph C. Welman, vice president of the American Bankers Association, said here today at Hotel Statler. He spoke at an opening day meeting of the national agricultural credit conference of the association.

Welman warned the group that farmers are competing with merchants and consumers when seeking credit. He said the increase of demands for credit will require "much, much more money."

"I like to refer to this period as being characterized and dominated by the 'ation'—experimentation, diversification, fertilization and irrigation," the Kennett (Mo.) banker declared. He said the smaller bankers should become especially alert to the increasing credit demands because of numerous requests for farm loans they receive and because they are often already quite overworked.

Edward A. Wayne, first vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank, Richmond, Va., told the group it should not blame the shortage of credit upon the Federal Reserve Bank policy. He said there was a need to keep a proper balance between credit controls to provide safety and freedom of credit to permit the operation of the pressure of consumer demand.

Farm debt has increased recently and credit requirements of agriculture are greater now than ever before, but farm real estate values continue to rise in most areas, Harry W. Schaller of Storm Lake, Ia., told the group.

Schaller is chairman of the agricultural commission of the American Bankers Association, sponsor of the meeting which is to continue through Wednesday.

"The downturn in farm income has leveled off," Schaller said, "and apparently turned upward, in part because of a larger participation by Government." The balance sheet of agriculture continues to make "good reading," he added.

The main purposes of the conference are to appraise the outlook for agriculture in the year ahead and determine the role that bankers should take in it. Many panel discussions were scheduled for the three days of meetings.

PSYCHOLOGISTS ARE SUFFERING PAY INFERIORITY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—If you want to be a scientist, and money interests you, be a physicist or a meteorologist. They get more pay.

Stay out of psychology. Psychologists are paid the least of nine kinds of scientists listed by the National Science Foundation yesterday in a report covering 94,000 scientists who answered a questionnaire. There are about 250,000 scientists in the country.

The highest median pay for scientists reported by the foundation, a Government agency, was $7,850 a year for physicists and meteorologists—weather experts—with Ph.D. degrees. This means that half the 11,200 psychologists and half the 3200 meteorologists reporting were making more than that much and a half were making less. The median for Ph.D. psychologists was only $5,850, for all Ph.D.s $7,000. Scientists with less than a Ph.D. averaged out at $6,125. Of 6,880 women covered in the survey 2,905 were in psychology, one fourth of all psychologists.

'NO ROOM' TO CUT TAXES IN BUDGET, TREASURY SAYS

Against Any Step That Involves Net Loss in Revenue, Spokesman Testifies at Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—A Treasury spokesman told Congress today the Government's budget for the coming year as of now has "no room" for a tax cut.

Dan Throop Smith told a House Ways and Means subcommittee that the final budget figures are still being assembled. But he said they make no provision, as they now stand, for any tax reduction that would produce a net loss of revenue.

"So far as I know now, I see no basis for a proposal to reduce any taxes at this time," Smith said.

Asked by Representative Herman Eberhart (Dem., Penn.), if that meant the Treasury opposes reductions in any tax, excise or income, Smith replied:

"Involving a net loss of revenue, yes."

The budget which Smith discussed is the one President Eisenhower will present to Congress next month. It is for the fiscal year which begins July 1, 1957.

New Phase of Inquiry.

Smith, special adviser on tax policy to Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, appeared before a subcommittee investigating the federal excise tax laws for possible overhaul at the next session of Congress.

The subcommittee, concluding public hearings on individual excise tax items, summoned Smith to present the treasury's position on proposals for revision or elimination of some taxes.

He was reminded by Eberhart that Mr. Eisenhower in a message to Congress in May 1953 stated that the excise tax system was basically economically unsound.

Smiling, Smith agreed it may "not be economically sound, but it is the best we can do," and added:

"As in all tax matters, we must be content with something that is far from ideal but brings in revenue. As of now we know nothing better to suggest."

Opinion on Various Levies.

Subcommittee members suggested the federal transportation and communications tax, levied on travel, freight and telephone and telegraph tolls, was discriminatory.

Smith said he feared that in the light of total revenue requirements of 70 billion dollars, "we just wouldn't have the money" if excises were limited only to luxuries or clearly non-discriminatory items. He added:

"If there is to be a net reduction in the excise tax take, then we will have to turn to some other source to make it up and the only other source is the individual and corporate income tax."

Smith said revenue derived from excise taxes on freight and passenger transportation and communications totals well over a billion dollars a year.

Treasury Against Shift. "It is better to keep those particular taxes than to levy them on other lines of activity or incomes which are already overburdened," he said.

Asked if the Treasury then favored continuation of these particular taxes, Smith stated: "Until we can see a better way to get the money, yes sir. Up to now we haven't found a better way."

CANADIAN PLANE WITH 62 ABOARD IS FEARED DOWN

Three passengers from the United States were Mrs. A. A. Kafoury of Portland, Ore., Mrs. L. C. Burt of San Francisco and R. S. Stratton of Los Angeles. Besides Clarke, the plane's crew consisted of Stewardess Dorothy Bjornsson, 24, of Swan River, Man., and First Officer John Boon, 26, of North Vancouver, B.C.

Fraser River Canyon in an area pocked with lakes, divided by canyons and gorges and studded with high mountain peaks.

The worst commercial air disaster in Canada occurred on April 8, 1954, when an R.C.A.F. training plane crashed into a T.C.A. airliner in flight over Moose Jaw, Sask., killing 37 persons.

Forty-four United States service men were lost on Jan. 26, 1950, in a United States Air Force transport which crashed in the Yukon territory en route from Alaska to Texas. Thirty-eight Canadians, most of them army men, went down with a chartered Canadian Pacific airliner off Alaska July 21, 1951, during the Korean airlift.

Salvage Crews Seek Bodies of Five Crash Victims.

PORT MAITLAND, Ont., Dec. 10 (AP)—Salvage crews attacked yesterday to recover the bodies of five Americans killed when a private, two-engine plane crashed into Lake Erie during a snowstorm Saturday night.

The plane, en route from New York to Detroit with a pilot and two business men and their wives aboard, went down in about 12 feet of water, 600 feet from shore.

The crash occurred a short distance from an airstrip where the plane, a Beechcraft Aero Commander, apparently attempted to make an emergency landing. Provincial police said there were no survivors.

The salvage crew aboard the 60-foot fishing vessel Colby was unable to raise the plane immediately, but a diver reported that he had sighted bodies in the wreckage.

Authorities said the plane was owned by the Peninsular Steel Co. of Detroit. Those aboard were Wesley Hopp of Royal Oak, Mich., the pilot; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kurtz, and Mr. and Mrs. Mike McFadden, all of Grosse Pointe, Mich. Kurtz was a vice president of Peninsular and McFadden a member of the sales organization of the Bethlehem Steel Corp.

of the workers who returned to the factories or mines engaged in sit-downs or slowdowns.

The Central Workers' Council in its negotiations with Kadar had sought the withdrawal of Russian troops, independence from Moscow and the return of Imre Nagy to the premiership. The country's workers rallied behind the central council and it became in effect a shadow government, since most Hungarians would not heed Kadar's decrees.

After scores were killed last week in demonstrations against the Russian army and the government's arrest of numerous workers, the central council declared that further government harassment would end in "a general strike, bloodshed and a new national tragedy."

The government gave until midnight tomorrow for all arms to be surrendered, indicating vast quantities of guns that the rebels seized during the rebellion were still hidden.

The government said the workers' councils were set up without any legal basis, despite warnings of the government.

Instead of concerning itself with wages and production, the government said, the central council "attempted to deal only with political questions" and build a "new state power organization directed against the existing state power."

should continue to work. Ambulance personnel, fire brigades and doctors of hospitals should remain on duty.

The Central Workers' Council also appealed to "all workers in trade unions of the world to support the Hungarian workers simultaneously with solidarity strikes in support of our struggle for a life without fear and for personal freedom."

sponsor a resolution in the United Nations requiring all member states to permit the Secretary General "full freedom of movement" within their borders.

Hungary has refused to permit Dag Hammarskjold, present Secretary General, to visit Budapest.

The proposal of Senator Humphrey, a member of the United States delegation to the current session of the General Assembly, has been discussed with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, chief of the U.S. delegation, and is reported under consideration in Washington.

Observers saw it as a move which would cast a bright searchlight of adverse publicity on Hungary's repeated refusal to admit Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold is expected shortly to name observers who will go to Austria to gather information about the situation in Hungary. On Dec. 5, Hammarskjold requested Austria, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Romania to accept U.N. observers for this purpose. Austria granted permission, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia refused, and no reply has been received from Romania.

whoever pays, is estimated at half a billion dollars.

The United States has agreed tentatively, pending congressional approval, to let Britain skip interest payments this year on its $3,750,000,000 loan of 1946.

Reports circulating in Paris said President Eisenhower and Dulles had in mind a "little Marshall plan" to keep Europe on its feet. The United States already has spent 50 billion dollars on military and other aid to Europe since World War II.

In return for helping Europe to keep on its feet during the difficult months to come, the United States was reported seeking assurance that there would be no more "go it alone" projects by NATO members, such as the British-French move into Egypt.

Dulles hinted at the aid program in his statement on arrival. He said, in part:

"We shall have to prove that although we may differ in some matters, nevertheless we remain united in vital matters. The task illustrated by recent events is to assure unity and strength against the threat of aggression, a threat which became a brutal reality in Hungary. Also, the western European nations must find a way to maintain their economies despite the present interruption in the normal flow of oil from the Mideast."

"The United States stands ready to help in both respects. It is our firm purpose to find the way to bury past discord in a future of peaceful and fruitful co-operation."

The Western European Union council (France, Britain, West Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg) were meeting to discuss a German-Italian proposal to turn WEU into an organization to co-ordinate foreign policy.

Turkish Premier Menderes indicated he would propose for discussion the establishment of some sort of link between NATO and its middle eastern counterpart, the five-nation Baghdad pact.

Britain was expected to announce the economic crisis was forcing it to curtail its defense spending and cut down on its NATO armies while depending more heavily on nuclear weapons.

The NATO ministers are expected to approve a report from their "committee of three wise men"—Foreign Ministers Gaetano Martino of Italy, Halvard Lange of Norway and Lester B. Pearson of Canada.

This will make it mandatory for NATO members to consult in advance on such issues as Cyprus and Suez, and not take actions without telling their allies.

Mrs. Stanford said her nephew used her address for mail and occasionally stayed there, although his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Manes Jr., live at Imperial, Mo. offices by the Governmental Research Institute, a private fact-finding agency.

The decision upholding the state bond issue clears the way for sale of the first $10,000,000 worth of bonds and for a start on construction of buildings. Voters had approved the bond issue by a majority of 67,961 last Jan. 24.

State Auditor Haskell Holman had declined to register the bonds in order to set up a court test, required before the bonds could be sold.

The major question raised by the suit was whether the bond issue was invalid because voters were presented with a "package deal" and were denied the opportunity to vote against one project while approving others. The opinion, written by Chief Justice S. P. Dalton, held that no breakdown was required. All other objections likewise were rejected.

The General Assembly allocated the bond issue funds as follows: $15,350,000 for penal institutions, including a $10,000,000 medium-security prison; $22,676,760 for mental hospitals and $36,898,240 for colleges and universities.

THREE EMPLOYEES HELD AFTER PLACE IS ROBBED

the three occupants. The driver, Eugene L. Politte, said he was a bartender and was taking Legion funds home for safekeeping.

Politte was permitted to drive on, but was arrested at his home in the 200 block of Kayser avenue after the patrolman found a broken window at the post, 232 West Ripa avenue. Also arrested were Charles E. Standridge, 7300 block of Pennsylvania avenue, and James F. Fry, 5800 block of Michigan avenue. Police said Politte and Standridge admitted that they had stolen $114 of the post's funds, looted two coin boxes and broken the window to make it appear that the burglary was an outside job.

DEMOCRATS SET TO CHECK ON U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

Humphrey, Neuberger Ask for Inquiry Into Mideast, Hungarian Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Eisenhower Administration faces a searching Senate investigation of its foreign policy actions and statements when Congress convenes next month.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, yesterday joined a growing list of influential Democrats demanding a broad inquiry into administration policies affecting the Middle East, the Iron Curtain countries and relations with America's European allies.

Humphrey, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and of the United States delegation to the United Nations, predicted the investigation will be launched when Secretary of State John Foster Dulles reports officially to Congress on this week's North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Paris.

"I think it is absolutely urgent that the Senate investigate the Administration's conduct of our foreign relations," Humphrey said in an interview. "It is particularly urgent now that changes are being made in our State Department."

"It seems to me that in the light of what has developed in the Middle East and Hungary, not only the Administration's program but what has been said about it should be subjected to a careful, basic examination."

Inquiry on Broadcasts. Humphrey said he and other Democrats want to know what the Voice of America has broadcast about "liberating" Russian satellite countries and whether there is any truth in reports that Government-aided private agencies stirred false hopes of United States aid for Hungarian rebels.

Later Humphrey said in a television interview on NBC's "Meet the Press" that some of the things he would like to see investigated are:

United States relations with Egyptian President Nasser. Why the Administration was "caught short" on the Israeli-British-French action in Egypt.

Whether the State Department gave our embassy in Cairo definite instructions on what to do in case Nasser seized the Suez canal.

"I'm willing to say it did not," Humphrey said on the latter point.

The Senator said he and other Senators seeking such an investigation were "not looking for any kind of witchhunt," but would try to find out what United States policy has been.

"If we had a policy," Humphrey added.

Other Criticisms. Humphrey's call for a full-scale investigation was in line with criticisms of the Administration's handling of foreign problems by Adlai E. Stevenson, the defeated Democratic presidential nominee; Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, his vice presidential running mate; Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, and others.

Another suggestion for a congressional inquiry came from Senator Richard Neuberger (Dem.), Oregon, who said in a speech prepared for a Hermiton (Ore.) audience today that a study should be made "of the role of American propaganda in feeding false hopes to Hungary's fight for freedom from Soviet rule."

He said there had been reports of "the surprise and dismay of the Hungarians at the failure of material support of their uprising from American and other western sources." He said these reports pointed to broadcasts from the Voice of America and the privately operated Radio Free Europe.

"For four years there have been statements of our top leaders about 'liberation,' 'rollbacks,' and similar phrases and slogans from this Administration's pronouncements on eastern European affairs," Neuberger said.

Senator Theodore F. Green (Dem.), Rhode Island, slated to become chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee in the new Congress, declined to commit himself in advance on what action he will take. He said he would be inclined to follow the suggestions of Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, on any inquiry by the committee.

There are indications that Johnson, who has called for "responsible opposition" to policies that the Democrats believe to be wrong, will put no stumbling blocks in the way of party members who want to examine foreign policy actions.

Meanwhile, Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, said he will support emergency postponement—but not outright cancellation—of interest payments Great Britain owes to the United States.

Byrd, who heads the Senate Finance Committee, said he is willing to help the British in the financial crisis brought about by the Suez canal military venture.

"But I am opposed to cancellation of interest payments or any waiving of principal payments on money the British owe us," he said in an interview.

"We have poured billions of dollars in gifts into Europe. We have given billions to Britain. They ought to stand by their agreement on loans. A contract is a contract and it should be fulfilled."

The Eisenhower Administration has indicated it will put the matter up to Congress. It is not clear whether the request will be for a delay in making the interest payment, or for a complete waiver.

Hungarian Family Making Movie Here for Information Agency

Refugees Who Escaped in 1945 Are Performing Before Cameras to Show New Life Compared With Old.

A National Broadcasting Co. camera crew today began making movies of a Hungarian family which came to St. Louis after escaping the Russian occupation of their homeland in 1945 by one day.

The crew is making a documentary film on immigrants in America for the United States Information Agency. They will be here about a week.

Subjects of the film production will be Mr. and Mrs. John Maraczi and their six children, who have lived in St. Louis since 1950. After escaping from Hungary in 1945, the family went to Germany. They came here five years later with the help of the Catholic Resettlement office.

When the Maraczis first came here they were placed on a farm in Huzzah, Mo. Shortly afterward they moved to St. Louis and now live at 8506 Hamilton avenue, Jennings.

Maraczi is employed at a dairy at 9881 Mills Ferry road. Four of the children, Julie, 11 years old; Anthony, 9; John, 14, and Katherine, 7, attend Corpus Christi Catholic School. An older daughter is married.

All members of the family will be busy the rest of this week posing for motion picture cameras. Tonight John Maraczi will be photographed when he attends a class in citizenship at the Catholic Resettlement office, 3835 Westminster place.

Tomorrow morning the camera crew will set up at Union Station to film a scene of the family's arrival in St. Louis. Other episodes will show members of the family at school, at work and shopping at a supermarket.

The family was selected for the film after a search of hundreds of immigration records for a family that would best show how immigrants can reestablish themselves successfully in America.

The film will become the fourteenth in a series of USIA productions called "Report From America." It will be shown next January over the British Broadcasting System and then translated into seven languages for showing elsewhere in the free world.

PRESIDENT URGES FEDERAL LEAD IN PUBLIC WORKS

States Advised to Set Up Units to Co-ordinate Own and National Programs.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 10 — President Eisenhower believes the Federal Government "should take the lead" in co-ordinating the planning of public works projects with the states.

Mr. Eisenhower expressed this view in commenting on a proposed new approach to "comprehensive and co-ordinated" planning of projects that affect both states and the National Government.

Under the plan, states would be urged to set up planning units to keep their Governors and Legislatures informed on how proposed state projects would fit in with the over-all federal program.

Cities also would be encouraged to create local planning authorities to determine what construction would be needed to meet their needs 15 to 20 years in the future. Many cities already have such planning agencies.

First Progress Report.
The proposed new federal plan was outlined in the first progress report of Maj. Gen. J. S. Bragdon, special presidential assistant for co-ordination of public works planning.

Bragdon described the present planning of public works as "a sprawling monster with many heads and arms," administered by some 40 federal agencies and more than 100,000 state and local groups.

"As a rule, neither heads nor arms of all concerned act with reference to each other unless constrained to do so," he declared.

"If the objectives of sound planning are achieved," he added, "the average citizen would secure his most needed public improvements first. He would get them at less cost."

"His public officials would avoid the waste of wrongly chosen sites, duplication, unbalanced development, and the pressure of expediency."

All Types of Projects.
Bragdon said he would present a detailed program "to accomplish these ends." The plan will apply "to all types of public works at all levels of government" and will be new in that respect, he added.

His report, submitted to the President yesterday, said specific recommendations would be made later.

In a letter to Bragdon, Mr. Eisenhower said: "It is clear that the Federal Government should take the lead in developing effective co-ordination of public works planning."

At the same time, the President repeated his belief that a federal planning program should preserve "the proper division of responsibilities among levels of government."

Migratory Workers.
In another report, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell outlined recommendations by a presidential committee for federal-state co-operation to improve living and working conditions for migratory workers.

The report set forth regulations that it suggested the states adopt to provide safe transportation and "adequate, sanitary living quarters" for traveling workers.

Mitchell said the presidential group had brought the problem to the attention of the states, with the result that six more states had created migratory labor committees, bringing the total to 13.

AUTO SKIDS, HITS TRUCK; 6 STUDENT NURSES KILLED

PATTERSON, N.Y., Dec. 10 (AP)—Six senior student nurses from St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn, N.Y., were killed last night when their automobile skidded near here and struck a milk tank truck. The truck driver escaped injury.

The dead were: Miss Consuelo Byrne, 20 years old, Staten Island; Miss Anne Callaghan, 20, Brooklyn; Miss Eileen Davis, 20, Brooklyn; Miss Sheila Roche, 19, Bladell, N.Y.; Miss Martha Santemma, 20, Brooklyn; and Miss Maxine Singleton, 19, Brooklyn.

Frank Bollin of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., driver of the truck, told authorities he saw the car suddenly skid out of control and head for his truck. He said he turned his truck up an embankment, but the car smashed into the tank trailer and bounced off about 100 feet before it stopped.

BARUCH STRESSES VALUE OF '40-PLUS' WORKERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Financier Bernard Baruch says workers over 40 should be hired as a matter of business sense and not as a result of laws forcing them on employers.

Baruch's views on the hiring of "40-plus" workers was disclosed yesterday by state Senator Thomas C. Desmond, chairman of the New York State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems of the Aging.

Desmond quoted the 86-year-old Baruch as saying: "I do not believe that employment opportunities for the aging can be broadened by any kind of anti-discrimination legislation. You cannot legislate understanding. Business men must be helped to understand the valuable resource which older workers comprise."

Strike Ties Up New Delhi.
NEW DELHI, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Indian capital's commercial life was severely disrupted today as hundreds of shopkeepers, fruit and vegetable merchants, taxicab drivers and others went on a one-day strike to protest a proposed sales tax.

SYRIAN KILLED BY TURKS

DAMASCUS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Syrian newspapers said today a Syrian civilian was shot and killed and another seriously wounded by Turkish soldiers yesterday near the border. Damascus dailies said the Syrians were walking in the outskirts of Kamishli, northern Syria, when they were fired upon.

Science releases world's greatest germ killer in safe pleasant gargle form for throat infections.

Doctors in leading hospitals have discovered new, fast relief for painful sore throat—with revolutionary new type iodine gargle. In clinical tests on hundreds of patients suffering from worst sore throat pain, 9 out of 10 obtained fast relief. Doctors said, "Results were dramatic."
First used in babies' throats under doctor's supervision, this new iodine proved dramatically safe and effective to cure the dreaded throat infection, called "thrush." The secret is the remarkable achievement of detoxifying iodine to make it safe to use—yet retain its potency.
Here for the first time is the full power of iodine at work in a gentle, soothing film so that sore throat pain stops fast. This new gargle coats raw nerve ends inside the throat and mouth where pain starts—while it kills harmful bacteria that cause infection. And even hours later, germ count is practically nothing, so relief lasts and lasts.
You can now get this dramatic new iodine gargle without prescription under the name of "Concentrated ISODINE GARGLE". It is stainless and has a remarkably refreshing taste. Use ISODINE Gargle freely to relieve sore throat... at the first sign of a cold to prevent sore throat misery. If symptoms do not respond to ISODINE Gargle, no gargle will suffice. U.S. ATTORNEYS DISCUSS STATE SEGREGATION LAWS

Southern Group Meets at Brownell's Call to Determine What to Do About Statutes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Thirty-three United States district attorneys from 14 Southern and border states met in Washington today to discuss what they should do about laws in those states requiring racial segregation on busses.
Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. called the conference on Nov. 19, a few days after the Supreme Court struck down as a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment such segregation laws in the state of Alabama and the city of Montgomery, Ala.
Brownell said that in the light of that decision "it is now clear that any such law, statute, ordinance or regulation must be regarded as a dead letter."
His letter to the federal prosecutors in the states concerned said that attempts to enforce such laws would violate the constitutional rights and constitute a "crime against the United States."
He added that today's conference would consider and decide "upon measures most appropriate to secure observance of the Constitution and laws by carriers and all others who may hereafter require segregation of white and colored passengers on common carriers."

Segregation laws and their enforcement vary from state to state and city to city. In Maryland, for instance, there is practically no enforcement. In the "deep south" states, such statutes are rigidly enforced.
In some states, Negroes are required to sit in a partitioned area on busses and trains. Others require only that white persons begin seating from the front, Negro passengers from the rear.
The federal prosecutors summoned to the closed-door session function in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

Clinton High School Reopens Without Violence
CLINTON, Tenn., Dec. 10 (AP)—Integrated Clinton High School reopened without a hitch today, with eight Negro students walking together back to classes. One of the remaining students moved away today with her family and one remained home. Two of the original 12 previously withdrew from school.
Three police cars cruised the area briefly and then returned to their normal duties in this little east Tennessee city of 4,000. There was no indication of racial disturbances which caused authorities to close the school last Tuesday.
Students of both races appeared in jovial mood.
Authorities said about the normal number of white students also reported for the reopening, with approximately 800 students enrolled.

(The United Press said that at Knoxville, 20 miles from Clinton, United States District Judge Robert L. Taylor arraigned 16 persons accused of instigating racial trouble at the school in violation of a federal injunction. All 16 pleaded not guilty and Taylor set their trials for the week of Jan. 28.
(At a packed assembly shortly after school opened, high school pupils listened soberly while a county official explained that they could be prosecuted—and their cases turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation—if they started again such things as "messing up lockers" and using "filthy language" in connection with the Negroes.)
The Negroes have been out of school for nearly two weeks except for the brief period last Tuesday before the Anderson County School Board ordered the school closed.

Seven to Go on Trial in Florida in Flogging of Negro.
BUSHNELL, Fla., Dec. 10 (AP)—A circuit court trial opened today for seven white men accused of flogging Jesse Woods, Negro, of Wildwood, Fla., who allegedly said, "Hello there, baby" to a white woman.
A jury was picked in the first two hours.
Charged with false imprisonment and aggravated assault were Ezekiel Aldeman, George Altman and Max Stunborg, all of Wildwood; Robert Nesmith and Leaman Lundy, both of Belleview; Doyle Polk of Marion county and Keith Sands of Jacksonville. All pleaded not guilty, when originally charged.

8TH ANNIVERSARY OF U.N. DOCUMENT ON HUMAN RIGHTS

© New York Times News Service
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 10—Today is the eighth anniversary of the United Nations General Assembly's adoption of the Universal Declaration of human rights.
Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, in a message marking the anniversary, described the declaration as "a goal toward which men and women everywhere should strive."
"It is a declaration of man's faith in himself, of his belief in human dignity, of his aspiration towards a moral order," Hammarskjöld said. "It sets forth in words the rights and freedoms which are man's greatest gifts and which those in power are pledged to promote."
"When these are denied, and the dignity and worth of the human person is forgotten, there can be no peace," he added. "Recently we have been sharply reminded of these truths."

PRESSMEN'S UNION OFFICER ENTERS KANSAS CITY TALKS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 10 (AP)—Arrival today of vice president of the International Pressmen's Union may bring developments in the dispute that has shut off publication of the Kansas City Star since Saturday afternoon. The pressmen's union dispatched Jack Torrence of Chicago to Kansas City.

Some of the Star's contract distributors and members of the Pressmen's union continued their picket line at the Star building. Other union craftsmen—printers, stereotypers and engravers—declined to cross the picket line.
The Times morning edition of the Star, did not publish today. Subscribers got about half of the 132-page edition scheduled for Sunday. Carriers distributed the feature, amusement and comic sections printed before the picket line was established. There were no news or sports sections.

ROBBERY TRIAL OF LAWYER BEGINS

Jury Being Chosen to Hear Holdup Plot Charge Against Bernard Steinger.

Selection of a jury was started today at the trial of Bernard Steinger, an attorney, on an armed robbery charge in the court of Circuit Judge Fred E. Mueller at Clayton.

Steinger was accused of planning a holdup that two other men carried out last Aug. 31 at the home of Mrs. George B.

Fleischman, 606 East Polo drive, Clayton.

The two named in an indictment with Steinger are Stanley R. Earhart, an unemployed salesman, of Quincy, Ill., and Norman S. Bennett. Motions for separate trials for them were granted by Judge Mueller.

Earhart quoted Bennett as saying the crime was "laid out by Barney Steinger." The attorney was questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz for two hours last Sept. 13, and told a reporter afterward that Earhart's story was "utterly fantastic."

Steinger, who has offices at 115 North Meramec avenue in Clayton, was reported to have told the robbers he expected to receive 10 per cent of $3,000,000 to $6,000,000 he believed would be found in the Fleischman home, investigators said. One hundred dollars and a pistol were taken in the holdup.

Mrs. Fleischman and a maid were taped to chairs while the house was ransacked.

Steinger was an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congressman from the Second district last August. Two years ago he tried but failed to get a nomination for circuit judge.

27 FLEE FROM HOTEL FIRE

WOONSOCKET, R.I., Dec. 10 (AP)—Two women were overcome and 27 guests including a blind man fled to safety yesterday when fire swept the three-story wooden Hillside hotel.

The state fire marshal's office immediately began an investigation of the blaze, the second serious fire in the area in six days. Authorities said the fires "could be of incendiary origin."

JIMMY ANGEL DIES, PILOT WHO FOUND WATERFALL

BALBOA, C.Z., Dec. 10 (UP)—The ashes of Jimmy Angel, American jungle pilot who died in Gorgas Hospital here Saturday, probably will be scattered over the world's highest waterfall, which he discovered in 1938 and which is named for him.

Angel's wife, Marie, has cabled permission from Santa Barbara, Calif., for the cremation of his body. Charles Bradley, a friend, is trying to arrange to have the ashes flown to Angel Falls.

Angel, a World War I pilot and soldier of fortune, spent more than half his life in South America. He discovered the 3300-foot cataract in the jungles of southeastern Venezuela when he was flying over the area in search of a "lost lode" of gold.

He suffered a stroke in June, a few days after he was involved in a minor plane accident in Panama, and lingered on in a coma for six months.

Air Force Receives Transport Capable of Carrying 400 Men

First of 10 Douglas C-133s Is Delivered—
Twice the Size of a Globemaster—
New 'Hercules' Also on Hand.

ARDMORE AIR FORCE BASE, Okla., Dec. 10 (AP)—The Air Force has received the first of 10 new transport planes capable of carrying 400 men each. The Air Force is studying— with some doubts and reservations—plans for a plane designed to carry 800 persons. A spokesman for the Tactical Air Command here said that the first of the 10 propeller-jet Douglas C-133 transport planes, which will carry 400 passengers, is being tested at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The plane is about twice the size of the C-124 Globemaster, the world's largest operation transport. The T.A.C. spokesman said that Douglas has in the design stage an even larger plane, the C-132, which would carry up to 800 men. The T.A.C. command here yesterday received its first jet-and-propeller transport, the Lockheed C-130 Hercules, a plane of comparatively modest size. Powered by four Allison T-56 engines harnessed to propellers, the C-130 will carry up to 92

Infantrymen—more than twice as many as the Fairchild C-119 Flying Boxcar which the C-130 will replace. The C-130 also will fly about twice as fast as the C-119 or, for that matter, as the 200-passenger-capacity C-124 Globemaster. An Air Force crew flew the C-130 here from the Lockheed plant at Marietta, Ga. Robert E. Gross of Burbank, Calif., Lockheed board chairman, formally presented the Hercules to Gen. O. P. Weyland, commander of the T.A.C. at an airfield ceremony and air show. Weyland told a news conference that the new Lockheed transport would do twice as much work, unit per unit, as the C-119 which it replaces. He said the Hercules would supplement the Globemaster until the latter, in turn, is replaced by the propeller-jet Douglas C-133. The Hercules has a combat range of almost 3000 miles at a cruising speed of 330 miles an hour. With the assistance of a tail wind a C-130 recently completed a four-hour test cruise with a speed average of 425 miles an hour.

PILOT EJECTED ACCIDENTALLY AT ABOUT 43,000 FEET

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Air Ministry released yesterday the story of how an R.A.F. pilot maneuvering eight miles up unexpectedly found himself pitched out of his jet plane by a defect in his ejector seat. He wound up on the ground 15 minutes later with a fractured ankle.

The accident occurred last March, but the Air Ministry kept the incident under wraps pending investigation. Investigators figure the pilot was fired out of his plane at about 43,000 feet. The highest test for an ejection seat in Britain has been at 40,000 feet.

In telling his story to reporters yesterday, Flight Lt. Roy Watson said: "I was greyed out (semi-conscious) for about five or six seconds as I fell. I had lost my oxygen mask and crash helmet, and had no face screen, but I must have had enough oxygen in my body to keep me going."

His plane, a Hunter jet, crashed in a farm yard 12 miles away without hurting anyone.

J.S. INDICTS TIMBER WORKER FOR ARSON

Ellsinore (Mo.) Man Accused of Burning 700
Acres in National Forest.

An indictment charging Ray Leroy Roark of Ellsinore, Mo., with setting fire last March to timber, underbrush and grass on Government property in Wayne county was returned by a federal grand jury today. The blaze swept over 700 acres of Shawnee National Forest.

Roark, 22-year-old timber worker, was arrested after a state conservation agent flying over the blazing forest observed two men setting fires.

Wesley C. Rehagen, a farmer near Rolla, Mo., was charged in an indictment with violating federal laws in his dealings with the Farmers Home Administration.

He was accused of getting a loan by placing a mortgage on two heifers which he had sold earlier; making false statements on two occasions to obtain money to purchase livestock; selling for $54 a Jersey cow on which the Farmers Home Administration had a mortgage;

selling for $120 another cow mortgaged to the federal agency, and selling for $40 a Poland China sow, mortgaged to the agency.

Charles Lowery of Chicago was charged with violating narcotics laws by purchasing, selling and possessing 202 grains of heroin, for which he obtained $300, and selling one ounce of heroin for $150. The alleged offenses occurred in 1954.

WOMEN NEEDED TO SEW KITBAGS FOR HUNGARIANS

The St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross appealed today for women volunteers to sew 5000 kitbags this week for Hungarian refugees who fled to Austria with little or no possessions. The kitbags are urgently needed because the refugees are being readied for transportation to the United States.

The Red Cross has bought the material for the bags and cut it to size. Volunteers need only to sew up two sides and put a drawstring in the top. Women who cannot sew can help speed the operation by putting in the drawstring.

Red Cross leaders said the work can be done at home or at the organization's offices, 3414 Lindell boulevard. Additional information about the project can be obtained by telephoning the Red Cross. The number is FRanklin 1-4980.

RUSSIA RATIFIES TREATY ENDING WAR WITH JAPAN

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Soviet News Agency announced last night the presidium of the Supreme Soviet had ratified both the joint Soviet-Japanese declaration ending the state of war between them and the trade agreement they signed Oct. 19.

Both have been ratified by the Japanese Parliament and approved by Emperor Hirohito.
They are to become effective when documents of ratification are exchanged in a ceremony scheduled to be held Wednesday in Tokyo.

EGYPT WARNS BUYERS NOT TO DUMP COTTON ON MARKET

CAIRO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Mohamed Abou Nossair, Egypt's minister of commerce, said today Egypt has warned countries buying Egyptian cotton that this cotton must not be re-exported to a third country.

Abou Nossair denied, however, that there had been any proved case of such reexportation. Press reports abroad last year said the Soviet bloc countries were buying Egyptian cotton and dumping it on world markets at reduced prices.

SPEEDBOAT LEAPS TO ROAD AND COLLIDES WITH AUTO
CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand, Dec. 10 (AP)—A speed-boat collided with an automobile near here yesterday.

The speedboat, driven by former racing car driver Matthew Will, leaped from the Waima-kariri river at 30 knots when the rudder cord broke and it struck a car on the road beside the stream.

The speedboat was demolished, the car was damaged extensively, but neither driver was hurt.

U.S. ECONOMY LIKELY TO SLOW DOWN IN 1957

Symposium Indicates Loss of Momentum, Expects 'Moderate' Gains Will Be Shown.

© New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—The American economy will lose some of its forward momentum in 1957, but the year will still show "moderate" gains over new high records set this year. This was the consensus of business spokesmen participating in a symposium last week sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Their views were made public yesterday.

"We are now moving into the third year of the current phase of recovery which began in 1954," Dr. Emerson P. Schmidt, director of economic research for the chamber, said in talking of the business outlook for the coming year. "The boom is getting older but not necessarily tired. That suggests, however, that certain stresses and strains may begin to develop."

Dr. Schmidt added that "a look ahead must be more guarded than usual."

Optimistic Forecasts.
Spokesmen for trade groups in more than a dozen lines of industry engaged in the discussions. In general they confined themselves to predicting trends for the first half of next year. The forecasts were optimistic, although all, particularly the home building industry, indicated concern over the increase in money costs compared with a year ago.

New passenger car sales in 1957 should reach a level of 6,000,000 to 6,200,000 units. Estimates of sales for this year set the total at about 5,800,000.

William Storey, of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel, asserted that the outlook for steel in 1957, both in production and profits "is good."

The department, specialty and chain stores look for a 5 per cent increase in sales the first six months of the coming year, compared with the record-setting volume sold in the corresponding period of 1956.

Other Predictions.
Other predictions included:
1. A 15 per cent increase in sales of farm machinery in 1957 compared with this year.
2. Sales increases of about 6.7 per cent in 1957 compared with this year for the food industry, with prices remaining stable.

CRIPPLED PLANE USES AUTO AS CRUTCH TO LAND

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 10 (AP)—Damaged landing gear forced a light plane to use an automobile as a crutch yesterday at the Norfolk municipal airport. There were no injuries and neither the plane nor the car was damaged.

Manning D. Rooks of Norfolk, pilot of the plane, had just cleared the runway when the control tower radioed him: "Your right landing gear is damaged...dangling useless. Get altitude and circle the field until we can get the crash crew alerted."

As crash trucks rushed onto the field, Ed Hornbaker, from whose company Rooks had rented the plane, called the control tower—"I'm taking a car on the field to bring him in." Two men climbed in the car with him.

Rooks circled the field until he understood the instructions. He made several passes over the runway, flying the plane close to the car.

On the fourth pass, Rooks set the plane down, the left landing gear functioning properly. The right wing settled gently on the car top. As Hornbaker drove the car, the two occupants held the struts, keeping the wing firmly against the car.

CZECH RED CHIEF BACKS RUSSIANS, ASSAILS TITOISTS

VIENNA, Dec. 10 (UP)—Czechoslovakia's Communist party chief Antonin Novotny pledged Czech allegiance to Moscow yesterday in a speech denouncing fellow Reds in Yugoslavia, Poland and Hungary. Novotny repeated the Czech party's "frank support" for the Soviet attack on Hungary.

Excerpts from the party chief's speech to his central committee were broadcast by Prague radio and monitored here. The broadcast failed to state when the speech was made.

He accused the West of striving for a "return of the cold war" and trying to "create the pre-conditions for World War III." He bitterly denounced President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia and accused him of running counter to the precepts of Marxism. Along the same lines, Novotny denounced "some elements" in Poland. He charged that the liberal Polish government of Wladyslaw Gomulka was particularly wrong in its "liquidation of collective farms."

ANOTHER VERSION OF BERIA'S DEATH: VICTIM OF A RUSE

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 10 (UP)—Russian secret police boss Lavrenty Beria was strangled by members of the Soviet politburo after he fell for their ruse that he was to be the next Stalin, an Italian reporter said today. Indro Montanelli wrote in Milan's Corriere della Sera that Soviet Communist leader Nikita Khrushchev told the story to ousted Hungarian party boss Matyas Rakosi and he was given the details by a Hungarian official close to Rakosi. He said the politburo, then under Premier Georgi Malenkov, knew Beria was tapping their telephones so they repeatedly mentioned him as a successor to Stalin in their conversations. Then they got Soviet President Kliment Voroshilov to appeal to Beria to take over. Beria attended a politburo meeting on June 21 or 22, 1953, confident it would name him premier. Instead Malenkov read a denunciation of his activities. Before Malenkov could finish, Beria leaped from his chair and tugged a pistol from his pocket, but other politburo members jumped him and "literally strangled him," Montanelli said.

23 CUBAN REBELS REPORTED KILLED AND 32 CAPTURED

HAVANA, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Cuban general staff claimed troops and marines killed 23 rebels yesterday in the mountains of southeastern Cuba and took 32 prisoners near the United States naval base at Guantanamo. Government losses were put at three dead and numerous wounded. The army said a band of rebels led by former student leader Fidel Castro-Rus was still at large in the mountains but that a determined drive was under way to encircle it. The latest small-scale revolt against President Fulgencio Batista's regime began with civilian attacks Nov. 30 in Santiago, Cuba's second largest city. Those rebels were quickly overwhelmed but Batista's forces have been trying to round up a group of about 80 revolutionaries who were landed from the sea a week ago, reportedly under Castro's leadership. He has been in exile in Mexico.

REPUBLICAN BACKING OF REFORMS PLEDGED

Representative Jones Urges Blair to Act at Once on Streamlining.

A pledge of Republican support for any effort the Democrats may make to streamline the Missouri state government was suggested last January by the Little Hoover Commission was given yesterday by Representative A. Clifford Jones of St. Louis county.

Jones will be the minority floor leader in the House of Representatives when the Legislature convenes Jan. 14.

Some of the recommended reforms can be accomplished by administrative action and do not require legislation, Jones urged Gov.-elect James T. Blair Jr. to put those into effect "with all possible speed."

If Blair desires to have a temporary staff of experts to help expedite work in that field, Republican members will support an immediate appropriation for that purpose, Jones said.

Fifty-eight per cent of the Little Hoover recommendations would require legislative authority.

Especially needed, Jones added, are changes in preparation of the budget, so that a budget commission could examine the needs of state institutions in more detail and make cost comparisons.

GEN. TAYLOR CITES CONTINUED NEED FOR LAND FORCES

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, said today the nation's strategy should be geared to the needs of unforseen situations and not "to any single weapons system or a single concept of future war."

In an address to the United Nations, Taylor said there was need for land forces as well as for mass destruction nuclear weapons. He said adequate land forces were needed by this country to cope with small types of war which, if unchecked, could lead to big wars.

"Following World War II, we understandably bestirred ourselves to prepare against the possibility of nuclear World War III with all its dreadful implications," he said. "In so doing we created a great retaliatory atomic striking force, thoroughly capable of impressing any potential enemy of the consequences to him if he attacked us in similar proportions."

"This retaliatory force has undoubtedly done much to maintain the big peace—to restrain general atomic war—but it has not been sufficient to maintain the little peace—to restrain local aggression."

State's "Bill of Rights Day,"

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10 (AP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today proclaimed Saturday, Dec. 15, as "Bill of Rights Day" in Missouri and urged citizens to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and prayers.

SOVIET EMPIRE IS STARTING TO FALL, ERIC JOHNSTON SAYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Eric Johnston, President Eisenhower's personal envoy to the Middle East, said yesterday the Hungarian revolution is "the beginning of the end of the Soviet empire."

Johnston, recently returned from a trip behind the Iron Curtain, said Communist East Germany also is in a "very precarious... a tinder box" condition and could break out in revolt at any time.

He was interviewed on the NBC television show, "Youth Wants to Know." He said Russian atrocities in Hungary have given the so-called neutral nations of the world a "rude awakening" and have swung them to the side of the free world.

SIX IN FAMILY DROWNED

MOOSE, Wyo., Dec. 10 (AP)—A family of six, on the way home from nearby Jackson, drowned in an overturned automobile in the Snake river late Saturday.

State highway patrolmen said the car carrying the Albert Oakley family apparently skidded on an ice-coated highway. Officers found the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley and their four children in the car surrounded by gaily-wrapped Christmas packages and sacks of groceries.

Swiss Sunday Driving Bar Off

BERN, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Swiss government decided today to end the bar on Sunday driving which has been in force since Nov. 18. The government said it hoped voluntary restraint by automobile owners would bring about a 20 per cent reduction in normal gasoline consumption and make rationing unnecessary.

RUSSIAN PROMISE TO QUIT HUNGARY REPORTED IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, Dec. 10 (AP)—An informed source said yesterday Russia has assured Prime Minister Nehru it plans to withdraw the bulk of its forces from Hungary at the earliest suitable moment.

He said diplomats here were telling their governments of these Soviet assurances in reporting their impressions of New Delhi policy.

It appeared, the source said, that Russia is ready to make a withdrawal even if it means accepting a more independent Hungarian Government than existed before the crisis. However, the source said the withdrawal seemed unlikely until: 1. Moscow feels that Hungary is not completely lost to the Communist bloc. 2. A withdrawal can be made when Moscow can say its troops are leaving because Hungarian law and order have been restored and not because of the pressure of world opinion.

HEADS CHEMISTS' GROUP

BOSTON, Dec. 10—John J. Healy Jr. of St. Louis, today was elected a director of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers which has convened here for its forty-ninth annual meeting.

Healy is assistant to the vice president of research development and engineering of Monsanto Chemical Co. in St. Louis. A former member of the engineering staff of Merrimac Chemical Co., Everett, Mass., Healy has been with Monsanto since 1929.

RED SUBMARINES CALLED THREAT BY NATO ADMIRAL

LONDON, Dec. 10 (AP)—The American commander of Allied naval forces in the Atlantic said today that Russia's huge submarine fleet poses "a very sizeable threat to the security of our lives."

But Adm. Jeraud S. Wright also expressed the opinion that if necessary NATO ships and planes could give the undersea raiders "a pretty rough time."

"The Soviets have concentrated their principal naval effort into the production of submarines," Wright told a news conference. "They perhaps have more submarines than all the other nations of the world combined."

"I think the latest figure is Greece.

74 KILLED, CYPRIOTS SAY

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Greek Cypriot underground Eoka scattered leaflets yesterday claiming it killed 74 Britons and wounded 106 in November.

Official British casualty figures are 23 killed and 56 wounded in the month, bloodiest since Eoka launched its violent campaign for union with Greece.

COMMON OBJECTIVES FOUND BY ITALY AND WEST GERMANY

BONN, Dec. 10—West Germany and Italy embraced today the common objectives of restoring the unity of the Atlantic pact nations and putting some muscle in the seven-nation Western European Union.

In a communique issued yesterday at the end of a three-day state visit to Bonn by Giovanni Gronchi, president of Italy, the two governments said these objectives were vital to insure world peace.

Gronchi and Gaetano Martino, foreign minister in the Rome government, held long conversations on international policy with West German officials here. The two sides agreed on a vigorous Italian-German initiative at the meeting of the North Atlantic council in Paris this week.

ASSERTS CITIES NEED POSITIVE MIGRATION PLAN

Race Relations Expert Discusses Movement of Groups to and Within St. Louis.

Most American cities lack "a conscious and adequate public social policy" to meet the challenge of population change and assist the process of human adjustment, Herman H. Long, director of race relations for Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn., said here today.

Long made the keynote address at the annual Human Rights Institute at Kiel Auditorium, where a number of speakers discussed the movement of people to St. Louis from the rural south, and from one section of the city to another.

"The need," Long said, "is for a positive migration policy by urban communities which not only welcomes the presence of new groups but also anticipates the necessity of putting them into contact with the opportunities for housing, employment and social welfare which their happy adjustment requires."

Dictated by Realities.

This is not only consistent with the American democratic creed and universal human rights, but it would seem to be dictated by the practical realities of population growth and movement and the attendant economic and industrial development of the national life.

Noting that St. Louis had long served as gateway to the "promised land" of the north for hundreds of thousands of migrants from the lower Mississippi valley, Long said it was appropriate that the subject be considered as part of the community's observance of the eighth anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Long said the public response to population change at less well-informed levels took on all too frequently a character of "negativism," in which the influx of new people was regarded as a catastrophe, full of danger and threat. He deplored as provincial the view that the modern city is a private and exclusive world.

Human migration, Long said, has served historically to bring about progress, nourishing and replenishing the great metropolises, facilitating industrial change. He said thriving nations and thriving cities were those that had been successful melting pots.

Another Reason.

A second persuasive reason for looking favorably on migration, he continued, is that America's growth as a strong industrial nation "has necessitated a continuing shift of population, the most dominant characteristic of which has been the change from rural to urban concentrations of people."

Long said the classic case of migrations within the United States was the shift of the Negro population, which from 1915 to 1940 brought 1,750,000 Negroes to the north. He said St. Louis and nine other large cities had accounted for 50 per cent of Negro population growth in this country since 1940, while at the same time absorbing only 4 per cent of white population growth.

"Inter-regional movement trends," Long said, "show a net loss of about 1,500,000 whites for the South as compared with almost 2,500,000 Negroes. The North Central states lost 3,000,000 whites through inter-regional movement, while they gained over 1,500,000 Negroes."

Long emphasized the importance of intelligent planning to minimize the inevitable short-term conflicts produced by population change. He said there was a tendency to blame newcomers, regardless of racial origin, for community problems, such as crime, that existed before they came.

SAYS 'TIGHT MONEY' HAS HURT BUILDERS

Publisher Tells Congressmen Policy Has Not Yet Checked Inflation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Investigating members of Congress heard testimony today that the Administration's "tight money" policy has not yet checked inflation and "has hurt home builders, small business and municipalities."

The comments came from Elliott V. Bell, editor and publisher of the magazine Business Week. He advocated a two-year study of the Government's credit and monetary policies and the creation of a national economic council.

Bell was the leadoff witness at a two-day public hearing before the Senate-House Economic Committee, launched by chairman Representative Wright

Patman (Dem., Texas), with a statement that one reason for the inquiry is "danger that the tight money policy may wreck the economy."

Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyoming), was the only member present besides Patman.

"The tight money policy thus far has hurt some home builders, small business and municipalities," Bell said, adding:

"But it has not, as far as I can see, really touched the capital goods boom. It may actually have stimulated rather than curbed business borrowing."

"This, of course, is not to say that tight money will not be effective. It may grab hold very soon now, because financial institutions have come about to the end of the road when it comes to selling 'government securities' at current prices and in present times. Moreover, many banks are 'loaned up' to the limit of what they consider prudent."

Snowstorm in Syria.
DAMASCUS, Dec. 10 (AP)—A snowstorm, an unusual experience for this Middle Eastern nation, blanketed many parts of Syria today. Road and rail lines between Damascus and Beirut, Lebanon, were blocked. Damascus lies at about the latitude of Charleston, S.C.

CHOU IN BURMA, SEEKS ACCORD ON BORDER ISSUE

Gets Big Welcome—Looks for Concessions From U.S. on Captive Americans.

RANGOON, Dec. 10 (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai of Red China arrived here today from India for a 10-day good will visit to Burma. He got a big welcome.

In an airport speech, Chou mentioned the border dispute between Red China and Burma and said the two countries were seeking "step by step, in conformity with the five principles (of coexistence) a reasonable settlement of certain issues."

A tentative agreement, reached after a visit to Red China last October by Burma's former premier, U Nu, provides for withdrawal of communist troops from Burma's Wa states along the border, and for return to Red China of a 100-square mile territory near Bhamo formerly held by Burma under perpetual lease.

19-Gun Salute.
A 19-gun salute greeted Chou as he stepped out of an Indian Airlines plane. Premier U Nu, Foreign Minister Sao Hkun Hkio, U Nu, now president of the dominant anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League party, and U Kyaw Nyein, second deputy premier, were present.

A party of girls showered garlands on the visitor, and crowds of flag-waving Burmese lined the road from the airport to the presidential palace.

Strict security measures were in force. Seven Chinese, believed to be supporters of Nationalist Chiang Kai-shek were rounded up by police yesterday. In his 12-day visit in India, Chou stressed that he is a man of peace, that Red China and India need peace to build up their backward economies and boost their standards of living, and that the two countries by friendship could build a bulwark for peace.

Chou told a crowd of several hundred thousand Indians in Calcutta's central park that Red China is eager to improve relations with the United States.

Chou, winding up his tour of South India, told a press conference his government had released 34 Americans, but that the United States had neither released any Chinese nor given Peiping a list of Chinese in the United States.

"With this comparison," the Premier said, "I leave it up to you to judge which side should make the next step in this matter."

The United States has repeatedly told Peiping that it is detaining no Chinese and all who wish to leave America have gone. It is wary of passing along any lists of Chinese because it fears

Chou also called again for a meeting between himself and United States Secretary of State Dulles, lifting of the American trade embargo against Red China, development of trade between the two countries and "letting the people of the United States have contacts with the Chinese people."

SOVIET PAPER SAYS LODGE ACTS AS IF HE ALONE IS U.N.

MOSCOW, Dec. 10 (AP)—Trud said yesterday that Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. has been behaving as if he were the official representative of all members of the United Nations, not just the United States.

The Soviet trade union paper, in a dispatch from New York, accused the United States delegate of "inadmissible conduct... and unjustified attacks on the Hungarian government and its representative in the United Nations." Foreign Minister Imre Horvath.

"Some Western delegates have even begun to confuse the United Nations with the United States State Department," Trud said.

The commentary was part of a developing Soviet campaign of criticism of the United States role in the United Nations which began when the U.N. majority shifted against the Soviet Union over Hungary.

EX-HOBO THANKS POLICE CHIEF FOR SHELTER IN 1933

A man who in the depth of the depression once slept at police headquarters on a cold winter's night has sent a warm greeting of thanks, Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell said today.

A Christmas card with the following message was received at headquarters Saturday: "Sir: Back in 1933 as a hobo, I'll never forget the kindness of your police department and so at this time I wish to express my late thanks."

The card was signed by Phil Goldfaden of Long Branch, N.J. In depression time, the department often fed and gave overnight lodgings to unemployed transients. Said O'Connell: "Merry Christmas to Mr. Goldfaden."

BOY, 14, KILLS FATHER; COMPANION SLUGS MOTHER

VISTA, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP)—A 14-year-old boy notified the sheriff yesterday he had shot and killed his father. A 13-year-old companion, the sheriff's report added, knocked the man's wife unconscious with a rifle-butt blow on the head.

Dead was Lody Calahan, 54, retired plumber. Injuries to his wife, Laura, 33, were reported minor.

Henry Calahan, 14, and Patrick Gonzales, 13, were quoted as saying they had been drinking, and that the violence climaxed a series of random firing of rifle bullets into homes in the Vista area the last few days. They said Calahan had discovered they were the mysterious riflemen and was going to turn them in.

EAST GERMANY FACING SERIOUS FOOD SHORTAGES

BERLIN, Dec. 10 (AP)—Communist East Germany appears to be in for a bleak Christmas. Reports indicate serious shortages of not only Christmas goodies, but also basic foods.

The League of Free Jurists, a West Berlin anti-Communist organization with many contacts in East Germany, says the pre-Christmas supply situation is the worst in years.

The Communists admit there are shortages, but they try to play them down by blaming the closing of the Suez canal, bad weather, and the Hungarian rebellion, which cut off supplies from Hungary and Romania.

Oranges and bananas are considered first-class Christmas delicacies by German children. The free jurists report parents must prove they have a child under 2 years old before they are allowed to buy a banana.

CHICAGO TO SCRAP WOODEN COACHES ON ITS EL LINES

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (UP)—The Chicago Transit Authority began scrapping its wooden coaches on elevated lines today with almost complete disposal of the old coaches scheduled by next August.

The C.T.A. announcement to eliminate five old coaches a week followed an inquest into the death of a motorman in a fire which swept a wooden coach in an El train on the city's north side Friday. About 50 persons were injured.

Walter McCarron, Cook county (Chicago) coroner, threatened at an inquest-Saturday to seek an injunction immediately forcing the C.T.A. to get rid of the wooden coaches he referred to as "wooden coffins."

A C.T.A. spokesman said service would be impaired if it complied with the coroner's demand. The spokesman said that under the C.T.A. disposal plan, about 200 of the 270 wooden cars in use would be eliminated by Aug. 1, 1957.

HERE'S YOUR HIDDEN BEARD.
Whiskers grow in tiny valleys. Ordinary shaving methods skim along the tops of these valleys, shave only the tops of your whiskers. Soon the unshaved base of each whisker will grow out and your Hidden Beard can be seen and felt.

HERE'S HOW REMINGTON GETS IT.
Roller Combs gently press the edges of the skin valleys down, pop up those hard-to-get-at whisker bases right into the path of the man-sized shaving head. Each whisker is then sheared off closely, quickly and comfortably.

The new Remington Rollectric reaches your Hidden Beard... actually shaves below normal shaving level to give you close, comfortable and lasting shaves. The Rollectric's beard-seeking Roller Combs also protect tender facial skin, makes such close cutting action possible.

MOLLET REVEALS WHY U.S. WASN'T WARNED ON EGYPT

The New York Times-Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Radio.
PARIS, Dec. 10.—Premier Mollet said in a television interview last night that France and Britain did not warn the United States about their intended attack on Egypt because they knew "you would have prevented us from doing it." The interview was broadcast in the United States over the ABC network.

He said, too, that he still planned to seek Big Three talks among President Eisenhower, British Prime Minister Eden and himself "as soon as there might be results—good results." Mollet said his "very simple plan" for improving relations with the United States was "just to talk together, sure as I am that we understand ourselves." Mollet denied there had been "any collusion" among Britain, France and Israel on the Israeli attack on Egypt and the British-French move to try to seize the Suez canal.

STANDING U.N. POLICE FORCE IS ADVOCATED BY REUTHER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—Labor leader Walter Reuther said yesterday "if a U.N. police force of 25,000 men could have been parachuted into Budapest in the first 48 hours of the Nagy government the outlook for the Hungarian people would not be so bleak today."

Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers and vice president of the AFL-CIO, urged creation of a standing international police force through revision of the U.N. Charter. "Noble resolutions are not enough," he told a conference celebrating the 300th anniversary of Histadrut, Israel's labor federation. "The U.N. must become more than a debating society."

MAINE DEMOCRATS ASSAIL GOV. MUSKIE FOR FIRST TIME

WATERVILLE, Me., Dec. 10 (AP)—A lively meeting of the Maine Democratic state committee has elected a new chairman and publicized a family squabble.

The committee yesterday named Bates College Professor John C. Donovan to succeed United States Representative-elect Frank M. Coffin of Lewiston, who resigned due to his impending departure for Washington.

And in its first public criticism of Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, the committee upbraided him for what it said was his failure to consult it on local and county-level appointments.

IRAN PRINCESS TO MARRY

TEHRAN, Dec. 10 (AP)—Iran's royal court announced yesterday that the Shah's only daughter, Princess Shahnaz, 17 years old, will be married in the palace next Saturday. The bridegroom will be Ardeshir Zahedi, 28, son of the general who overthrew Mohammed Mossadegh in 1953 and restored the Shah to his throne.

Princess Shahnaz was educated in Switzerland, Belgium and France. Young Zahedi is an agricultural engineer but now serves as the Shah's civil adjutant. He fought with the anti-Mossadegh forces in 1953 after having been jailed earlier that year by the Mossadegh government.

BAR ON MISSILES EXPECTED TO BE PROPOSED BY U.S.

Administration Sources Hint This Will Be Feature of Disarmament Plan.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Administration sources hinted yesterday that a bar on long-range guided missiles would be a key feature of a new United States disarmament plan.

Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, declined comment on the report.

Other Administration officials indicated, however, that this proposal would be part of the general disarmament plan the United States will present to the United Nations Assembly early next year. Disarmament is on the agenda and is expected to reach debate in February. The United States plan may be discussed before that in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

President Eisenhower may delay his reply to Premier Bulganin's Nov. 17 disarmament proposals until this country is ready to air its full program, the officials said.

The brutality with which the Soviet Union has suppressed Hungary's bid for freedom has, however, dampened the Administration's ardor for discussion of disarmament proposals of any kind.

Possibility of Agreement. Nonetheless, experts under Stassen's direction have been working on ideas that might provide a possibility of coming to terms with the Russians.

Recently they have come to the conclusion that Bulganin's proposal for a limited area of mutual aerial inspection on each side of the Iron Curtain might be built into a phased application of President Eisenhower's "open skies" plan. This plan, originally put forward at the Geneva conference in July 1955 would permit the United States and Russia to carry on aerial inspection freely over each other's territories.

Inspection has long been the main obstacle to progress on disarmament.

The United States has consistently maintained that it could not begin reducing its conventional forces, let alone agree to a bar on nuclear weapons, unless it has foolproof assurance that inspection that its potential enemies were doing likewise.

Would Apply to Missiles. This principle would apply as much to a bar on long-range guided missiles, which can carry nuclear warheads, as to any other form of armament.

The last round of international disarmament negotiations took place in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee meeting in London last March.

In the course of these talks the United States suggested that this country and the Soviet Union each designate special areas of 20,000 to 30,000 square miles where disarmament control and inspection could be tried out. Nuclear weapons and guided missiles would, however, have been excluded from these pilot area plans.

At this meeting the United States also offered to cut its military manpower to 2,500,000 men if the Soviet Union would do likewise. Troop movements outside each nation's border would be reported to the United Nations under the plan.

98.83 PCT. OF ALBANIA'S VOTE WON BY COMMUNISTS

VIENNA, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Tirana radio announced today that district and local elections in Albania resulted in an all-out victory for the Communist candidates.

The broadcast said in the district elections 98.83 per cent of the voters participated and 98.83 per cent cast their votes for the Red Democratic Front.

The Communists did even better in the community elections, the radio claimed.

However, in 118 villages and in two other electoral districts the list of Democratic Front candidates failed to obtain an absolute majority. There was no explanation.

BILLION AND HALF SPENT ON TOYS IN U.S. THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Nearly a billion and a half dollars, an increase of 12 to 15 per cent over 1955, was spent on toys this year, Gilbert G. Southwick, president of the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A., Inc., said today.

Southwick speaking at the opening of a two-day annual meeting, estimated retail sales at about $1,417,000,000, an increase of $215,000,000 over 1955. He said the figures were based on private reports from key manufacturers, government reports and surveys by independent consulting groups.

WOMAN WITH RECORD LEAVES $50,000 TO GUIDE DOG FIRM

BERKELEY, Calif., Dec. 10 (AP)—A woman who collected eight aliases and a bulging record has left about $50,000 to Guide Dogs for the Blind.

Frances Mathew's first arrest was for shoplifting in Newark, N.J., in 1915. Her last was in 1955 when she was fined $100 for taking a pound of butter from a Berkeley market. She died last April at the age of 78.

She willed her home and everything in it to the Guide Dog organization. Her attorney, Jerome Shapiro, found $20,000 cash in the home.

Pentagon Indecision and Petty Bureaucracy Are Blamed for Lag in U.S. War Planes Production

Some Manufacturers and Air Force Generals Agree That Muddling Is a Serious Threat to National Security — Russia Making Rapid Strides.

(First of a series of six articles documenting a serious situation in United States military aircraft production.)

By ROBERT S. BIRD and TOM LAMBERT

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch, Copyright 1956. WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.

PENTAGON INDECISION in top places and petty bureaucracy on lower levels are seriously hamstringing this country's production of war planes.

This conclusion is based on a six-week survey by a team of New York Herald Tribune reporters. The survey was started after some manufacturers and Pentagon officials had expressed grave concern over the inefficiency, delays and muddling encountered in aircraft programs.

These worries, have been checked and confirmed in interviews with many leading airplane producers and Pentagon officials.

A top Air Force general said: "The delays and lags in the Pentagon in (United States aircraft) programs are seriously threatening this country's strength in the air."

One manufacturer, whose company is developing a critically needed plane, said:

"Most big industry in the United States would go bankrupt in a few months if it had to do its decision-making the way it's done in the Pentagon and throughout the military system."

Security at Stake.

At stake is the national security. Today it is an open question whether this country still has air superiority over Russia. The Soviets already are producing more planes than the United States and are fast approaching us in the quality of their new aircraft. Unless this country drastically changes to suit the situation, our air chiefs say, Russia soon may rule the skies.

The lag in this country's aircraft production is mostly in what is called "lead time"—the time required to bring out a new plane from inception to actual production.

It took the United States eight to nine years' lead time to bring into production its first B-52 heavy jet bomber. It took the U.S.S.R. four to five years to produce its Bison, its Soviet counterpart.

These are both $600-million intercontinental carriers of the hydrogen bomb—the strategic striking arm of the United States and the U.S.S.R. today.

Our Air Force was astonished when a Bison flew in the Moscow air show in 1954, proving that we no longer held a monopoly on this type of plane. There was consternation in our Air Force the following year when the Soviets flew 12 of their Bisons at the 1955 air show, showing that quantities of the big bombers were being produced.

Closing Quality Gap.

The Russians also are closing the quality gap. B-2 took the United States five years—from 1948 to 1953—to produce our first supersonic fighter, the F-100 Super Sabre. By the spring of 1955, the U.S.S.R. was producing scores of its supersonic fighter, the Farmer. At the 1955 Moscow air show, the Soviets publicly exhibited 48.

During World War II the United States experimented with jet engines, but the Soviets did little or nothing then in this field. Yet by 1954 the U.S.S.R. had turned out a jet engine with an estimated 20,000 pounds thrust, far more powerful than anything this country had then. Only now are we starting to produce an engine in this class, the General Electric J-79. The Soviets in the meantime have had two years to improve their 1954 engine.

Why is this country slow in turning out advanced-type aircraft, jet engines and electronic equipment for warplanes?

In an attempt to find the causes, this team of reporters visited aircraft, jet engine and electronic plants and consulted many top Pentagon officials.

Two Broad Reasons.

There emerged two broad reasons for excessive lead time. 1. Indecision in Pentagon aircraft planning and programming, and Air Force conservatism and rigidity in holding manufacturers to Air Force "rules" while the plane is being built.

2. The sudden, new complexity of supersonic-electronic warplanes. This applies to the U.S.S.R. as well as this country.

Coinciding with these findings came a frank admission from an Air Force general who participates on the top level in United States aircraft programs.

"One of the major factors in lead time is administrative delay," he said. "That adds perhaps 20 or 25 per cent to production time."

He laid much of the blame on an ever-growing number of Defense Department and Air Force committees and groups which must approve an aircraft program before it gets under way.

"The compounds delay when engineering changes or alterations are suggested for aircraft," he said. "If you want to add something or change something, approvals from multiple committees are necessary."

Costly Justifications.

He further pointed out that the Air Force must justify its aircraft programs annually to Congress to obtain funds to carry them out, and must explain its programs whenever there is a change of high-ranking personnel in the Air Force or the Administration.

The B-52 program was well

THE CARDINAL MINDSZENTY STORY Cardinal Imprisoned by Reds, Questioned Night and Day for 16 Days and Tortured Prelate Finally Signs Confession, Adding Cryptic Initials to Indicate He Acted Under Duress, but Captors Discover His Trick.

This is the second in a series of articles in which the Rev. Joseph Vecsey, a lifelong friend of Cardinal Mindszenty, recounts the Cardinal's experiences while he was a prisoner of the Communists. The material was given to Fr. Vecsey by the Cardinal in a series of conversations after his release. Additional material has been added by Fr. Vecsey in parentheses, where necessary, for explanatory purposes. The Cardinal gave Fr. Vecsey full authorization to tell his story to the world.

By CARDINAL JOSEPH MINDSZENTY
As Told to Father Joseph Vecsey.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

I HAD BEEN CONVINCED that sooner or later the Bolsheviks would arrest me. This is their way. On Nov. 19, 1948, my secretary, Fr. Andrew Zakar, had been arrested just after he had said mass in a convent in Esztergom. He was picked up on the street by the political police. They gave no reason. They have taken many others in this way. On Dec. 23, my residence in Esztergom was searched by the political police. During the search, two of my priests were arrested in my home—Fr. John Fabian and Fr. Imre Boka. They were arrested to be prepared to support charges against me, I am sure. I protested to the political police, but it meant nothing.

Often I had made it clearly understood that the Church would not abide by tyrannical orders and would especially never allow the Government to take over the church schools. As long as they left me free, I was determined that the Church would not compromise. Whenever there was the opportunity, which came often, I spoke out against them and their godlessness, particularly after they went ahead and took over the schools in the summer of 1949. I was not afraid. Neither prison nor the Bolsheviks are strangers to me.

Arrested Twice Before. (Twice before the Cardinal had been arrested, once as a young priest in 1919, when he wrote a political weekly attacking Bela Kun during a four-month Communist reign of terror, and again five months later in 1944-45 by the Nazis. He was liberated just before the Russians approached the city.)

When the day came—it was the day after Christmas 1948—I was in my residence in Esztergom. The political police came for me in a car. There was time to put some things into a bag and then they drove me straight to their headquarters at 60 Andrássy street in Budapest. (I was arrested in the evening by a squad of 16 officers armed with automatic rifles. His mother was staying at Esztergom with him. She asked to accompany him but the police refused.)

One of the things they did to me at Andrássy street was to take away all the possessions I carried with me, my breviary, my rosary and the soutane (cassock) I was wearing they ripped from my body. I was forced to dress in civilian clothing. They called me "you" in the rude form of the word. This was how they started. (In European custom, it is a marked discourtesy to use the familiar form of the word "you" to a man of the Cardinal's position.)

Questioned 16 Days. For 16 days and nights they hammered at me, squeezed me with questions. My interrogators worked in shifts and only occasionally did they give me a minute's peace, a minute to sleep. Several of them would question me at one time. Then they would work one after the other.

My cell, when I was allowed to return to it, was relatively comfortable; it was not in the cellar. I got very little to eat and the interrogations went on, day and night. I slept very little.

I shall write down more details some day. I shall at that time tell everything which happened to me that I can still rethe organization wore green uniforms, the other blue. There was a saying in Hungary that the only difference between them was that the blue A.V.O. best you until you were blue, and the green A.V.O. until you were green.

(One kind of drug made people extremely talkative. The other filled them with fear which mounted to terror. A prisoner, Fr. Ispánky said, to whom this latter drug was given, became frantic with claustrophobia and would pound the walls with his fists and head. He said the drugs were often put into soup and he is certain the Cardinal was given at least one of these drugs. The Cardinal, however, at least while I talked to him, did not mention drugs, but indicated he had more to tell of his treatment during the days before the trial.)

There are some things I am sure I do not remember exactly. I know that I was in a daze for a great part of the time, because of the continuous questioning.

Outwits Police—Once.

But then one day—it was about the sixteenth day—they put many sheets of typewritten paper before me and told me to sign. I did what they asked and I remember clearly that I put the two letters, C.F., after my name. My torturers were surprised at this and asked me what the letters C.F. meant.

Despite my dazed state, the defense mechanism of the human body worked and even smiling at them I answered, "It means a Cardinal without an office."

They did not seem to believe it, but they were so pleased with having my signature at all that they left me alone and allowed me to be taken back to my cell. But I was mistaken in believing that they would not find out precisely what those two letters meant. C.F. is the abbreviation of the Latin "coactus feci," which means "this I did for a great part of the

Pro-Soviet Shadow Government Is Reported in Control of Syria

Behind-Scenes Rule Said to Be Headed by Lt. Col. Abdul Hamid Sarraj, Who Nominally Heads Army Intelligence.

By RICHARD DUDMAN

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
DAMASCUS, Dec. 10.

SYRIA now is being run by a pro-Egyptian, pro-Soviet shadow government, in the opinion of competent foreign observers here.

Top elected and appointed Syrian officials, these observers report, govern in name only. Important decisions are made instead by a behind-the-scenes executive group that appears to have supreme power.

This group sometimes tells the nominal officials in advance, but sometimes lets them know only after some important action already has been taken, leaving them the job of explaining it.

Heading the shadow government is Lt. Col. Abdul Hamid Sarraj, whose formal title is chief of intelligence of the Syrian army but whose actual influence appears to extend far beyond that post.

It might be expected that the intelligence chief would be in close touch with the army chief of staff, even when he was giving a press interview. It seemed less usual, when a reporter visiting the Foreign Minister demanded a chance to speak to Sarraj, the colonel "happened to be" in the next room.

'Clear It with Abdul Hamid.' In fact, indications are that the rule in Syria now has become "clear it with Abdul Hamid."

Certain foreign diplomats, who consented to discuss the matter only on condition that they not be identified, told the Post-Dispatch they were sure Sarraj and his secret executive group had taken the following actions recently:

1. Arrested five parliamentary deputies, members of the rightist Shaab party.

2. Sent Syrian troops into Jordan to counteract Iraqi forces sent in at the same time, ostensibly to protect Jordan against Israel.

3. Ordered the dismantling of the Iraq Petroleum Co. pipeline across Syria, a move that hurt both Iraq and Syria economically but helped Egypt by aggravating the western Europe oil shortage resulting from Egypt's blocking of the Suez canal.

One diplomat here told the Post-Dispatch Sarraj's shadow government had manipulated the whole series of pro-Egyptian developments in Jordan this year, starting with the firing of Maj. Gen. John Bagot Glubb.

Dissecting the U.C. Defeat

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For the first time in 20 years, University City has voted down a proposition of its Board of Education for the support of its schools. The people apparently have lost confidence in the School Board.

This evidently is because every two or three years it asks for a new bond issue. Why the constant repetition? We've had data on the increased birth rate for some years, we've known about proposed housing developments, so why can't we plan for more than two years ahead?

In 1955 the Board had a campaign for new buildings. Can one believe another is necessary now and for nearly $4,000,000?

Many citizens are irked because, though the Board has in its power to make voting easier by holding a school election at the time and place of the regular election, it refuses to do so. School officials generally express themselves, though not publicly, as feeling they get a more favorable vote when the polling places are separate. But many cities have yielded to the convenience of the voter; why not University City?

A Citizens' Advisory Committee, some say, is a facade and misleading. As one looks over the committee one finds only about half the P.T.A. presidents listed; no former School Board members; none of the chairmen of previous bond issue committees; and only very few of the citizens who are well known. Is this committee simply a front?

Now for something constructive. The schools must be supported and supported well. To be supported well there must be confidence in the Board and its officers. Twenty years ago University City lost confidence in its Board and it defeated a proposed levy for general school support. The big job then was to restore confidence; perhaps it is the same now.

Why not do as was done then: invite the citizens to a mass meeting, let them organize and study the problem?

As a result of the activities of the Citizens' Committee 25 years ago, considerable interest was aroused in University City and the voters said that men were elected to the Board conscious of the importance of good public relations and of working very closely with the community. The Board of Education brought two outstanding superintendents to University City, built new buildings, raised salaries and did many other things to promote good schools.

New the school need help again. Maybe we need to profit from history.

UNIVERSITY CITY.

Infringement

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee is concerned over a report that the Board of Election Commissioners has been using police information concerning alleged "subversive activities" in judging the fitness of some precinct election officials to continue on their jobs, and that it has caused several people to resign in the face of these accusations.

The only reasonable standards for such positions can be those of citizenship, lack of any criminal record, and adequate abilities to read, write and do arithmetic.

SAMUEL B. GUZE,
Chairman, St. Louis
Civil Liberties Committee.

Heads in the Sand

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

President Eisenhower expressed his wish to maintain our friendship with Egypt and Israel, a most commendable attitude. While friendship and good will toward all peoples provide the proper moral basis for a foreign policy they are by no means a foreign policy in themselves.

Unfortunately, it seems this was not only the basis but the essence of our foreign policy in the Middle East for the last several years and apparently nothing has changed.

Israel, which has been striving for a peace settlement for the last eight years, is requested to relinquish the Gaza strip which was hers to begin with and which had been used by Egypt as a base for attacks.

Egypt, which has not been willing to reach a peace settlement, receives everything which could possibly be used to exert pressure on Israel to come to a settlement. The result inevitably will be a return to the previous unstable truce.

We know that sanctions against Israel by cutting off economic assistance (or threatening to do so) have been quite effective in the past to make her comply with whatever was asked of her.

Why not try to apply similar pressure on Egypt?

There is one nation among the warring parties in the Middle East which is by heritage and economic political outlook our ally. That is Israel! If we can't win to our side the dictatorship of Egypt, at least let us not weaken and lose our democratic friends.

HANS LOW,
Edwardsville.

Impracticality's Peak

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The suggestion from Allen Klein, Mount Vernon, N.Y., that President Eisenhower appoint Mr. Stevenson his Secretary of State is a good one but impractical. It would be like the General calling in the private for advice, and that is never done. Just imagine the President conceding to "that guy."

MRS. HAZEL FITZGIBBON,
Lawrenceville, Ill.

Fair All Around

How would St. Louis's important Negro minority fare if the Charter Freeholders adopted the 7-7-1 plan for the Board of Aldermen? Under this reform, seven aldermen would be elected by wards, and the Board President and seven others would be elected by the city at large.

An examination of the 7-7-1 proposal in the light of the defeat of the anti-discrimination bills last Friday might prove enlightening to those who fear 7-7-1 would work to the detriment of the Negro minority.

Both of the "at large" voices heard Friday were in favor of a moderate anti-discrimination bill. These were the voices of Mayor Tucker, who addressed the Board, and Board President Donald Gunn. Both of these officials are elected by the city as a whole and of necessity must take a city-wide view of legislation.

It also is interesting to note that Alderman A. J. Cervantes, who evidently has city-wide ambitions, voted Yes. Two years ago he voted No, and in the Democratic primary of 1955 he was defeated by Mr. Gunn for his party's nomination for Board President. Mr. Gunn then went on to trounce Republican Charles E. Albanese, who had voted against the anti-discrimination measure earlier.

Who says the minority's voice is not heard by those who hold city-wide office or have their eyes on same?

It is worth noting, too, that two other aldermen who usually take a broad, city-wide attitude toward local legislation also voted for the anti-discrimination bills. They are Republican William A. Stolar in the Twenty-eighth Ward and Democrat William K. Gardner in the Twenty-fifth. They are the type of men who would be attracted to the city-wide or "at large" posts under the 7-7-1 plan.

Accordingly, under this plan it is more than likely that six or seven "at large" votes would have been cast for the Tucker-Gunn approach to the anti-discrimination measures. The Board President's vote would have added another. At least one additional vote would have been forthcoming from among the aldermen elected by districts, for if the new districts were fairly drawn, as they should be, at least one of the seven ward aldermen would be a Negro, and possibly two.

Thus it can fairly be said that the bill to bar discrimination in places of public accommodation, which failed by a 12-to-14 vote in the present Board of Aldermen, most probably would have been passed, 8 to 7 or 9 to 6 or 10 to 5, in a board organized on the 7-7-1 plan.

Who says the 7-7-1 plan would fail to give minorities fair representation? We do not think it would give them over-representation, since their interests would be balanced in the new Board of Aldermen with the interests of the whole community. But neither would it under-represent them. In fact, the 7-7-1 plan probably comes as close to all-around justice as any plan could.

The anti-discrimination bills aside, the 7-7-1 Board in our opinion clearly would be best for St. Louis. By requiring the election of more than half the aldermen from the city at large, the plan would create conditions under which the legislative body would be most responsive to the good of the whole community. And by requiring the election of at least seven aldermen by wards it would be fair to racial, national and neighborhood minorities as well as to the majority. No other plan yet proposed to the Freeholders meets both these objectives.

Iceland Reconsiders

Soviet Russia's behavior in Hungary has played a big part in Iceland's decision to allow American military personnel to remain on the tiny island as a part of the North Atlantic alliance forces.

It was only last March that Iceland, noting the relaxing of tensions between East and West, asked the United States to get out. The June elections brought strong popular support and a strong left-wing coalition government. Two months later formal request for evacuation was filed with NATO. Last month, NATO and Icelandic teams began negotiations at Reykjavik.

Then came the slaughter in Hungary and the Iceland government did some reconsidering. So the United States is not going to lose the $150,000,000 Keflavik air base that it completed in 1951. And there are indications that Iceland is to receive economic assistance in connection with its failing fish industry. Soviet Russia's self-revelation in Hungary thus results in a strengthening of NATO.

Where Industry's Power Goes

Cogent new reasons for the Government to build some commercial-scale atomic power plants have been brought out at a conference of 175 industrial leaders of New York State at the University of Buffalo.

The industrial development of the country is being disadvantaged by the demands of the Atomic Energy Commission's nuclear plants for a huge and growing share of the total production of power. So declares the New York State Commerce Commissioner, Edward T. Dickinson. He reports that the AEC's installations will use one fifth of all the industrial electric power generated in the United States this year.

The consequences are, Commissioner Dickinson says, that industry is being deprived of part of its fair share of the available power supply, with prospects of increasing deprivation.

Accordingly, he proposes that the AEC make itself somewhat self-supporting power-wise. He suggests a 2,000,000-kilowatt atomic power plant at each of the commission's major installations, to supply the needs there. This is similar to the sensible proposals made by Senator Gore of Tennessee and Representative Hollifield of California to the last Congress as a means of satisfying members who feared that public atomic plants would compete with private utilities for the general market.

Exclusive of the industrial consideration, there is more than ample reason for public initiative to put steam behind the development of atomic power plants. Commissioner Dickinson well expressed the larger concern when he said: "Our world leadership depends upon progress in the development of atomic energy and its commercial applications fully as much as it does on the development and stockpiling of nuclear weapons."

But the issue of an ample rather than a pinched supply of electric power for expanding American industry is important enough in its own right. It demonstrates in a particularly understandable way that those who oppose public nuclear power plants on the grounds of socialism are actually standing in the light of capitalism.

General Motors, the Aluminum Co. of America and the Ford Motor Co. formerly consumed the major portion of industrial electric power. Now the Atomic Energy Commission outstrips them all. Its demands admittedly must be met, and at the highest priorities. But in view of all the damage being done by AEC's present inert policies toward atomic power development, is there really any justification for deferring longer an order to the commission to help support itself?

How to Strengthen the Words

This is Human Rights day, eighth anniversary of the adoption of the United Nations Declaration on Human Rights. As President Eisenhower says, the occasion takes on solemn meaning from the horrors in Hungary. The Soviet Union's brutal assault on the Hungarian people—now apparently reaching a new peak of repression as the flickering flame of independence refuses to die—does indeed do violence to virtually every tenet of the Declaration.

In addition to a Declaration, however, the United Nations formulated a Covenant on Human Rights, by which nations that believe in human rights can give to their faith the binding force of a treaty commitment. President Eisenhower's words would carry greater weight if the United States had ratified the Covenant. Unfortunately, Secretary Dulles soon after taking office abandoned the effort for ratification. The Covenant has been opposed by some Southerners and by ultranationalists who see it as a challenge to "national sovereignty."

During the Middle East crisis President Eisenhower rededicated this country to the United Nations. Is it not time to review his policy of letting the Covenant on Human Rights languish? A strong fight for ratification would make clear to the world that this country, for one, stands ready to translate abstractions into international law.

Language as Good Business

The State Department is not alone in its natural concern for foreign language training suitable to a nation with world-wide interests. Many of our great corporations, spread around the world, are bumping into the general American lack of knowledge of other people's tongues.

These companies are doing something about it, however, on the practical theory that knowing a customer's or employee's language is just good business. Management Record, published by the National Industrial Conference Board, has surveyed 25 large firms which have had experience in language training of employees.

Since, as the publication says, an accountant in Venezuela may need no knowledge of Spanish while a salesman in Africa may desperately need to know Afrikaans, the companies vary their training to suit the situation. And generally they avoid the leisurely type of study found in high schools and colleges, and instead use the intensive training employed by the Armed Forces in World War II.

One company, for example, arranges a course lasting only two weeks by requiring six or seven daily hours of instruction. An oil firm in South America requires employees to study Spanish eight hours a day, five days a week, for a period up to four weeks.

The companies have found that their employees can gain a rudimentary knowledge and a basic vocabulary necessary for a particular job in a short time. The condensed courses thus provide a start, and the employee is expected to continue his learning on the job in the course of "learning by doing." As one firm states:

It is our belief that an intensive course taken upon arrival in a foreign country is of more value because the employee begins using his new knowledge at once and thus further intensifies his learning. There is no in-between period for forgetting.

The two principles of the intensive course and of immediate use of what is learned have been found to be the best means of teaching a foreign tongue quickly. Not every school can use this method, and it does not replace the more traditional methods of scholarship. But the companies are interested in results. And one result is that more and more Americans are learning to find their way around in another man's tongue.

Sen. Humphrey's Defense of NATO

Now that Vice President Nixon has announced that the United States will not allow the Suez affair to deepen the disagreement with its West European allies, Great Britain and France, it is only fair to credit Minnesota's Democratic Senator Hubert Humphrey for his part in averting a policy of punitive toughness.

After learning that an influential State Department group wanted to withhold all American help in the European oil shortage until after the last English and French soldiers had left Egypt, the Senator got in touch with Deputy Under Secretary Robert Murphy and other State Department officials. He said that while he favored American support of the Asian and African demand for immediate withdrawal, it would be a grave mistake to seek to cultivate new friends at the expense of old ones.

The Asian-African bloc, he said, really would not be impressed by desertion of our NATO partners. The Senator also emphasized that in view of the difficulties of the last year, no new strain should be put on NATO. The United States must ship oil, he said, as soon as it received assurance of the withdrawal instead of waiting for its completion.

Five days later, President Eisenhower announced interim shipments of 500,000 barrels a day. Three days later—a weekend intervened—London formally notified Washington that it would call back its troops. And last week the Vice President further cleared the air by emphasizing the primacy of North Atlantic cooperation. Thus the association of the Western democracies was saved from the worst threat of disintegration.

The Unknown Guardians

Judge David A. McMullan, chairman of the Board of Children's Guardians, has very properly taken issue with a recommendation of the recent circuit court grand jury with respect to the agency he heads. The grand jury suggested that Meramec Hills and Missouri Hills, the city's correctional schools for boys and girls, "be removed from the jurisdiction of the already overburdened Department of Public Welfare" and placed under a proposed Director of Penal Institutions.

As Judge McMullan points out, Meramec Hills and Missouri Hills are supervised, not by the Department of Public Welfare, but by the independent Board of Children's Guardians. The chairman goes on to quote the opinion of the National Probation and Parole Association that institutions for children should not be mixed with penal establishments.

This little exchange shows, we believe, how much of a stranger the Board of Children's Guardians is to the community it serves. Too little is known of this agency, the very nature of whose work requires a maximum of public understanding and support. The board could serve St. Louis better if it embarked upon an affirmative program of keeping the public informed about its role in the community and how that role is being performed.

So says Hungarian peasant leader in a basement hideaway during Budapest's ordeal; says rising has exposed fallacies of totalitarianism but begs West to 'keep reactionaries out of our hair'; Western ties with ousted feudalists hurt freedom's cause.

Leslie B. Bain in The Reporter

Late in the evening of Sunday, Nov. 4—a night of terror in Budapest, he said, "It has exposed totalitarian fallacies more sharply than any event before. Our people were beaten, cowed, and for years lived in abject surrender, yet when the hour struck they all streamed out of their homes. Communists and non-Communists alike, to regain their self-respect by defying their tormentors. And look what happened to the Communist party! It disappeared overnight—not forced to dissolve, but by common consent! Have you ever heard of a ruling party voting itself out of existence?"

The talk moved toward the crucial point: How much truth was in the Russian assertion that the revolution had become a counter-revolution and that therefore Russian intervention was justified?

"I tell you," said Kovacs, "this was a revolution from inside, led by Communists. There is not a shred of evidence that it was otherwise. Communists outraged by their own deeds prepared the ground for it and fought for it during the first few days."

"No one in Hungary cares for those who fled to the West after their own corrupt terror regime was finished—and then got their financing from the West. Had there been an attempt to put them in power, all Hungary would have risen instantly."

For the first time during the night Kovacs smiled. He told me:

"I wish you could convince the West and make them keep the reactionaries out of our hair. Many of the exiles the Americans are backing are men who are marked because of their war crimes."

"Some of the voices that come to us over Radio Free Europe in particular are not welcome here. I understand the Americans' eagerness to fight Communism, but this is not the way to do it."

"As long as the West continues to maintain ties with Hungarian feudalists and fascists, we are handicapped in our effort to seek ties with you. Tell your people to help us by selling democracy to the Hungarians, rather than White reaction."

After eight years in Siberia, Kovacs was returned to Hungary and transferred to a Hungarian jail, from which he was released in the spring of 1956, broken in body but not in spirit by his long ordeal.

After what was called his "rehabilitation," Kovacs was visited by his old enemy Rakosi, who called to pay his respects. Rakosi was met at the door by this message from Kovacs: "I do not receive murderers in my home."

So long as Nagy's government was still under the thumb of the Communist Politburo, Kovacs refused to have anything to do with the new regime. Only in the surge of the late October uprising, when Nagy succeeded in freeing himself from his former associates and cast about to form a coalition government, did Kovacs consent to lend his name, and immense popularity to it.

Don Faurot's Great Record

From The Kansas City Star

The old-timers can remember the low state of football at Missouri when the native son, Don Faurot, was called to the coaching job. With his humiliating defeats interest had fallen so low that many persons thought it would never revive.

With Don Faurot, interest came surging back. He had the courage to put the University of Missouri in the big time by playing some of the most powerful teams in the nation, an indication of the high spirit that attracted the greatest of M.U. crowds. And, more than incidentally, the crowds paid off the stadium debt.

In the quiet, extremely intense competition, there is also the suggestion of a coach-teacher. The fact is, he is known nationally as one of the greatest innovators and teachers of coaches in the history of the game.

But in the Big Seven area, Faurot is particularly recognized for his unwavering principles. No doubt he has sacrificed opportunities by refusing to join in the rough and tumble of all-out recruiting. But, against generally strong competition he turned out 101 victories to 79 losses and 10 ties—an excellent record for any coach and, particularly, for the man who stood by his convictions.

There was a thrill even for the followers of Kansas in the dramatic climax of victory seized within the last minute of a great career of active coaching. We expect to hear more of Don Faurot as M.U. director of athletics. Now our congratulations go to his magnificent coaching years.

A Mysterious Passion

VANOUISH THE ANGEL, by Diana and Mel Gillen. (John Day, 282 pp., $3.95.)

... to make a place where Jewishness is as taken for granted as Englishness is taken for granted here." So Yoel Bar Ze'ev explains Zionism to the English country squire who is his future father-in-law.

For the average Gentile reader, Zionism must remain a rather mysterious passion. To be sure the Crusaders hurried army after army toward Jerusalem for hundreds of years—even the children had their own crusade. But the Crusades were fought for reasons of religious pride. The Jews fight reverently to add another book to the Old Testament, a book of homecoming to the land of Jacob, where they will always belong. Nevertheless such passions seem curiously archaic in our well-fed modern age.

Diana and Mel Gillen have told a story of a struggling, vital experiment, of the kind of violent feeling which forged our own America. Yoel Bar Ze'ev (Hebrew for Wolfson) and his English bride, Olivia arrive in Palestine to take up the battle for the national home. This is everybody's fight. On the breakfast brought to the Hagannah sharpshooter was polished silver and a clean starched turban cloth. Housewives burned furniture to cook their meals, then took their turn in the front lines to defend Jerusalem from Arab attacks.

At Armistice, Yoel stands on a hill-top in Jerusalem remembering the old Talmudic story of Rabbi Hillel, who was asked by a Gentile, "Tell me the whole of the Law of the Jews, while I stand on one leg, and I will be a Jew." Hillel answered, "I will tell you. Love your neighbor as yourself." "The good life in Israel and the good man," reflects Yoel, "must differ in no fundamental from good life and good people anywhere else."

Men all over the free world now are fervently hoping that he is right.

Uncle Orlando's Farm

THAT DODGER HORSE, by Dolus W. Lovelace. (Crowell, 18 pp., $1.00.)

To a boy from the suburbs of New York City Minnesota seemed to be at the end of the earth. And Glen Blake was not at all sure that he was going to be happy when his parents decided to send him to Uncle Orlando's farm near Minneapolis for the summer. It was a big surprise, therefore, to find that after a few days he began to like both the farm and his new friends.

The best part of the summer came when Uncle Orlando bought the Dodge. The little Morgan horse had gotten his name because he was so full of tricks and mischief. The Dodge was an extraordinary horse. He proved it one summer afternoon when a dark, swirling tornado hit Uncle Orlando's wood lot and pretty Gail Everett was trapped beneath an uprooted tree. From beginning to end it was an unusual summer. By September Glen had developed many new ideas.

In this story for boys 10 to 15 years old Dolus Lovelace has drawn on his own experiences as a boy in Minnesota and as a newspaperman in New York. Once begun few boys will want to stop reading until the book is finished.

Science Fiction Classic

JOURNEY TO THE CENTER OF THE EARTH, by Jules Verne; translated by Willis T. Bradley. (A. A. Wyn, 254 pp., $2.95.)

One of the very early classics of science fiction, "Journey to The Center of The Earth" has been available only in an English version nearly a hundred years old. This new translation is considerably more readable and, reportedly, closer to the original text. Verne's story of the discovery beneath an extinct volcano in Iceland of a passage leading deep into the earth has served as the basis for many later plots. At the time "Journey to The Center of The Earth" was published it was highly successful and widely read. It is interesting that today it compares favorably to much of the juvenile science fiction being published, and will probably find its greatest readership in this age group.

WALTER LIPPMANN

How to Treat Hungarian Reds in U.N.

WASHINGTON. CONTRARY TO WHAT THE SECRETARY GENERAL of the United Nations had been led to believe by the Kadar delegate in New York, the Kadar government in Budapest is not now willing to discuss arrangements for a visit on Dec. 16.

For all practical purposes that government is not only refusing to admit observers from the U.N., it is refusing to admit the Secretary General himself. How can this refusal be reconciled with the obligations of a member? Surely there can be no real doubt about the inherent right of the official agent of the United Nations to discuss with any government that belongs to the United Nations any question with which the United Nations are concerned.

Kadar

In the Egyptian affair no one, not Britain, France and Israel, not Egypt, not the governments which are hesitating and abstaining about Hungary, has questioned the right of the Secretary General to go to Cairo to implement a resolution of the General Assembly.

Vote Should Be Denied.

On what ground can his right to go to Budapest be questioned now? And on what ground could any member of the U.N. justify its own failure to uphold the authority and to defend the rights of the United Nations?

Kadar's delegate in New York, Mr. Imre Horvath, should be refused the right to speak or to vote in the General Assembly until his government in Budapest admits the Secretary General.

This would be the appropriate reply to what is in substance a refusal by the Kadar government to maintain full diplomatic relations with the United Nations.

In U.N. as in Budapest.

It does not, of course, mean the "expulsion" of Hungary, which is a nation in a lawful and welcome member of the United Nations. Nor is it a withdrawal of the recognition of the Kadar government, even though in law it is not the legitimate government of Hungary.

The proper rule for the United Nations is to deal with de facto governments. But the refusal to let Horvath speak or vote in the General Assembly would be to suspend in New York the diplomatic relations which have been suspended in Budapest.

The refusal to receive the Secretary General is consistent with the fundamental policy of the Kadar government, of the Soviet Union and of its satellites.

Ruled by Red Army.

This is to prevent the United Nations from dealing with Hungary. This policy is being enforced by the paramount power of the Red army in Central Europe.

Because of that military power the resolutions of the U.N. are ignored, its agents are kept at a distance. Hungary is a country under the military occupation of the Red army and the supreme law in Hungary is the law laid down by the Red army.

But this assertion of military force is being rationalized by the claim which has made an impression in many capitals, that the Red Army is acting lawfully in Hungary and that to interfere with what it is doing is to violate Article 2 of the Charter.

This article denies the right of the U.N. "to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state."

Jurists Condemn Kadar.

In this connection, I would recommend the study of a memorandum, first published in the middle of November, by the International Commission of Jurists, which has its headquarters at The Hague.

This memorandum is called "Hungary and the Soviet Definition of Aggression." It contains the clearest and most succinct account available of the events in Hungary which led up to the Kadar usurpation.

I would be surprised if anyone who reads it with an open mind will disagree with its conclusions — that Kadar is a usurper and a puppet, that his government is illegitimate, and that by the Soviet Union's own official definition of "aggression," as proposed to the United Nations in 1953, the Soviet Union's action in Hungary is aggression.

DE PAUL SOCIETY AID TOTALED $239,463

Catholic Charitable Group Reports on Family Assistance for 1955-56.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul, Catholic charitable organization, made expenditures for family aid totaling $239,463 in the year ended Sept. 30, it was reported yesterday at the society's annual meeting at St. Louis Cathedral auditorium, 4430 Maryland avenue.

Msgr. John J. Butler, executive secretary, said the assistance was given through the society's Catholic Family Service and 84 parish conferences in St. Louis and St. Louis county. Members distributed 808,000 pieces of literature in the year.

The contrast between present-day material prosperity and the spiritual and economic plight of some elements of society was pointed out by Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter and Dr. Edmund F. Sassini, director of the society's committee on professional services.

Archbishop Ritter, in a letter included in the annual report, said, "While we are today witnessing throughout the world the contradiction between an unprecedented material progress and a widespread unrest among men, we realize the need for a movement that will restore fundamental values — a movement that will revive the knowledge and practice of the spiritual life."

Dr. Sassini said certain factors of modern economy and living have brought about "tensions and stresses which strike at the roots of family life."

"While there is what might be termed an adequate income in more and more family homes, a growing number of people are apparently becoming involved in indebtedness beyond their capacities."

Stix Employees Bring Presents, Cheer to 1000 in Nine Institutions

Department Store Singers, Storytellers and Other Performers Tour Hospitals, Settlement Houses and Orphanage.

With ice-coated tree limbs and sleet-encrusted ground providing an appropriate setting, jolly groups of men and women distributed Christmas gifts and merriment among 1000 persons in nine institutions here yesterday.

Stix, Baer & Fuller department store's annual touring Christmas party—replete with Santa Claus, carolers, storytellers, magicians, a ventriloquist, a puppeteer, animated snowmen and musicians—left hospitals, settlement houses and an orphanage resounding with the season's songs and filled with overjoyed youngsters clutching their candy canes and balloons.

Two of the groups visited institutions caring for children and the third contingent, carolers, entertained patients and residents at St. Louis County Hospital, the Old Folks Home of St. Louis County and St. Louis State Hospital.

Santa Is Rumped. One of the troupes found itself literally overwhelmed by 150 enthusiastic youngsters at Kingsdon House, 1102 Morris street, where Santa Claus, in the person of Robert W. Pique, a retired railroad employee, was rumped in the crush.

The magic act, too, went momentarily astray when a small girl crawled behind Bey Taylor and snatched a toy gun he uses in one of his tricks. Games, puzzles and other toys gifts to other institutions caring for a total of 2300 children. Scramble for Snowballs.

Children at many places scrambled for plastic snowballs thrown by Mrs. Ellen Honig, who portrayed a singing snowman, like fans fighting for a foul ball. Peter Rich, ventriloquist, and 14-year-old Phyllis Rosenbaum, puppeteer, brought giggles and applause from their audiences after the musical groups that accompanied each troupe had put the youngsters in a holiday mood with lively Christmas music.

Climax of each show was the appearance of Santa Claus. After the initial squeals of delight, only the ringing of Santa's bells could be heard as he strode through the throngs of youngsters, who gazed in wide-eyed wonder, forgetting for the moment their plight.

Mrs. Betty Grossman, who was to lecture on modern art at City Art Museum at 8 o'clock tonight, instead will introduce two color films, "The Search for Heart" and "Images Medieval" at the same time and place.

The films present fourteenth and fifteenth century illuminated manuscripts and medieval legends.

NUMBER IN COLLEGES TOPS 1947 RECORD

1,724,897 Full-Time Students, 559,222 Part-Time, Survey Finds.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 10 (AP)—Enrollment at American colleges and universities this fall topped the peak enrollment periods of 1947-1948 when the G.I. bill helped swell student bodies by more than 1,000,000 World War II veterans.

Dr. Raymond Walters, president emeritus of the University of Cincinnati, said last night in his annual survey for School and Society magazine that it is "remarkable" that "the present advances have nothing to do with the recent soaring birth rate."

He said that this fall's enrollment bulge comes from the low birth-rate period of the early 1930s and from high school classes that were smaller than those of today.

The report shows enrollment in approved universities and four-year colleges of 1,724,897 full-time students—6.5 per cent more than last year—and 559,222 part-time students—11.5 per cent more.

Dr. Walters said the biggest freshman increase is in engineering—8.1 more students—followed by teacher-training—3.8 per cent. These studies, he said, "are in the two fields in which the country's needs are most pressing."

The number of freshmen enrolled for agriculture is down 7.5 per cent, "reflecting farm conditions," he said.

Veterans' Administration figures indicate there are now 418,055 veterans going to college.

The top 10 universities in full-time student populations are:

California, 40,788; State University of New York, 25,851; Minnesota, 25,307; Texas, 24,801; Illinois, 22,831; University of Michigan, 22,185; Wisconsin, 20,440; Ohio State, 20,377; Michigan State University, 16,714; and Pennsylvania State University, 14,689.

CLAYTON COUPLE IS SECOND IN NATIONAL BRIDGE EVENT

Mr. and Mrs. George Rosen-schein of Clayton placed second in their section of the contest for the national open pair contract bridge championship at New Orleans yesterday.

In the Baton Rouge pairs, a special event, Mrs. John Hee of St. Louis and Mrs. Bernice Larson, Milwaukee, led their section and finished second overall. Mrs. Hee and Mrs. E. N. Carlson, Webster Groves, were second in their section of the Arkansas regional pairs.

The national championship was won by the Texas pair of Paul Hodge of Abilene and Ben Fain of Houston; second place went to Charles Solomon of Philadelphia and Norman Kay, Merchantville, N.J. The third team was Sam Fry Jr., New York (who writes a bridge column which appears in the Post-Dispatch) and Peter Leventritt, New York.

Carter Beats Weber by 3 Points; Wins Third Match-Game Pin Title

Tom Hennessey 4th In Final Standings; Mrs. Ladewig Victor

By John J. Archibald
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Chicago, Dec. 10.—From the same Chicago Coliseum where just one year ago he had limped painfully to the sidelines with the cheers of an admiring crowd filling the hall, St. Louis's Don Carter strode proudly to a victory celebration last night. The cheers of the thousands of bowling fans jammed into the coliseum were greater than ever for Don, who came from behind on the final day to win his third national match game bowling championship.

The finish was a thriller. In an early evening match, Don turned back the man who had been expected to battle him to the wire. Detroit's Ed Lubanski, but his Budweiser team mate, Dick Weber, closed fast to give Carter all the competition he could handle in the final nationally televised match. Weber had a chance to grab the title in the one hundredth and final game if he could beat Don by 35 pins, but the shuffling Carter was having no part of that. Don won the game, 224 to 202, closing out with a perfect strike, just as a champion should.

Carter scored 308.48 Petersen points to 305.45 for Weber. Weber, who had been handicapped during much of the tournament by an injured finger, finished second. Lubanski was third and Tom Hennessey gave St. Louis an unprecedented domination of the tournament's top spots by taking fourth.

Sixth Title for Mrs. Ladewig. Mrs. Marion Ladewig, Grand Rapids, Mich., was an easy winner of the women's championship, the sixth time she has done so. The most recent time she won was three years ago, the year that Carter too had last won.

Carter's triumph furnished a conclusive answer to the bowling fans who wondered if the knee injury that Don suffered during last year's finals would ever heal sufficiently for him to go through the brutal 100-game grind again. Not only did Don win, but he was never lower than third in the 16-man standings and he averaged 209.7 for the 64 games of match play, higher than in either of his previous victories. Don is the first man ever to win the title three times.

How did the knee feel last night? "Wonderful," Don replied. "The operation must have been a complete success, because my leg didn't bother me a bit." Here's how the 30-year-old native of St. Louis did it.

Lund Defeats Carter. Carter started out yesterday morning less than one Petersen point behind Lubanski, a rugged contender, who had finished high in the finals for the past five years. He was 39 pins back to be exact. A bowler gets one Petersen point for winning a game and one for every 50 pins he knocks down.

It didn't appear to be too promising a beginning when a virtual unknown, Wally Lund of San Diego, took three of four games from Carter (one of them 202-201). But Don's 845 total against Lund's 813 gave the St. Louisan an extra half point under the Petersen system. Lubanski split his first four games, but shot only 784 and Carter cut Lubanski's lead to just three pins.

Then Carter really made his move. Against last year's runner-up, Joe Wilman, Don belted out games of 246, 195, 236 and 222, winning three of them. Lubanski was held to a two-to-two split but Lund and Carter swept into first place.

Carter and Lubanski met in the next-to-last round of match play and the crowd was tense on every pin. Carter won the first one, 194-187. Carter then came from behind with four straight strikes at the end of the second game to win, 201-183. The third game went to Carter, 215-183, and then Lubanski won the last one, 214-206. In total pins for the match Carter led, 809-774, however, and added to his lead.

Weber Makes His Move. Weber, meanwhile, was moving in. He'd recovered the use of his middle finger and was using his regular ball again, and the pins were flying. Weber shot 815 to win three from Bob Kwolek of Detroit. He broke even with Chicago's Chuck Wagner, totaling 753, then walloped an 880 total to sweep four games from the 1954-55 champion, Steve Nagy. That put Weber against Carter in the post-mortem battle. Lubanski, pushed down to third place, met Hennessey. Carter bowled like a hungry man, rocking Weber with a 253 game in the opener. Hennessey, meanwhile, helped out his St. Louis buddies by rallying to hand Lubanski a heart-breaker, 215-214. That ended Lubanski's chances right there.

Weber fought back to whip Carter in the second game, 214-

Wild Pitch? Giles Can Assure Musial No Harm Intended

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (AP)

WARREN GILES, president of the National League, said in a comment upon consecutive-game streaks offended Stan Musial, the St. Louis

Cardinals long-time star, in a column published in The Sport-of what he termed "phony consecutive game streaks."

Musial has a streak going—

774 straight games. The league record is 822, by Gus Suhr.

Giles mentioned a 1955 late-season game in which an injured Musial was dropped to fifth in the batting order, and never entered the day's competition. The Cardinals were the visiting club, and when they got a rally going in the first inning, Manager Harry Walker

subbed a batter for Musial.

"The whole matter is inter," Giles said. "And if it ever becomes possible for me to establish a streak to establish intent, I would rule against such appearances because I don't think Musial was intended to play in that particular game."

Musial had this to say: "As long as the rules are on the books and you abide by them,

I don't see how you can call them phony. I think the (Giles) description is a little harsh."

Giles, attending the major league meeting in Chicago, was informed of Musial's comments, and said: "If there is any one word I used that Musial took offense at, I am sorry because I consider him one of the game's greatest players and tonight great success. Nothing Musial has ever done or will ever do

Billikens at Kentucky Tonight; Rupp's Team Off to Running Start

By Robert Morrison

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 10.—Deep in the Blue Grass country, St. Louis University's Billikens tonight try to recover a measure of their basketball prestige against the Kentucky Wildcats.

This is rare horse country, and the Kentucky basketball players, Ed Hickey told his St. Louis athletes, are like the horses. "They like to run," he said.

The problem will be to keep them from running, and the Billikens, after their defeat at Ohio State Saturday night, have a job on their hands.

"We couldn't have two nights in a row like the one we had against Ohio State," was the hopeful reaction of Billiken Jack Minnits following the 74-54 defeat by the Buckeyes.

This undoubtedly is true, but if St. Louis goes to pieces under pressure as it did against Ohio State, it has little hope of victory here.

St. Louis, a 73-58 winner over Temple Saturday night, has won three games. It defeated Miami (Fla.), 114-75, and Washington and Lee, 94-66, in earlier games. This is supposed to be an off year for Kentucky under its veteran Coach Adolph Rupp, but how can you tell?

Freelish Defeat. Billiken Coach Hickey, whose teams have lost three straight to Kentucky (two of them at St. Louis) since a trio of Sugar Bowl triumphs in previous years, was inclined to view the Ohio loss as freelish.

In field goals, the Billikens were outscored only by two, 25 to 23. The great part of the margin was in free throws, 24 free throw opportunities in the second half, made good on only one.

"I don't mean to imply that the game was that close," said Hickey. "We weren't in it that much, but it was a puzzling contest. We fell behind, of course, and we were forcing our opportunities too much."

As a result of shots taken too quickly, a trigger-happy condition growing out of an increasing deficit on the scoreboard, St. Louis missed shots time after time, shots on which the Billikens had plenty of time to exercise more care. They finished with a 29 per cent field goal average, one of the lowest they had had in years.

But the record shows they had a 273 percentage against Kentucky two seasons ago, and a 271 mark three years ago, and that's an unhappy coincidence as they approach this game.

Todd Has Bad Knee. There are other adverse signs. St. Louis, with its Capt. Joe Todd ailing with an injured knee, felt the pressure of a speedy Ohio guard, player Gene Billard. Now the Billikens face a Kentucky team whose guards are top scorers.

Vernon Hatton and Gerry Calvert, 6-3 and 5-11, are top offensive threats in the Wildcat lineup. Johnny Cox, 6-4 soph, and John Grigler, 6-3 junior, have been the best-scoring forwards, and Center Ed Beck (6-7) is the next man in the scoring list. Only Cox is a rookie.

Kentucky has lost Bob Morrow, Jerry Bird and Phil Gravenmeyer from the team that trounced St. Louis, 101-80, at St. Louis a year ago, but Rupp seems to have not suffered too much from these graduation losses.

27 Points for Thym In Vanderbilt's Win. Special to the Post-Dispatch. NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 10.—Bobby Thym, senior forward from St. Louis, tallied 27 points to lead Vanderbilt to a 90-61 victory over Ole Miss here Saturday night before 5000 fans.

It was a season high for both Thym and Vanderbilt. It pushed the St. Louis star to the top in the individual scoring with 59 points in three outings.

Thym tallied 19 points in the opening half, cooled off in the final half.

Supporting Thym were Hobby Gibbs with 18, Al Rochelle with 14 and Donnie Bates with 12.

Furgol Second, Hawks Get Martin From Knickerbockers for Naulls

By Harold Flachsbart

Slater Martin, smallest but one of the highest-salaried players in the National Basketball Association, has been acquired by the Hawks to fill a sorely-needed deficiency in the backcourt, it was announced today by Owner Ben Kerner.

To bring the smooth ball-handler, outcourt shot and hand-off artist to St. Louis, the Hawks had to give up Willie Naulls, clever Negro rookie from U.C.L.A., to the New York Knickerbockers. Both players were expected to join their new clubs today. They will play against each other in their new uniforms, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Little "Doggie," as Martin is known around the circuit in which he's played seven seasons, is considered West and East as one of the outstanding backcourt men in the game. He can "fire" a team when it seems to be sagging, his dribbling rates with that of Boston's famous Bob Cousy and Slater is best known for his fine direction—his generalship in setting up plays.

Some 5000 St. Louis fans at the Arena Friday got an eyeful of Slater's sleight of hand stuff as he led the New York Knickerbockers to an 107-101 victory over the Hawks. On top of that he had a good scoring night with 21 points and played 44 of the 48 gruelling minutes.

Naulls Has Great Future. Kerner, who has been angling to get Martin all season and had a hand in setting up the New York-Minneapolis trade in which the Texan went to the Knicks, was most pleased with the transaction. He said, "It's very difficult for me to give up Naulls. I believe Willie may have a great future. I fought this move as long as I could but we had to do something to try to stop our team's tailspin. You'll never find us sitting still."

Martin, a member of the second N.B.A. all-star team the past two seasons, is especially adept at hitting the pivot man and his passing is expected to bring an upswing in the play of 6-foot-11 Charley Share, whose slow start this season has been a cause of alarm to the Hawks.

The trade also could result in the switch of Cliff Hagan, the Kentucky swift, from the backcourt to the front line, where he played his entire college career. Hagan, at 6-4 a tremendous rebounder and shifty under the basket, scored 11 points the other night in a matter of about five or six minutes. His presence up front could help the Hawks' scoring. He seemed miscast on the backline.

Martin, who claims he "likes to play against Cousy," hit 35 points as his top single-game scoring effort two winters ago against Boston. He's played in the last several East-West N.B.A. All-Star games and has always given a good account of himself in topflight company. His salary is reported to be about $13,000 a year.

Among Top Scorers Last Season. Last season the former Laker star was among the 20 top scorers in the league with a 33.2 average and also finished third in the circuit in assists, with 445 to Cousy's record-breaking 642. He was the work-horse of the Minneapolis team, playing a total of 2838 minutes, more than Bob Pettit for the Hawks.

Martin is 31 years old and makes his home with his wife and three children in Houston, Tex., where he recently opened a sporting goods store. He is a graduate of Texas University, where he won some All-America honors in 1949.

Naulls, an Olympic team alternate, was the Hawks' second draft choice and is an agile, highly promising front-court player. But the rookie professional was not too consistent, despite an ability to reach high around the basket. His best effort of the season was a 23-point spurge in New York last week against Boston and his potential is unmistakable.

"It was just one of those things," said Kerner. "In order to get something, you have to give up something. We just had to give up Willie to get what we think we needed most—a quick little man to direct traffic in the back court."

SATURDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL. By the Associated Press. Bowling A. F. C., 29, Fort Hood 14 (Rimping Bowl). Kilduff 20, Pearl River J. C. 7 (Hospitality Bowl).

Monuments of Basketball.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 10. — LIFE is getting to be just one plush field house after another.

Here in Lexington is the 11,500-seat Memorial Coliseum. Saturday night, it was the 13,000-capacity, spanking new St. John Arena at Ohio State. Over at Kansas U. is the new edifice that can hold some 17,000. The week previous the St. Louis U. Billikens played at the relatively new Cincinnati U. Field House. Detroit has had one for several seasons. Wichita moved into one last year. Northwestern entertained the N.C.A.A. tournament in its new field house last spring.

But for sheer grandeur, it looks like Ohio State has outdone everybody. The St. John Arena, as it is called, is a house primarily for basketball in a city where football has been king. There are 11,780 theater-type seats surrounding a permanent basketball floor, with roll-away bleachers adding to the seating capacity.

In an area at one end of the court, there is space for an elevated stage that could be used for presentations other than basketball, such as graduation exercises or convention functions. But the building is essentially just a house for basketball.

However, when they built St. John Arena, they also built a field house next to it, all of it financed primarily by football receipts. The field house, a 200-foot by 400-foot structure, houses an eight-mile track, a baseball diamond, a tennis court, and may be used for indoor football workouts.

'Biggest in Country.'

"I T'S said that, with our gymnasium and swimming pool and now these new facilities, that we have more square footage of athletic facilities under roof than any other school in the country," reported Buckeye publicity man Marv Homan. Though basketball at Ohio State had trailed football by far in public interest, the arena was needed. Last year in a 7200-seat Fairgrounds Building, Ohio State played 11 games with an average attendance of 7500, which was 300 over the capacity on the average.

"We put a great strain on the good humor of the fire marshal," Homan said in effect.

This season the Buckeyes drew 9600 for their game with Butler, 6750 on a Monday night for a game with Pitt then 12,800 for the St. Louis game.

Some day, maybe St. Louis U. will have its own basketball arena. But it's far down the list of priority in the school's building program.

One place where a field house has top priority is the University of Illinois. "It's something we've needed for 15 years," said Illinois Athletic Director Doug Mills when it became apparent this fall that the project would be pushed.

A Championship writer, Bert Bertine, noted that new place to play probably would be hailed by visiting teams. "Illinois is labeled one of the toughest Big Ten courts to visit because of the close proximity of Huff Gym fans to the floor," he observed.

Harridge Re-Elected By American League For 10-Year Term

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (UP). — WILL HARRIDGE was re-elected president of the American League unanimously today for a 10-year term.

Harridge, 71 years old, has been president of the league for 25 years and his present contract had one year to run. No salary terms were announced but it was believed he receives more than $50,000 per year.

Tom Yawkey of Boston was re-elected vice president of the league and also re-elected as the American League representative to the executive council.

Lane Fishes for Haddix, Shoots for Deal With Cubs

Rejects 3-Way Proposal For Moon

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 — Frank Lane, general manager of the Cardinals, today turned to the possibility of a multiple-player deal with the Chicago Cubs and the reacquisition of Harvey Haddix from Philadelphia — after having rejected a three-way trade in which the Redbirds would have given up Wally Moon and obtained Bob Rush.

"That would have been robbing Peter to pay Paul," Lane said of a tri-cornered transaction in which the Phillies proposed to acquire Moon and swap Richie Ashburn to the Cubs, who in turn would have sent Rush to the Cardinals.

"We talked three-way trade," Lane said, smiling as he referred to Roy Hamey, Philadelphia general manager, and John Holland, new director of player personnel for the Chicago Nationals. "And I had to leave the room momentarily. When I returned, Hamey and Holland had cooked up this one, which was satisfactory to everyone—except us."

The St. Louis executive pointed out that the Cardinals had been seeking Rush, big bespectacled right-hander who had a 13-10 won-and-lost record and 3.19 earned-run average, but that they couldn't afford to give up Moon, who missed $300 by only two points in his third season with the Redbirds.

The Shortages. "We're even shorter on outfielders than we are pitchers," said Lane, "and that's why we couldn't trade Moon for Rush." Reminiscing the Redbird G.M. noted that a year ago he had offered Bill Virdon for Rush and Jim King, Chicago outfielder, but that Wild Matted, then his counterpart with the Cubs, had demanded Moon and Virdon.

When Lane this time balked at the distribution in the suggested three-way trade, Hamey turned to Pittsburgh, obviously in an effort to get Frank Thomas as rather than Moon, but a straight Cardinal-Philadelphia deal still was not remote.

It was believed, in fact, that the Phillies, needing infield strength, were willing to return Haddix to the Cardinals for Alvin Dark, veteran shortstop, or Eddie Kasko, promising rookie shortstop, and probably an equalizing player. Haddix had a 13-8 mark and 3.63 E.R.A. while Dark batted .275 and Kasko hit .305 at Rochester.

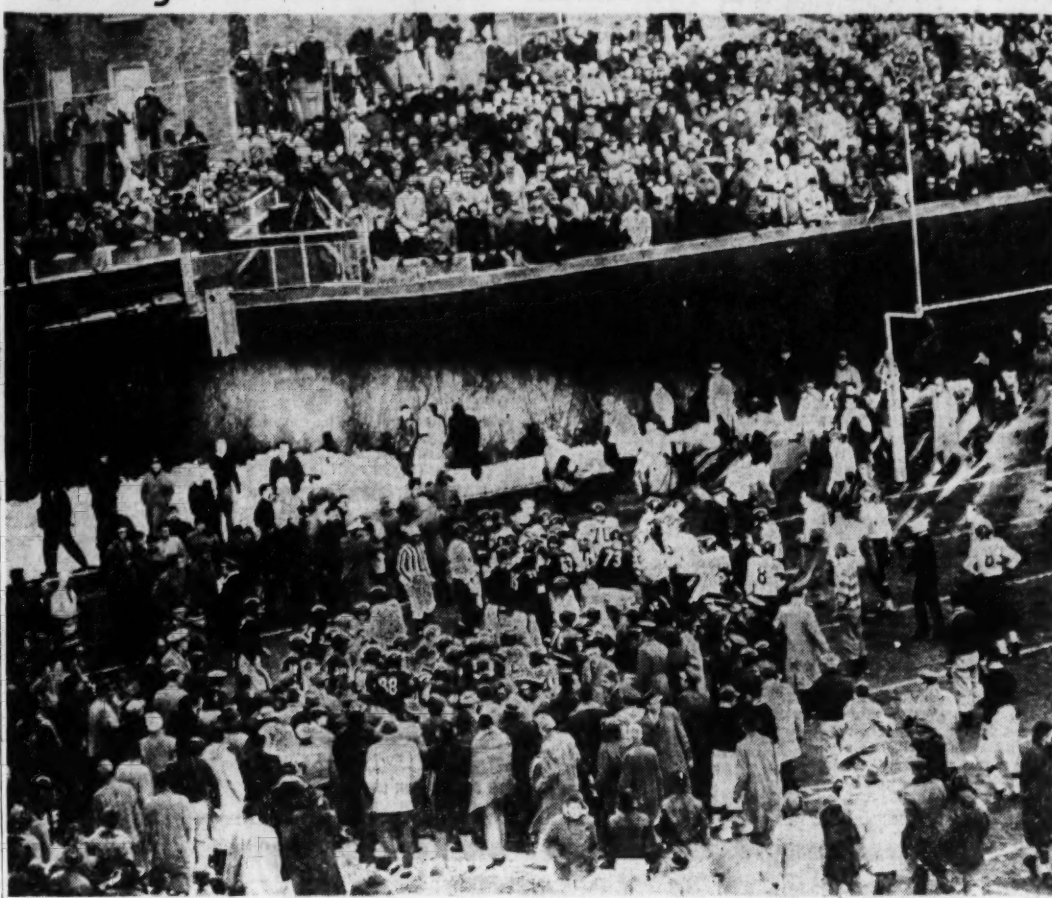

More likely than any if-coming deal was believed to be a proposed four-for-four swap with the Cubs, an involved transaction designed to strengthen St. Louis pitching and outfield a bit and Chicago catching and utility strength.

Slim Chalk. As the major league meetings opened at the Palmer House, however, the only winter trade still had been the eight-player Detroit-Kansas City exchange last week in Jacksonville, Fla., where the Tigers were reported to have received $25,000 and the Athletics were said to have been saddled with an additional $78,000 in payroll by getting Virgil Trucks, Ned Garver, Wayne Belardi and Gene Host for Eddie Robinson, Jim Fanning, Bill Harrington and Jack Crimmon.

The most important items on the agenda as the two major leagues met separately—they're scheduled for a joint session Wednesday at the latest—were a proposal to cut down to 28 players opening day and to begin limited interleague play in 1958.

As big league bosses skidded into the Windy City after rough flights up from Jacksonville, the Yankees, the only news, announcing they had replaced a limited working agreement with Birmingham, Ala., by tying up similarly with New Orleans in the same Southern Association. And they named Phil Page, who had been managing Birmingham, to scout New England for them.

Chicago Fans Get Into Riotous Pro Grid Act

O'Connell and Caroline, Former Illinois Players, Shine in Pro Grid Battles

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—The New York Giants, who can blame everything on the Cleveland Browns if they falter, and the Detroit Lions must clinch the National Football League's division titles the hard way next weekend—on enemy fields.

The Browns will fail to win a division title this season for the first time in their fabulous 11-year history, but they played like champions in the rain and snow at Yankee Stadium Sunday to whip the Giants, 24-7. The defeat cut New York's lead to one game in the Eastern race and the Giants must defeat or tie the Eagles at Philadelphia, Saturday to assure themselves of the title.

The Washington Redskins kept alive their hopes of catching the Giants when Sam Baker's 21-yard field goal in the last 25 seconds produced a 19-17 victory over the Eagles.

Bears Eliminate Cards. The Washington Redskins kept alive their hopes of catching the Giants when Sam Baker's 21-yard field goal in the last 25 seconds produced a 19-17 victory over the Eagles.

The Los Angeles Rams defeated the Baltimore Colts, 31-7, while the San Francisco Forty-Niners downed the Green Bay Packers, Saturday, 38-20.

Detroit (9-2) can win the Western crown by beating or tying the Bears (8-2-1). The Lions won easily two weeks ago at Detroit, 42-10. The Giants (7-3-1) face the same problem at Philadelphia although the Eagles (3-7-1) are one of the weaker clubs. If the Giants lose, Washington (6-4) can win the Eastern title by whipping Pittsburgh (4-7) Sunday at Washington and the Colts (4-6) at Baltimore, Dec. 23.

O'Connell in Lineup. Tommy O'Connell, former Illinois quarterback, who joined Cleveland during a National (Pro) Football League game last night, the action was hot and the game went into overtime before Rochester won, 101 to 100. The teams are running one-two in the Western Division of the league.

St. Louis Pair Wins Title in Handball Meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 10

(AP) — Two St. Louis handball players, Harry Dreyfus and Dr. Art Stickle, annexed their second consecutive doubles championship in the tenth annual Kansas City Athletic Club handball tournament yesterday.

The pair defeated Jack Gordon and George Simpson of Chicago, 21-4, 10-21 and 21-18. Frank Darr of Houston, Tex., won the singles title by whipping Gene Volgarino of Des Moines, 21-12 and 21-14.

NO SOCCER GAMES

Because of the icy condition of the fields, no league or cup soccer matches were played in the St. Louis district yesterday, marking the first such general postponement this season.

Salomon Sells Baseball Club To Miami Man

MIAMI, Dec. 10 (UP)—The Miami Marlins baseball club of the International League has been sold for a reported $250,000 to George Storer, millionaire Miami Beach radio and television executive.

Storer announced he had bought full control of the Marlins from Sid Salomon Jr., St. Louis insurance man who heads the selling syndicate.

Storer said he did not plan to make any changes at present in the Marlins' front office. He said Salomon would remain with the team in an advisory capacity and General Manager Eddie Stumph and Don Osborn, field manager, will remain.

Bill Veeck, the colorful baseball promoter, indicated, however, he may step down as executive vice-president.

Salomon brought the Triple-A team from Syracuse to Miami last year and in their inaugural season, the Marlins finished third and drew 300,000 fans, one of the highest attendance totals in the minor leagues.

Mrs. Comiskey, White Sox President, Found Dead

CHICAGO, Dec. 10 (UP)—Mrs. Grace R. Comiskey, president of the Chicago White Sox, was found dead at home early today.

Her son Charles, vice president of the Chicago American League ball club, was called out of a meeting of the American League Board of Directors, of which he is a member, and told the news. He went immediately to her home.

Mrs. Comiskey was the first woman to become a club president in the American League. She was the widow of J. Louis Comiskey, who was the club's second president. After his death July 18, 1939, she was elected to the club's top executive spot by its board of directors, and has held the post since.

Only one other woman has become the president of a Major League club. Mrs. Schuyler P. Britton succeeded her husband as president of the Cardinals in the National League for part of the 1916 season.

Bills Just One of Many With Upset Baskets

Kansas, Dons Go Rolling On

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—An early-season wave of upsets that tumbled five of the nation's highest-ranked basketball teams left top-rated Kansas and national champion San Francisco untouched today and looking stronger than before.

Louisville (No. 2), Dayton (No. 6), Temple (No. 7), St. Louis (No. 9) and Oregon State (No. 13) all were jolted by surprise defeats on Saturday night and they were joined in mourning by a large number of losing teams unplanned in the national rankings but favorites to win their games.

Kansas, however, kept right on rolling with a 78-61 romp over Marquette and San Francisco rallied in the last four minutes to beat Seattle, 57-52, and extend its record winning streak to 59 games.

Wilt (The Slim) Chamberlain, Kansas' seven-foot sophomore, was "held" to 39 points by Marquette, a comeback from 52 in his opening game against Northwestern but leaving him with an average of 45.5 points per game. He also grabbed 22 rebounds as compared with 31 in the opener. But Chamberlain concentrated a bit more on defense this time and held rival six-eight center Mike Moran to just four points before Moran fouled out. Jim McCoy drew 27 points in a futile effort for Marquette.

No End in Sight

If Seattle couldn't stop San Francisco in Saturday's game, folks have to wonder when the Dons will be beaten. The 1955-56 champions, ranked only eighth so far this season, were minus scoring stalwart Gene Brown, out with a fractured hand, and six-eight Mike Farmer sat out more than half the game with four personal fouls. After leading by 14 in the first half, San Francisco fell behind but rallied in the closing minutes to win although Elgin Baylor had 24 points for Seattle for scoring honors.

San Francisco next meets Loyola of Chicago in a Chicago Stadium tournament Friday night and probably will clash with the winning United States Olympic team, including former Don stars Bill Russell and K. C. Jones, on Saturday. But a loss to the Olympians would not count against the Dons' streak of college victories.

Second-ranked Louisville was upset by Canisius, 76-74, in Buffalo, N.Y. Six-eight Charley Tyra, Louisville star, had 21 points but sat idle for several minutes with a forehead cut and that could have been the difference.

Dayton, runner-up to Louisville in last year's National Invitation tournament, dropped a 67-59 decision to De Paul in Chicago as Ron Lakin led De Paul with 23 points. Dayton blew a four-point halftime lead.

Blow to Temple.

Temple took a 73-58 beating from Kentucky at Philadelphia. Temple ace Guy Rodgers took scoring honors with 27 points, but sank only nine of 35 shots to do it.

The St. Louis Billikens, never ahead after the first 10 minutes, took a solid 74-54 beating from Ohio State in Columbus, O., despite a height advantage as Frank Howard led Ohio State with 22 points.

Oregon State blew an 11-point lead in losing to Portland, 56-55, at Eugene, Ore., when soph. Jim Armstrong's jump shot with 44 seconds left gave Portland its winning margin.

Saturday's surprises also included: Niagara's 83-63 romp over Seton Hall despite Charley Lorenzo's 29 points; Lafayette's 88-79 victory over N.Y.U. on the strength of rebound control; Washington's 49-44 victory over the Oklahoma Aggies after a 70-48 beating by the same team Friday; Yale's 75-70 victory over Fordham as Johnny Lee scored 28 on Fordham's court; and Lehigh's 63-60 victory over Army as a Cadet "freese" backfired.

But Kansas and San Francisco had company as winning favorites, too. North Carolina (No. 3 nationally) drubbed Clemson, 94-75; Illinois (No. 4) rallied to beat Oklahoma, 69-56; S.M.U. (No. 5) pulled out in the last five minutes to beat Minnesota, 91-84, despite 24 points by Rick Herrscher; and Western Kentucky (No. 10) crushed Kentucky Wesleyan, 90-72, among other high-ranked teams.

Rookie Elik Stars in

Barons' 7-2 Victory

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10 (UP)—Rookie B. Elik is a big reason why the Cleveland Barons are just one scant point out of first place in the American Hockey League today.

Elik, the A.H.L.'s leading scorer, turned feeder last night, and led Cleveland to a 7-2 victory over the Buffalo Bisons. Dan Polinski also starred for Cleveland, scoring three goals to help move his team past Buffalo into third place.

Co-operative offensive action by the Providence Reds, gave them twin possession of first place with Hershey, whom they beat, 7-4. Each Red goal was scored by a different player.

Bronco Horvath, flashing the form that made him a favorite of New York Ranger fans, scored three goals and notched two assists in sparking Rochester's 6-0 whitewash of Springfield.

In games played Saturday, Cleveland nipped Providence, 4-3, and Hershey did the same to Springfield.

Wilkinson Is 'Not Shopping For a New Job'

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—"I expect to be at Oklahoma for a long time."

With state statement, Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson dampened speculation of his departure to Texas or the University of Southern California.

The speculation started late Saturday when a group of sports writers in New York quoted Wilkinson as saying he was "definitely interested" in the coaching position at Texas, and had conferred unofficially with representatives of Southern Cal.

However, he said last night he was speaking "hypothetically" in his reference to the Texas job.

"I sure don't want to leave Oklahoma," said Wilkinson, who completed a decade of coaching at the Norman (Okla.) University this month with an amazing record of 94 victories, 8 defeats and 3 ties.

"Texas, first of all, is a great job," he said. "There's no doubt about that. But it was purely accidental that these writers thought I was serious. I certainly don't want to be put in the position of one who is out shopping for another job."

Wilkinson still has five years to go on a 10-year contract. His Sooners won the national championship this year for the second straight year.

CAR ILLUSTRATED IS CHRYSLER NEW YORKER 2-DOOR HARDTOP.

Riding in it is a brand new kind of motion!

The minute the wheels start you know something important has happened.

On rough country road or superhighway, Chrysler's new Torsion-Aire Ride gives you a tingle of new excitement. This Chrysler corners like a sports car.

The wheels ride the contours but the body doesn't—the road just pours under you.

Chrysler's completely new Torsion-Aire Ride didn't just happen of course. To achieve it Chrysler engineers had to develop and apply new principles of design. They wanted a lower car with a lower center of gravity. To get it they eliminated front end coil springs and substituted the greater, smoother resilience of torque rods. The whole chassis and suspension system of this Mighty '57 Chrysler is a blueprint of advanced engineering. From this lower, ground-hugging ride sprang the long, low styling of the new Chrysler... as functional as it is glamorous.

Jennings Team Fifth in State Bowling Event

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 10 (AP)—Only three changes were recorded in the top standings of the men's state bowling tournament over the weekend. In the team division, the 5-Top Bourbons of Kansas City, took third place with 3170 and Dan Hammis of Jennings, took fifth with 3150. Joseph Lechner, Kansas City, took over third place in the singles at 716. There were no other changes. The tournament ends Dec. 23.

Scorer Booted One.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 10 (AP)—A recheck of Saturday night's Auburn victory over Rice showed that the Tigers won 88-68 instead of 86-68 as first carried. The official scorer discovered that Rex Frederick should have been credited with seven instead of six field goals.

Melbourne's 'Morning After'; $16,000,000 Tab, No Headache

MELBOURNE, Dec. 10 (UP)—While Olympic visitors hustled and battled to get home before Christmas, tired Melbourne tried to balance its books today with "the $16,000,000" on one side of the ledger and "prestige" on the other.

No one will ever know for sure what it cost this city to stage the now-concluded XVI Olympiad.

But folks who should know estimated today that the bill probably ran to about $16,000,000—including about $14,000,000 for the building program and $2,000,000 for promotion. A stiff tab, but Melbourne officials are happy.

Melbourne newspapers agreed today that this is now Australia's best-known city throughout the world and even a Sydney newspaper agreed that "Melbourne has achieved an international reputation Sydney will probably never have—or not for a long, long time."

Local citizens figure Melbourne derived several lasting benefits from the games.

For one thing the city received additional housing because the Olympic village's 841 houses and flats will become permanent homes after they are taken over by the housing commission about March. For another, Melbourne's new fame should be new business and new tourists.

And one observer said, "We should get better cooked food when we dine out in the future," because many of the 200 cooks imported here to cater to visitors will be swallowed up by Melbourne's hotels and restaurants.

Gruza Still at the Dock. But Olympic visitors leaving all this, including the good food, behind them. Or they are trying to.

Customs and immigration officials still are working around the clock trying to speed passengers and their luggage home to all four corners of the world. The new Olympic air terminal at Essendon is a new Grand Central Station where, for every passenger clutching a confirmed reservation, there are two clamoring for the few cancellations available on outbound flights.

One place where there is no hustle and bustle is at the dock where the Russian Olympic ship Gruza seemed ready to depart. All the Soviet athletes were aboard, and only high-ranking officials had gone ashore recently for any purpose. But no one, not even Australian port

Athlete Who Gave Up His Place Gets Award For Sportsmanship

MELBOURNE, Dec. 10 (UP). JAMES GRAHAM of Oklahoma A. and M. who freely gave up his place on the Olympic team to another man, was honored today with the Gustavus T. Kirby Award for the greatest act of sportsmanship by any American on the 1956 United States Olympic team.

Graham was selected for the award by a committee of American newspaper men who covered the Olympics.

Graham won a berth on the United States Olympic team by an eyelash in the American tryouts last June. He tied for third place in the pole vault tryouts with Bob Gutowski. Each cleared 14 feet, 8½ inches, but Graham got the nod because Gutowski had one more miss.

Gutowski, one of the six men in the world who have cleared 15 feet, was given a berth on the team by Graham's voluntary withdrawal and he went on to finish second in the silver medal behind gold medal winner Rev. Bob Richards of La Verne, Calif.

authorities, had any idea when the Gruza would sail.

Out at the main Olympic stadium, workmen started in today digging up the carefully built Olympic track on which so many records were set. They're putting the field back in shape for cricket and Australian football.

But they're saving the track material in bags, hoping to sell it.

Thirty-eight of the 46 Hungarian team members who refused to go home to Hungary will go to North or South America, a spokesman said today.

Eight Hungarians Stay. The other eight will remain in Australia, according to the Free Hungarian Association in Australia. But for the time being, all 46 are being given tight protection by Australian Federal Security agents.

The 46, and three others who have not yet decided whether they will go back to Hungary, are living either in the Olympic Village or with Australian friends. In either case, officials said they would be given protection until the Russian Olympic ship Gruza sails from the harbor.

All Russian athletes now are aboard the Gruza, which also is reported to contain numerous Russian secret police agents.

There was speculation that the sailing of the Gruza would lead also to a quick reappearance of Nina Paranyuk, a Gruza stewardess who disappeared from a Russian group visiting the Melbourne Zoo before the games opened and has been reported seeking asylum in Australia.

Many Stars to Remain. Among the eight Hungarians choosing to remain in Australia are three of the team's most brilliant members—four-minute miler Laszlo Tabori, former world walking record holder Janos Samogyi, and Agnes Kertli, triple gold medal winner in women's gymnastics.

Yugoslav woman shotputter Nada Kotlusek has elected to stay in Australia. Yugoslav team officials said today.

Nada disappeared from the Olympic Village nine days ago, leaving only a track suit behind. Yugoslav officials confirmed she has informed them she wanted to stay in Australia. Nada has no family in Yugoslavia.

BEHIND-SCENES GOVERNMENT SAID TO RULE SYRIA

has become available to foreign correspondents for perfunctory interviews.

"He is a nice young fellow, but he hasn't got the stuff to run a whole country," a top official of the Syrian Foreign Ministry told the Post-Dispatch.

"He can run an office all right, I suppose, but it takes more than that to run an entire country. After all, he is only 31 years old. You must remember that this is the Orient where tradition is important and age is necessary for leadership."

Reminded that Egypt's strong man President Gamel Abdel Nasser is only 38, the official contended that Nasser is only a few years older than the Syrian Foreign Minister.

Foreign Minister Explains.
When Salah Al Din Bitar, Syrian Foreign Minister, was asked about Sarraj, he assured the Post-Dispatch that the colonel was no more than chief of the army's G-2 branch.

Bitar explained that there had been "a lot of talk about Col. Sarraj recently" because of a post-graduate Syrian government, particularly against the army. As chief of intelligence, Sarraj of course had to deal with the plot, Capt. Kazem Zehtounch, a Syrian naval officer who was assistant director of the Syrian government, was dead, he attended Sarraj all the facts about Col. Sarraj.

These facts consisted of information that Sarraj was born in 1925 in the north Syrian city of Hama, that his father occupation was a school teacher, that he attended high school in Hama, that he went to military school in nearby Homs, that he studied for a year in Paris at the army staff college and that he became an officer in 1947 and served in an unknown capacity.

As a result the Bonn government has dropped its idea of nominating Capt. Otto Kretschmer to fill the long-vacant attaché post, informants said.

"That is not important," he replied.

He gave the same answer when asked how long ago Sarraj became a lieutenant colonel.

Sarraj reportedly was promoted only recently from captain.

Might Be Shifted.
Pressed for an answer, Zehtounch eventually said Sarraj had been a lieutenant colonel "about six months" and before that had been a major. He insisted that the length of Sarraj's service as intelligence chief must remain a secret "because it is a temporary appointment and he might be shifted at any time to another position."

"These stories about Col. Sarraj come out of the imaginations of the enemies of Syria," Zehtounch said. "Britain, France and Israel are trying to convince the world that Syria is controlled by the army and is becoming a Soviet satellite. This is not true."

Asked if reports were true that Sarraj had imprisoned five members of the Syrian Parliament, Zehtounch replied: "I don't know anything about it, but it is not true. If such a thing had happened, I am sure I would know about it."

Zehtounch objected strenuously to a news story submitted to him for censorship containing the statement that Col. Sarraj is devoted to President Nasser of Egypt. "We all love Col. Nasser," Zehtounch shouted. "He is the commander in chief of all the Arab people and we all love him."

WESTERN ARMS 'UNACCEPTABLE'

By LOUIS NEVIN
CAIRO, Dec. 10 (AP)—Lt. Col. Abdul Hamid Sarraj, intelligence chief of the Syrian army, says his army bought arms from the Communist bloc because Western countries imposed conditions "we were unable to accept."

In an interview granted yesterday just before he left Damascus, Sarraj shrugged off assertions that he is Syria's strong man.

"I am just one of a number of officers under the command of the Chief of Staff (Gen. Tewfik Nizam)," he said.

Conditions Unacceptable.
He said Syria preferred to obtain arms from Western countries for its defense but "we were unable to accept the conditions they imposed." Syria then purchased arms from Czechoslovakia, he said.

Sarraj received me in his office at army headquarters in the heart of the Syrian capital.

He declined to say just what arms Syria has received from the Czechs in the last three months. Asked if a sufficient amount had been received for Syria's defense, he countered: "To defend ourselves against what enemy?"

Syrian officials have charged recently that Britain, France, Israel, Turkey and Iraq were preparing to gang up on Syria. Sarraj said Syria had not received sufficient equipment to defend itself against such a coalition.

Usually reliable Western informants said that prior to the Czech shipments, Syria's principal weakness was in anti-aircraft material. They said the bulk of supplies received from the Czechs was in the defensive category, except for 14 T-34 tanks and an undetermined quantity of SU-100 long-barreled cannon.

The informants said as far as they knew the only MIG fighters in Syria and they believed these were destined, for Egypt.

Conditions Explained.
As to Sarraj's claim that Western countries had imposed impossible conditions to Syria's purchase of arms, an American informant said so far as the United States was concerned the only conditions were designed to prevent any American arms from being used against Americans in any future war. He said the same conditions were imposed on all countries buying weapons from the United States.

Western informants said Syria has doubled the size of its army since November 1955, to between 60,000 and 75,000 men. In addition, about 20,000 civilian volunteers and university youth front cadres have been training for a year in the "popular resistance organization."

have done through force." During the 150 years of Turkish occupation of Hungary, our people used to sign in this manner confessions that had been tortured from them.

It was no more than an hour after I signed before the interrogators had me brought back for more questions. One of them, a member of the A.V.O., laughed at me uneasily and warned me not to pull such tricks on them again. Then they continued my painful interrogation.

The trial took place between Feb. 3 and 8, 1949, at the people's tribunal located at the Marko Street Court. During this week, Cardinal Mindszenty was imprisoned at the Marko Street prison attached to the court.

Tomorrow's installment tells of the Cardinal being sentenced and of his four years of solitary confinement, brightened only by infrequently permitted visits from his mother.

BONN DROPS PLAN TO NAME U-BOAT CHIEF AS ATTACHE

PARIS, Dec. 10 (AP)—Britain has advised West Germany against naming a World War II U-boat commander as naval attaché in London, western diplomats reported today.

As a result the Bonn government has dropped its idea of nominating Capt. Otto Kretschmer to fill the long-vacant attaché post, informants said.

The much-decorated Kretschmer as a submarine commander is reputed to have sunk more than 300,000 tons of British shipping during the war.

When Col. Sarraj became chief of intelligence, Zehtounch reported that Sarraj was promoted only recently from captain.

"That is not important," he replied.

He gave the same answer when asked how long ago Sarraj became a lieutenant colonel.

Sarraj reportedly was promoted only recently from captain.

Might Be Shifted.
Pressed for an answer, Zehtounch eventually said Sarraj had been a lieutenant colonel "about six months" and before that had been a major. He insisted that the length of Sarraj's service as intelligence chief must remain a secret "because it is a temporary appointment and he might be shifted at any time to another position."

"These stories about Col. Sarraj come out of the imaginations of the enemies of Syria," Zehtounch said. "Britain, France and Israel are trying to convince the world that Syria is controlled by the army and is becoming a Soviet satellite. This is not true."

Asked if reports were true that Sarraj had imprisoned five members of the Syrian Parliament, Zehtounch replied: "I don't know anything about it, but it is not true. If such a thing had happened, I am sure I would know about it."

Zehtounch objected strenuously to a news story submitted to him for censorship containing the statement that Col. Sarraj is devoted to President Nasser of Egypt. "We all love Col. Nasser," Zehtounch shouted. "He is the commander in chief of all the Arab people and we all love him."

FURTHER DIFFICULTIES FOUND IN BANK AT ELLENVILLE, N.Y.

ELLENVILLE, N.Y., Dec. 10 (AP)—New money troubles were today to plague this Catskill mountain resort of 4000 persons.

Last week its leading bank, the Home National, was closed because of a $1,300,000 shortage. Its president, 51-year-old William R. Rose, was charged with falsifying records. He denied any personal gain, saying he had juggled books only to help local businessmen.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was expected to start making payments next Friday. However, there was a report that a $75,000 shortage had been found in the bank's Federal Reserve account. The bank's affairs were understood to be so chaotic that FDIC officials might be delayed beyond Friday in paying off the insurance.

HUNT FOR TWO MISSING SHIPS ENDED BY JAPAN, 63 ABOARD

TOKYO, Dec. 10 (AP)—The Maritime safety board announced yesterday that search for two missing Japanese ships has been abandoned. Sixty-three crewmen were aboard the two vessels.

The 2737-ton freighter Towa Maru is believed to have sunk in the Pacific 350 miles off Formosa Nov. 27 with 42 men aboard. A United States Coast Guard cutter recovered a life ring and a life raft three days later.

The 64-ton tuna fisher Ryoyoshi Maru, with 21 men aboard, ran into a heavy storm Dec. 4 en route to fishing grounds south of Tokyo and has not been heard from since.

Ingram Mitchell, who first saw the pouch, was given $500. His rabbit-hunting companions, William Mitchell and Eddie Chambliss received $250 each Saturday.

Business Outlook

AMERICA'S 20TH CENTURY STRENGTH

By J. A. Livingston

The Suez crisis—and crisis is increasingly the word for it—demonstrates anew how powerful, how self-sufficient, we, in America, are. Thirty years ago, the discomfiture of the British and the French, the economic dislocations they are going through, would have sent this country into a financial tizzy. Wall Street would have quavered.

Yet now, Great Britain asks "forgiveness" on interest payments. It may be forced to borrow about $600,000,000 from the International Monetary Fund to get by. In the 'twenties, rumor of a British default would have caused consternation. Today stock prices rally in spite of the formal announcement.

The timing underlines America's 20th-Century strength. We're in the middle of a minor crisis of our own. A money crisis. You're aware of it, if you've tried to borrow money for a house; if you've wanted liberal 36-month terms to buy a car; if you're a small business man and needed funds for expansion. And you don't have to be small.

A Generation Ago... The evidence of tight money, high-cost money, is all around. The rich State of Michigan got turned down on a 3½ per cent bond issue. After long urging, the Federal Housing Administration has raised the permissible interest rate on guaranteed mortgages from 4½ per cent to 5 per cent—because home-buyers have not been able to locate 4½ per cent lenders. The Federal Reserve Board has authorized commercial banks to pay 3 per cent on time (savings) deposits. (The last change was in 1936, when the maximum was cut from 3 per cent to 2½ per cent.) Promptly the giant Chase Manhattan Bank of New York notified depositors it would pay the maximum. To get money banks will pay more money!

A generation ago, an economic crisis in Britain and France would have precipitated a money crisis here. Europeans would have pulled funds out of the United States—as actually happened in World War I, when the pound briefly went to $7. In contrast, today European trouble sends funds to the United States—for safety.

New York's the world money center, not London, not Paris, not Amsterdam. The pound goes down relative to the dollar.

A generation ago, a European crisis would have threatened United States economic stability. For the United States was dependent on Europe for 50% of its exports. Today that's down to about 25%, or $4,500,000,000 out of $18,000,000,000. Let us assume Europe trims purchases from the United States by 20% or 25%. And that's a high assumption. That would be about a billion-dollar drop in trade. In a $414,000,000,000 economy, that's not enough to be upsetting. Only 0.3%.

The absence of domestic panic is partly the result of greater sophistication—greater understanding of the relationship between the United States economy and the world economy. It's partly faith in the outlook for production and employment. Despite tight money, inflation, not deflation, is still our prime worry. The Federal Reserve Board has been pumping a little extra credit into the banking structure. This is primarily seasonal—to provide the extra funds needed for Christmas business. But the Reserve has not tried to make borrowing easier. It hasn't been forcing down interest rates.

Unanswerable Question.
Here is a paradox. As long as business is good, interest rates will stay high. And they could move higher, squeezing credit more. In the last six years, bond prices have moved opposite to industrial production. To curb inflation tendencies, the Federal Reserve has allowed interest rates to advance. So bond prices fell.

When recessionary trends developed—when auto sales, housing starts and employment slumped—the Reserve Board loosened credit. Interest rates fell. Bond prices rose. Thus high-grade corporate bond prices declined during the rise in industrial production in 1952-53, rose when production declined in 1953-54, and now they're falling again as production climbs to another peak.

Does that mean we must await another recession for a rise in bond prices? That's a question no one can duck—whether he's a government official, banker, business man, insurance company executive, securities dealer, investor, worker, or consumer. The answer is, not necessarily. You, I, and the other guy could put aside some "prosperity" for tomorrow. We could increase our savings—thus providing funds for those who have to borrow. But that leads to an unanswerable question—will we?

IRREGULAR CLOSE MARKS STOCK TRADE

Profit-Taking Follows Upturn in Steels, Motors and Aircrafts.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—The stock market closed irregularly lower today after early gains were shredded in late profit-taking.

Pivotal stocks wound up the day with a mixture of gains and losses stretching to 1 or 2 points.

Steels and motors enjoyed active turnover in the initial hours and rails were mixed. Later, the edge was taken off the gains by motors while aircrafts came up to share leadership with steels.

Most gains by the leading steels melted away in the last hour and rails as a group took a turn for the worse. Aircrafts, however, clung to the upside, keeping some fair gains.

Volume totaled 2,600,000 shares compared with 2,400,000 on Monday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was one point lower at 130.6 at the close. The 20 industrials dropped one point to 236.9, the 15 rails slipped 1 point to 132.4 and the 15 utilities dropped 4 of a point to 71.6.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 1.61 points lower at 493.18 at the close. The index in the first hour of trading was 1.95 higher. The 20 rails dropped 2.4 at 156.24 at the close and the 15 utilities lost 3.7 of a point at 71.58. The 65 stock at 173.10 was 1.05 lower.

There were 1201 issues traded against 1188 last day. Of these 501 closed lower, 454 higher and 246 unchanged. There were 28 new 1936 highs and 37 new lows.

The weighted wholesale price index of 35 commodities as compiled by the Associated Press advanced to a new 1935 high of 160.01, up .53 of a point on the day.

London stocks were higher today, the Financial Times index rising 2.4 points to 174.0. Motors shared the spotlight earlier with steels but as the session went on the automotive shares were below their best.

Brokers said that the booming steel industry, confident forecasts for auto sales and less trepidation about the Middle East helped bolster prices.

Pivotal stocks generally kept their advances within a one-point range. But Youngtown was up 5 points at one time and later held more than 3 of this. United Aircraft was up more than 3. Shamrock Oil and Lockhead were ahead about 2 at times.

Leading rails, mixed earlier, showed a number of fractional losses. Behind were Santa Fe, Southern Railway, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Union Pacific.

Alcoa late held a gain of about 2. Gains of a point or more were posted by Chrysler, Goodrich, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Zenith, Kennecott Copper, Alcoa Chemical, Hiram Walker and Shamrock.

United States Gas dropped fractionally in two big trades, one for 13,800 shares, the other for 10,000.

Revlon Inc., newly admitted to trading, opened at 28 1/2 and trimmed this slightly in later dealings.

The above changes reflect changes before the final profit-taking.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES ARE FIRM IN LIGHT TRADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—The bond market continued to move moderately higher in active trading late today.

Convertible debt advanced with gains extending out to almost three points. Rails, investment quality issues and last-curve issues were higher while utilities were narrowly mixed.

United States Government bonds were firm in light transactions. Over-the-counter dealers quoted long range issues up 2-32 while intermediates were unchanged.

Australian and central European dollar loans advanced in a slightly higher foreign section. Australian 3 1/2s of 1968 gained 2 1/2 at 93 1/2.

COTTON OFF 15C TO 60C

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Cotton futures drifted lower today.

Scattered liquidation and hedging met only light trade buying.

The Department of Agriculture in its December report estimated the 1956 cotton crop at 13,303,000 bales. This was 150,000 bales higher than the official forecast in November. The report had only momentary effect on futures.

New York, Dec. 10 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 15 to 60 cents lower than the previous close.

Naming of Herter to State Dept. Is Well-Received in Washington

Cited as Good Administrator With Knowledge of Foreign Affairs—Supports Collective Security, Foreign Aid.

By JAMES RESTON
© New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—Christian A. Herter's appointment as Under Secretary of State has been well received throughout the capital.

He is a good administrator. He has studied foreign policy most of his mature life. He is an enthusiastic supporter of collective security and foreign aid. He has served in both the foreign service and Congress, and he is a modest, attractive and straightforward man.

The criticism of Herbert Hoover Jr., whom Herter will replace Feb. 1, was not that he was a dunderhead in foreign affairs, but simply that he was not the best man available for the job. Indeed, he was the first man to make the point when the job was suggested to him, and he took it reluctantly.

Hoover's experience in foreign affairs was limited. He is a sincere and industrious but shy man. He dreaded his contacts with both Congress and the public, a serious handicap in a nation whose foreign policy depends on the consent of the people, and he regarded collective security and foreign aid programs as a distasteful though perhaps necessary evil.

Will Need Time.
It will take time for Herter to establish the close personal relations with the White House necessary to serve effectively as an adviser to the President during Secretary of State Dulles's absences from the capital. It will also take time for him to master the intricacies of the State Department and the rest of the executive branch, where he has little personal experience.

He is sincerely interested, however, in the morale of the foreign service officers. He started his government career in that service. After the last war he was the principal founder of the School of Advanced International Studies in Washington for which he personally raised about $500,000, and he can be counted on to take an interest in the career officers, who play so important a part in the conduct of American foreign policy.

The role he plays here, of course, will depend primarily on what Dulles wants him to do, and how Dulles decides to conduct his own job in the coming months. Hoover was acting Secretary of State more than one-third of the time since coming into the State Department, and thus was very much concerned with policy questions. There are some indications that after his recent serious illness, Dulles will spend more time at home and thus delegate more administrative responsibilities to his new Under Secretary.

Other changes in top foreign policy personnel may be coming along that will influence Herter's responsibilities. For example, Hoover was chairman of the Operations Coordinating Board of the National Security Council. It was his responsibility in this post to see that the NSC policies approved by the President were carried out by the various departments, agencies and officials of the Government. Hoover's stewardship in this job was widely criticized, particularly by the foreign affairs advisers who served the President on the White House staff.

Herter will certainly serve on this board, but it has been proposed to the President that Vice President Richard M. Nixon be made chairman of the OCB to give him wider experience in the executive branch of the Government and sharpen up the activities of his committee.

Revival of Idea.
Now that Hoover has resigned it is also possible that Mr. Eisenhower will revive his idea of bringing former Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith into the White House as a presidential adviser on foreign policy.

The President had this all set last month, but Hoover objected and rather than have a public row, the idea was shelved. A beginning, however, has been made on the task of strengthening the Administration's personnel team, and other changes are in the offing. The posts of deputy under secretary for economic affairs, assistant secretary for economic affairs, counselor of the State Department, and assistant secretary for Latin American affairs are all open.

What is done about the economic posts will be of special importance. In the next Congress, the Administration will be asking for more money for foreign aid, and particularly for more authority to spend that money in places and for purposes selected by the Administration.

This means that confidence in the men running foreign economic policy will be vital if the Administration is to go forward with the programs it is now discussing to deal with the consequences of the crisis in the Middle East and Europe.

CARVED SYMBOLS IN BOLIVIA MAY BE ABORIGINAL WRITING

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP)—Symbols carved in rock which may be the traces of an early civilization have been found in a Bolivian jungle near the headwaters of the Amazon, an American explorer said yesterday.

George Michanowsky, president of the Amazonia Foundation and leader of the four-month expedition which returned here recently, said the petroglyphs were found when the explorers decided to investigate a legend told by Indians.

The present tribesmen have no written language, but their folklore refers to a "river of writing."

Michanowsky said scholars have generally believed no aboriginal tribes on the American continent knew how to write prior to the arrival of European explorers.

Peiping Using Ex-Nationalists.
HONG KONG, Dec. 10 (AP)—Communist China is giving government posts to many "re-educated" Nationalist Chinese officials returning from exile, says the Peiping radio. They are needed because of the shortage of trained administrators. Peiping did not say how many were involved.

NOT A CHEAP SKATE

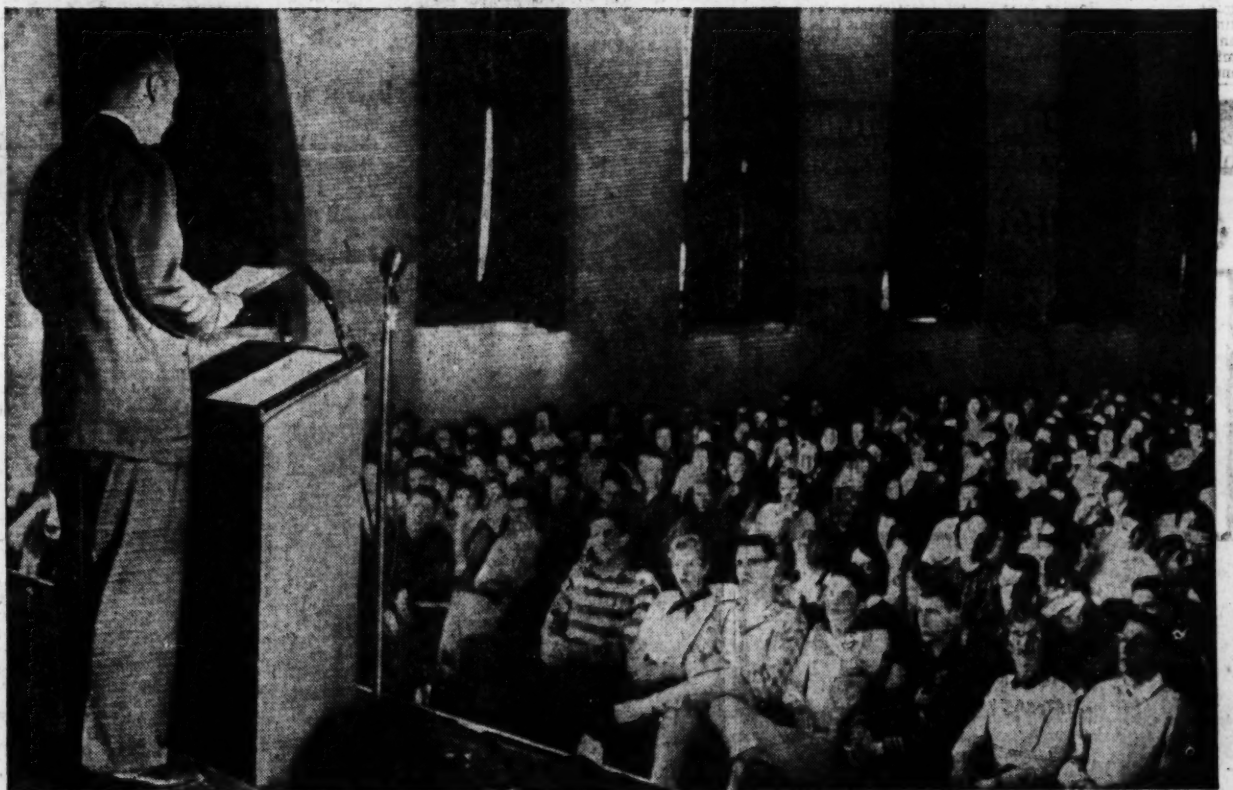

The thought occurred to Bernie Schmidt of Ecorse Township, near Detroit, that since almost everything else is power-driven, the principle might work on roller skates. So, he mounted a gasoline engine on a padded metal plate and fitted straps to hold it to his back. The engine and one skate are connected with a flexible drive shaft. Schmidt, scooting around a parking lot today, demonstrates that his invention does work.

No Jobless Pay

So This Santa Plays The Stock Market

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (AP).

Nobody worries about Santa Claus—but he has his problems. Right now he's playing the stock market in an effort to pile up enough cash to tide him over from one Christmas to another.

HAL BOYLE

Even a jolly old saint likes to eat regularly, said Squire. "I sure wish I could get on a steady payroll. As it is, my work is highly seasonal, only about two months out of the year."

"I can't get enough consecutive weeks of work to draw unemployment insurance. I had to go into the stock market. This year I hope to top the $3000 a year bracket."

Santa is Lucky S. Squire, a portly gentleman in his fifties with a genuine foot-long white beard. It's the real beard, he feels, that sets him apart from the phonies in the ho-ho-ho-and-red-stocking-cap industry.

"I gave up two other careers to take up this one," said Squire, who is top man in his field and wants it clearly understood he is no Bowery-type Kris Kringle.

Squire, who was born in Hungary (and likes to pun, "I still am hungry"), has been a lay preacher, a physical therapist and a children's camp counselor.

About 10 years ago his old-fashioned mustache began to whiten and the camp kids started calling him Santa Claus.

"I decided I would be Santa Claus," recalled Squire. "It took me two years to grow the beard."

"Since then at least a million children have sat on my lap and told me what they wanted for Christmas. During the season I work sometimes from 7 a.m. to midnight. I've worked for a dozen department stores. I've been on calendars, greeting cards, in newspaper and magazine ads, beauty pageants, auto shows, radio, television."

"Why don't you stick to one department store?" "Each move I made I bettered myself," said Squire, who is a stout (222 pounds) advocate of the free enterprise system.

HE STARTS fattening up in October. Is ready to go by November. His art has its stern demands. Because of his beard he had to give up cigar smoking ("stained it yellow"), he has to avoid spaghetti, and he finds it difficult to drink from a water cooler.

"It is not too easy to be a Santa," he said. "The first and hardest thing to master is the merry ho-ho-ho! You have to be able to break out laughing without any provocation."

Squire has two fancy Santa outfits that cost him $150 apiece ("the ermine is ermine"), and two hard-work outfits that cost about $100 each ("the ermine is rabbit").

HOW DOES SANTA FAIR in the stock market? "Pretty well," he admitted. "I am welcome any time of the year in Wall Street. They all want Santa's money."

"I was in uranium—at one time I had 100,000 shares which could be $1000 or more—but lately I've been bullish on U.S. oil stocks."

"But for real dynamic action give me the commodity markets—particularly eggs or onions. I made $200 on eggs recently, that is, until the market went down again. I'm still holding on."

"I'm licensed to sell real estate or stocks myself. Do you know of anyone who would like to hire a good dynamic salesman, and wouldn't mind if he had a white beard?"

Santa is really worrying that, come Dec. 26, he'll be up a chimney—reading the want ads, forgotten again.

Change for Worse

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

My son is 2½ years old and has me at my wits' end," a mother complains. "I don't know how to cope with him and need help badly. He has turned into a mean snarling child. If anyone speaks to him, he snarls at them or screams 'No,' which is his answer to anything. It's a battle to dress him, wash him, or take him anywhere. He wants everything he sees in the house to play with and screams and goes into a tantrum if he can't have it."

"I've tried giving him things to distract him, but nothing works. He isn't trained yet. I've been very patient, never forcing him to do anything."

"He is an only child and has a very good secure home life. I spoke to my pediatrician about his behavior and he said there was nothing wrong with him. He said to stop catering to him and give him a good old-fashioned spanking, which I had been doing. But it doesn't seem to help. It's getting to a point where I seem to be spanking and slapping all the time. When I leave him with his father he is fine and behaves very well. I can't leave him with anyone to go out to a store. I will appreciate any help or suggestions you may offer."

THIS IS AN EXTREMELY INTERESTING, though perhaps slightly disheartening letter, because it describes so graphically the change for the worse which comes over so many children as they turn 2½. Not all of them become "mean and snarly," but these are typical of the words which even the most loving parents use to describe children of this age.

Two-and-a-half is, by nature, rigid, ritualistic and negative. Almost anything you want him to do, he doesn't want to do. And every single item of the day's routine is likely to become a matter for resistance.

YOU SAY HE IS GOOD with his father, and though you say you can't leave him with anyone long, we would strongly recommend trying to build up his acceptance of a good baby sitter. We would also strongly recommend trying to get him into a nursery school.

You also need to recognize that he is at his worst with you, his mother. This is very discouraging to mothers. Sometimes it doesn't matter how good a mother is, how understanding she is, this kind of behavior still persists. That is why it is important to take some time of your own away from the child of this age so that you will have the strength and energy to keep up with him and cope with him while you are with him. Understanding the behavior typical of this age will also help, but don't just accept it. Figure out ways and means to bypass it or work through it. We believe that you will find help in understanding your son if you read the chapter on the 2½-year-old in Gesell and Ilg, "Infant and Child."

Musical Christmas Tree

By Elizabeth Hillyer

CHRISTMAS music is such a beautiful part of the celebration of the season, the music theme's most appropriate for the trimming of the tree. And there are many ways to work it out, both for the tree at home and for the one at the office, club, or school where the trimming depends more on ingenuity than on put-away ornaments.

All the trimmings for the musical tree can be made for it, although tree ornaments in the shape of musical instruments can be bought, and the variety stores often have little toy instruments that are very decorative, too. To make the trimmings, lay in a supply of gold metal paper, white and bright colored paper and you may want a spray can of gold glitter.

WITH sheet music to go by, draw patterns for notes, single and double and clef signs, and you might also draw instrument shapes. Draw around the patterns on the back of the metal paper so there will be a reverse piece for each shape and paste each pair back-to-back so the gold shows on both sides. Make the shapes large enough to be important, and if the gold paper seems lightweight, add fairly stiff plain paper between the layers of gold.

Singers whose records sell a million copies often are gifted with a gold record. That's the inspiration for another ornament for the musical tree. Cut circles of gold paper for the records and add the grooves that make them realistic. This is easy to do with a pair of compass on the plain side of the paper, because metallic papers will show the pressure marks on the right side. Cut circles for the centers of the records of red, green or bright blue paper.

PIECES of stiff white paper with bars and notes drawn on them take on a decorative shape when they're creased in the center and curled slightly toward the edges. Round boxes can be covered to look like drums.

But this is just a start—the most fun of the tree trimming comes with originating ideas of your own.

There's a piece of furniture at your house which would be twice as nice if the finish were beautiful. Send for Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet, "Furniture Refinishing—How to Do It Yourself," and learn how to bring out good looks you never knew your furniture had. Address Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch and enclose 15 cents in coin, please, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Handicapped Youngster At School

By Angelo Patri

THE new scholar seemed tall for the grade as he entered the classroom, and Miss Cherry seated him near the back of the room so that his height would not obscure the view of his classmates. It soon became evident that he was not doing too well. He was slow about taking directions and seemed to wait to watch the others before doing anything on his own.

Miss Cherry called his attention to his work several times a session, but his response was negligible. Finally, she sent a report home stating that it seemed Steven was unable to do the grade work and asking for a conference with his mother.

NO ANSWER came to the request and Miss Cherry spoke sharply to Steven. Steven did not seem to be impressed and Miss Cherry said a few more words in an even sharper tone. A few minutes later Charlotte who sat at the same table with Steven, had occasion to go to Miss Cherry's desk. "Miss Cherry," she whispered, "do you know that Steven can't hear you when you speak loud to him?"

Miss Cherry was aghast. One whole month that child has sat in her classroom, and she had not discovered he was hard of hearing. "How could I have been so dense? I should have known. But why didn't his mother tell me?"

"I thought any teacher would know to look at him he was hard of hearing," said Steven's mother somewhat tartly. "I have three younger children and I have something else to do than to run to school every time anything comes up. Doesn't the school ever examine children? Do schoolteachers just put them in a room and let them sit there, and then complain to parents that the children don't fit?"

TWO MISTAKES do not add up to one correct action. Granted, the teacher should have discovered that the boy was not hearing well, but how about the fact that there was no record of the boy's difficulty on his record card when he offered it on entering the school? And how about his mother's reticence about the matter? Parents dislike mentioning

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1. TRAVEL. Consulting psychologist David Mitchell has asked this question of many hundreds of his clients. Almost without exception they instantly answer, "travel." Everybody wants to get somewhere, even if he doesn't know where somewhere is. People drive like mad on the highway without caring where they are going—just so they can get somewhere else. It's partly man's innate sense of adventure.

Answer to Question 2. Because the human memory is both perfect and imperfect. Many psychologists believe we really never forget anything, the reason we seem to forget is that the impressions that flow into the mind from moment to moment gradually bury the past. The deepest grief, by and by, fades until it becomes a sacred memory. In spite of yourself, you can't keep up the first anguish, although some people feel guilty in letting this happen. They repeat their grief and keep it alive instead of facing reality.

Answer to Question 3. Probably more so, because science has invented more means of fooling them. As I have said before, a man with proper clothes, lighting effects, and a good bass voice can put doughnuts over the footlights and make people think they are looking at the halos of saints. Ours is an age of science and also of quackery. It's been estimated that even with all our education, quacks swindle the public out of several billions every year.

Can you remember... names? telephone numbers? good stories? Simple, effective rules outlined in booklet, "How to Improve Your Memory." Send 15 cents (coin only) and self-addressed, stamped envelope (name city and state) to Dr. A. E. Wiggam, at the Post-Dispatch.

My Neighbor Says: When sanding edges of plywood it's a good idea to clamp a straight board to each side of the plywood coming out flush with the edge of the plywood. This will prevent your getting a rounded edge on the plywood as you sand.

When not in use, the damper of a fireplace should be closed to prevent heat loss. If you don't use a fireplace in winter, seal the damper shut or close off the fireplace opening with a decorative screen to stop the heat going up the chimney.

They'll Do It Every Time

Adding New Flavor to Cole Slaw

By Edith M. Barber

CABBAGE salad. When I was a child, we never called it that. It was "cold slaw." It was years before I discovered that the "d" on cold should have been replaced by "c." As you probably know, "cole" is the German word for cabbage while "slaw" means cut.

Cole slaw was probably the original salad, although the term was seldom used in olden times. A "biled" dressing was, of course, homemade and is still popular. If mayonnaise is used to replace it, it should be highly flavored with prepared mustard and perhaps a little sour cream. I also like to use whole mustard seed instead of the other type of mustard. If the seed is used, it should be added to the dressing at least half an hour before using so the flavor will be well distributed.

Sometimes, minced green pepper or pimiento is added to cole slaw as much for the color as for the new flavor. Another good variation is combining canned pineapple tidbits or chunks with the cabbage. The grained pineapple is not quite so good in the salad.

Old-Fashioned Cole Slaw. One small head cabbage, three-quarter cup cooked dressing, or mayonnaise and prepared mustard, one-quarter cup sour cream, salt, paprika, green pepper or pimiento rings.

Shred cabbage and mix with dressing. Add sour cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Chill several hours, if possible, and serve garnished with green pepper or pimiento rings. Yield: Six servings.

Note: Two tablespoons whole mustard seed may replace the prepared mustard.

Cabbage-Pineapple Slaw. Use recipe for old-fashioned cole slaw and just before serving fold in cut drained pineapple. Serve on bed of salad greens or in lettuce cups. Garnish with paprika or green pepper slivers.

HERE ARE a few simple suggestions: Don't wear shoes too tight. They'll bind your feet, impede circulation and cause discomfort.

Brain Game HERE is a quiz on the professions of famous men. Six correct answers is excellent.

1. Is John Napier famed as an explorer, mathematician or inventor?

2. Is Antoine Lavoisier noted as a chemist, explorer or author?

3. Is Frederick Bahting famed as a physician, writer or inventor?

4. Is Nicolaus Copernicus famous as an explorer, inventor or astronomer?

5. Is Michael Faraday remembered as a physicist, Army officer or sea captain?

6. Was Francis Galton an anthropologist, inventor or chemist?

7. Is Joseph Henry remembered as a dentist, physicist or astronomer?

8. Was Honore Daumier a French writer or caricaturist?

ANSWERS 1. Mathematician. 2. Chemist. 3. Physician. 4. Astronomer. 5. Physicist. 6. Anthropologist. 7. Physicist. 8. Caricaturist.

Veal Chop Suggestion Cook sliced mushrooms and wide strips of lean beef together in a little butter or margarine and top veal chops with the mixture.

Secrets of Charm Christmas Shopping

A SHOPPER'S WOE.

READY to drop dead about this time of year? Christmas shopping has that effect on too many people. Actually, this holiday season should be one of fun, warm thoughts, and real happiness. For what is more blessed than giving? Instead, it's too often dreaded and lived through in plain discomfort. Why? Because too many can't take it physically.

It need not be this way. You can eliminate those aching feet, nagging pains in your back, and nauseating headaches that plague you when you're only part way through your shopping list. And from the hurt some of these conditions generate, the face is pinched along with the feet. Can't you always tell by a woman's preoccupied expression or peculiar step that her feet hurt?

Don't wear shoes too tight. They'll bind your feet, impede circulation and cause discomfort.

Do You Measure Up? These easy-to-use tables show you how to calculate your ideal measurements from head to toe. They will make figure readjustments simple and accurate. On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

ETHEL MERMAN'S "Happy Hunting" has arrived on Broadway. The star's ability to rocket a song or romancade a quip represents a unique talent. However, there have been some dauntless performers who have sought to swipe a scene from Ethel. One such brave lad was Bob Hope when he co-starred with Miss Merman in "Red, Hot and Blue." Ethel and Bob shared a duet in the show. Once, during the rendition, he decided to sing the song lying down. So he stretched out on the stage while Ethel remained standing—and glaring. Following the performance—Miss Merman warned the producer: "If that comedian ever does that again, I'm going to plant my foot on his nose and leave more of a curve in it than nature gave it." From that time—Roberto Hope was a good boy... Show biz careers have scenic railway aspects—full of lofty ascents, steep dips, dangerous curves—a swift, exciting ride. ... Judy Holliday is starring in a movie hit and the smash Broadway musical, "Bells Are Ringing." Judy is riding the heights. Nevertheless, she knows the realities of Greasepaint, Inc. ... As she once commented: "You hear about it quickly enough when one of your films goes into the red. They bring the news to you on the set during the first day's shooting on your next picture. Someone says, 'Well, kid, your last one lost a sack of money. Let's hope this one is hot enough to be booked someplace except a few tunnels and bowling alleys.' ... Gary Cooper, currently starring in "Friendly Persuasion," is engaged in the popular maneuver of making the box-office safe for Moneywood. ... It all began when Our Hero was a struggling salesman during the early 1920s. He augmented his skimpy income by toiling as an extra in Westerns. During one bang-bang episode, he fell off his horse and attracted the director's attention. Consequently, he won the lead in a two-reel Western for $60. Next stop: Successville.

SUCCESS IN HOLLYWOOD may depend on having grandchildren. Cecil B. DeMille is usually accompanied by one of his granddits while viewing a flicker. He has observed: "The questions have always been the same: 'Is that a good man? Is that a bad man?' That's all they want to know. Then they're absorbed in the conflict. That tells you the main thing about story-telling—for any age." Although DeMille's "The Ten Commandments" cost over $10,000,000, it represents less of a risk than the $5000 he once gambled on a new idea—pictures that moved. DeMille, Jesse Lasky and Sam Goldwyn each contributed $5000. Out of that $15,000 investment came the zillion-dollar motion picture industry.

THE FORMATION of that shapeless mass known as success is full of fateful streaks—striking as swiftly and illogically as lightning. ... Edie Adams is starring in the click musical, "Li'l Abner." Several years ago Edie went to audition for a George Abbott show. The receptionist in Abbott's office informed her "she wasn't the type" and that (seemingly) was that. Several weeks later, Abbott's office called and requested her to sing for him. A man in Richard Rodgers' office had heard her sing and recommended her to Abbott. Consequently, Edie won an important role in "Wonderful Town," which was her springboard to Fame & Fortune & Co.

ROZ RUSSELL, an authority on the subject, offered a clear and accurate appraisal of B'way success. The star of "Auntie Mame" informed an interviewer: "You want a hit for a lot of reasons—pride and prestige and cold cash. And because you hate being told you're bad and because of all those backers and relatives who are forever storming backstage." Moral: Riches and Raves Are Better.

EUGENE O'NEILL's dramas have certain distinctions: Thunder and music—a compelling marriage of brutal realism and poetic intensity. And his plays are usually 1-0-n-g. "Mourning Becomes Electra" and "Strange Interlude" were marathon champs. So is "Long Day's Journey Into Night," a powerful autobiographical drama magnificently acted by Fredric March and Florence Eldridge. ... When O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness" was in the tryout-towns, the producer pleaded with the playwright to cut 15 minutes. Several days later, O'Neill triumphantly announced he had clipped 15 minutes—by eliminating one intermission. ... Fredric March and Florence Eldridge (Mrs. March) deserve their many clicks. They once made theatrical history by accepting failure with a smile. Some years ago, they were trapped in a quick flop. The day after the show folded, the Marches paid for an advert in the dailies. It reproduced the famed cartoon of the trapeze artist missing his partner in mid-air, plus the caption: "Oops, sorry."

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

DO YOU KNOW that a real test of what kind of person you are comes when you have a date that you don't like?

It's usually no problem to be gay and agreeable when dating goes smoothly with a boy or girl you like ... when you're dating the one you want to be with most of all.

But how do you act ... what do you say and do ... when a blind-date turns out to be gruesome or a first date is disappointing, not the fun or romance that you hoped? How you behave then reveals exactly what kind of person you are. So why not make it good?

BOYS—AND GIRLS, TOO—can be cruel when a date goes wrong ... cruel enough to leave a lasting scar of hurt feelings, loss of confidence or a painful inferiority complex in the girl or boy who was the other half of the date-duet. And what right have you to do that simply because he or she didn't happen to appeal to you?

A boy can be cruel by being thoughtless and rude ... showing his lack of interest in his date by flirting with other girls or by leaving her alone and embarrassed while he flirts to other girls or groups. This can shatter her self-confidence, give her a "nobody-likes-me" feeling or perhaps make her believe that she's a "square."

GIRLS can be cruel with little disapproving remarks such as, "Where in the world did you learn to dance like that?" or a flippant, "Why not dance on your feet for a change?" A boy whose feelings were hurt by a rude remark like this didn't dance again during high school years.

SO DON'T LET your disappointment show when a date goes wrong. Be a good sport and carry out the plans for the evening with good manners and good grace (that means with a smile!). Keep your disappointment to yourself for the sake of your own date-rating and to spare the feelings of others.

Remember, nobody makes a hit with all the people, all the time! So forget the incident and make a fresh start.

Devious Trail of Spies on Formosa

Double Agent Trapped Girl Student, Who in Turn Exposed High Nationalist as Traitor

Second of a series of installments from the book, "Spy Stories From Asia," published by Wilfred Funk, New York.

By Kurt Singer

ON Formosa alone 500 Communist spies have been arrested since the surrender of Japan. Of these 500 spies, many who were executed were not "fellow travelers," propagandists or sympathizers of Communism but plain, outright ordinary military and naval spies.

There were small-fry spies and spy bosses. There were intellectuals, women, students and even generals. Some of the spies switched sides three and four times, and it is hard to say for whom they really worked. Many were double spies telling triple lies.

A few were unimportant, but most were deadly dangerous. All had their function in spying and undermining to destroy the independence of the island of Formosa.

Take the case of two university students. Their names were Lin Yuan and his mistress, Kiang Min-tuan. The two lovebirds had come to Formosa as refugees from Shanghai where they had studied. They continued their majors in history at Taiwan University.

They apparently took life in exile seriously and showed their sincerity by being excellent students, earning the admiration and friendship of their fellow students and faculty. The university president, Fu Shi-nien, grew fond of those two people from Shanghai who needed warmth, understanding, and friendship.

The college president described the two lovers: "When they talked the last days in Shanghai, their eyes filled with tears and I saw how much they suffered. I liked them very much."

But beneath the cloak of learning Lin Yuan and Kiang were secret service agents working with the Communists. They had direct contact with the head of this Moscow-led spy service, a Comissar by name of Chin Ya.

The two lovers, Lin and Kiang, had a mission for the scientific section of the Red Spy services. Was there atomic research on Formosa? Had atom bombs been placed on Formosa by Americans? Which Formosan students were sent to America for training as pilots? Was Chiang Kai-shek preparing for germ or poison-gas warfare? Was there research on submarine instruments at the university?

ANSWERS to all these questions were to be delivered by the two lovebirds at an open-air concert in the park. The spy courier to pick up the answers was to sit in Row 10, Seat Number 3.

The messenger, quite to the surprise of the two lovers, was another university student who also studied history, a man they knew well and had never thought to be a Communist. His name was Hsiao Chang.

From then on the three worked like old friends, and Lin was grateful he had an assistant at the university. The two Shanghai refugees did not know that Hsiao was an extremely clever double-spy who worked for the Communists but also as an agent for Chiang Kai-shek.

Hsiao urged the Formosan police authorities to go slowly for a time. "Don't arrest the two now," he pleaded. "If we wait long enough we may also catch the men behind these two lovers."

However, after a raid against the Communist underground, Lin Yuan felt that Formosa was getting too hot for safety and decided to escape to the mainland via Hong Kong while there was still time.

Miss Kiang was to follow in a week or two, bringing with her the secret documents they had hidden. The Formosan secret service, informed of their exodus plans, could not wait

MISS KIANG refused to reveal where the papers were hidden, but a short search of her bed disclosed a copy of a top-secret order issued by the O.G.P.U. to its agents. This directive asked Lin and Kiang to secure information on:

1. United States military aid to Formosa.
2. Secret missions and all movements of Cheng Kai-min, head of Nationalist China's Secret Service.

3. All visits of Nationalists to the United States and MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo.

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

ON the first four hands of Saturday's quiz you opened with a spade, your partner raised to two spades and it was back to you.

1. ♠AK943 ♥Q75 ♦A62 ♣J4
Answer: Pass. Something over a minimum but not enough over to entertain any serious thoughts of game when all partner can offer is a single raise.

2. ♠AKJ53 ♥4 ♦K3 ♣KJ1073
Answer: Four spades. You surely want to play game in spades after partner can raise. Showing the clubs can only help the defense by either stopping a favorable lead or producing a damaging one. If your hand were quite a bit stronger and you wished to investigate slam possibilities, you'd then show the club suit.

3. ♠AQ652 ♥85 ♦KQ3 ♣KQJ
Answer: Three spades. Enough over a minimum to make game a distinct possibility but not enough to go it alone. Let your partner tell how good his raise was by passing or going to four spades, or to three no-trump if his hand calls for that bid.

4. ♠AKJ43 ♥KJ ♦A4 ♣AJ93
Answer: Three clubs. (Or three diamonds is also acceptable.) Slam is possible if partner has a good raise and the right cards. If over three clubs partner bids anything but three spades (four spades, four clubs, three hearts, for example) you should then make some further slam effort; the form it will take depends on his bid. If he only bids three spades, showing a minimum or near minimum raise, you will then just go to four spades. You tried anyway.

On the next four hands you opened with one heart, partner double raised to three hearts and it was back to you:

5. ♠5 ♥AKJ42 ♦KJ83 ♣AQ2
Answer: Four no-trump. This is our slight preference. We would not quarrel with four diamonds or four clubs. The main point is that you surely must insure reaching at least six. Partner just can't be access after his double raise is assessed in conjunction with your array of high cards. The four no-trump bid if followed up correctly may enable you to reach a safe grand slam if partner has the right material.

6. ♠J4 ♥KQ10542 ♦K4 ♣A103
Answer: Four clubs. The hand just barely might rate being at six. The four-club bid is your one slight effort to find out. The rest is up to partner. You will make minimum heart rebids no matter what partner does from now on and pass if he just bids four hearts.

7. ♠K85 ♥KQ107 ♦A63 ♣KJ52
Answer: Four hearts. Not that you'd particularly want to do so with this hand, but you are not permitted to pass to partner's double raise. Do not fear to go on in hearts just because you have a four-card suit. Partner very likely has four. But in any event you do not have a hand which cries for no-trump play. And the doubleton spade would make three no-trump a very dubious risk.

8. ♠K85 ♥A10876 ♦K4 ♣K73
Answer: Three no-trump. Paradoxical as it may seem here, with five hearts instead of four in our hand, we should prefer to take a fling at the nine-trick no-trump game. Partner can, if he chooses, go back to four hearts and most of the time he will. But any hand on which he correctly decides to pass to three no-trump, will most likely offer a safer play for game there.

Tomato-Topped Macaroni and Cheese

Ingredients: Four servings cooked macaroni mixed with cheese sauce, four small tomatoes (about one pound), salt, pepper, one-half teaspoon sugar, grated cheese, paprika.

Method: Turn macaroni and cheese sauce (hot or cold) into a small shallow baking dish—a deep heat-resistant glass pie plate is fine. Wash and dry tomatoes; cut out stem ends, then cut a thin slice from each end; cut each tomato in half. Arrange tomato halves over macaroni and cheese. Sprinkle tomatoes with salt and pepper to taste, sugar, grated cheese and dust lightly with paprika. Bake in moderate (375 degrees) oven until cheese sauce bubbles and tomatoes are hot through—15 to 20 minutes or longer. Serve at once. Makes four servings.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I AM 23, married, have two children and am expecting another. A year ago I had a nervous breakdown. My husband works day and night and I never have any companionship and he never takes me anywhere. I have tried to tell him that I need to get out but he thinks I should be happy staying at home with the children all the time. I have no friends and can't afford a baby sitter so that I might get out for an afternoon. I get so depressed staying by myself all the time. Do you know of any organization where I might give freely of my services and also take my children, where I could mix with people?

LONELY.

Of course, you need to get out occasionally, and a husband should realize that his wife will be a happier person if she has an opportunity to meet others, to cultivate good friendships, and enjoy at least an occasional day spent away from the four walls of her home. After all, the men get out to meet people. I'd like to hear them after a few days locked up at home with the children to care for. I have a few suggestions. The Y.W.C.A. offers a Homemaker's Holiday which includes recreational activities as well as fellowship with other young mothers while the children are cared for in a playroom. If the family budget won't cover the nominal fee, ask for other suggestions. The Y.W.C.A. counselor, GARFIELD 1-2748, will be happy to talk this over with you. For suggestions on volunteer service, get in touch with Miss Betty Bone, director of the Volunteer Service Bureau of the Social Planning Council, 505 North Seventh street, GARFIELD 1-2600. I do not know of any agency where you could give volunteer service and at the same time be able to care for young children, but Miss Bone will be glad to see if there is any assignment you could handle under these circumstances.

Dear Martha:

IN ANSWER TO the letter in which the writer said she had regrets for the way she had treated her mother-in-law, let me say that I, too, have regrets, but for a different reason. I did not like the girl my son had chosen for his wife and demanded he give her up, but he loved her and refused. I began the role of sympathetic mother, encouraging him to come to me with every little complaint. I was always finding fault with her and even encouraged him to mistreat her and the children, telling him he should come first. I was so pleased with myself that at last I could hurt her for taking him from me. Time has passed and now I know what a terrible thing I have done. She has sacrificed beyond belief, looking out for the health and happiness of her little family. The fulfillment of her own needs comes last or not at all. I'm sorry and ashamed to say my son has become a selfish egotist. His word is family law. I'm not proud of the part I've played in all of this. My purpose in writing this letter is that maybe other mothers of newly-married sons will take the advice of an older woman and be glad for their boy's happiness. Don't meddle and above all don't encourage self-pity for any hardships he may have to put up with, for the young wife has hardships too. A marriage based on love and respect for each other means a lasting and happy family life.

IN ANSWER TO Desperate: The Family and Children's Service will be glad to help you work out this problem. With the amount of money you have, more careful budgeting may provide that warm clothing and the good food the children need and a few toys for Christmas. Call the agency at once for an appointment, FOREST 7-2840. A caseworker there will give you sympathetic and understanding help in trying to work out the entire problem and see what would be best for the children as well as for yourself.

If you're lonely and want to meet new friends, write for Martha Carr's free club leaflets. There's one for young adults, one for those between the ages of 30 and 50 and one for senior citizens. Please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The 'Right Woman'

By Ruth Millett

YOU'VE decided that he is the right man for you. Now there's another little matter you ought to consider: Are you the right woman for him?

He says you are; sure. But how about it? How great an effort have you been making to please him?

Have you been pretending to like a lot of things you don't care a hoot about—just because you know he likes them?

Have you changed your personality completely because you sensed he liked a shy, quiet type of girl—and repressing your natural exuberance in order to please him?

Have you avoided your friends he doesn't like? Have you let him think you would be quite willing to give up your job and settle down to keeping house, when you really aren't quite sure?

Only you know to what extent you've changed yourself to appeal to the man you have decided is right for you.

Have you changed too much—more than you will be willing to stay changed once you are married?

If you have, look out. Marriage isn't going to be easy unless you can pretty much be yourself. Play acting will grow tiresome. Suppressing your own personality will become frustrating. Giving up your own interests will soon irk you.

So before you marry be sure that you, as you are and without too much striving to appear differently, are what your fiancé wants in a wife.

If you are really right for him, you can relax and be yourself. If he wants a girl you can only appear to be by acting a part—then let him go find her.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

PLEASE tell me what color dress I should choose to wear at the wedding of my son. It is to be a candle-light affair. I have brown hair, silvery at the temples, blue eyes, age 48, 144 pounds. I prefer navy blue, but what accessory color would go with it? If I choose navy blue, what should my husband wear?—Mrs. E. E. G.

You should wear formal clothes, as should your husband. An evening candlelight wedding demands formality. Midnight blue is an excellent choice. I suggest your dress be in lace, velvet or soft crepe. A dinner dress style, with a jacket, bolero or stole is good because it can have other uses.

You can accessorize a midnight blue dress with pale blue, but I like dark blue for your sandals.

High Empire Line International Designer Pattern

THE high Empire line continues to be the rage on both continents but this version by Pierre Cardin with its twisted bias folds adding lovely shape to the bodice as well as forming an effective and flattering neckline is one of the prettiest.

The folds continue around to the back of the shoulders where they are stitched into the sleeves which can be either very short or three quarter. The body of the dress is a simple molded sheath with a kick pleat in back.

The custom made pattern with its accurate perforations that make the bodice detail simple to handle also allows for the now longer length, if your eye and your taste are ready for it.

Choose lightweight wool, faille, shantung, peau de sole and even linen, cotton and prints for resort.

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length	From
10	34	24	35 in.	16 1/2 in.	Nape of neck to waist

The Dean Speaks Up

Odors Remembered With Delight

By Adele Starbird

THIS week they spread a truckload of manure over the rosebush, and it insults the nose. Odd to think that this stench will contribute to the sweet fragrance of roses next May.

When my younger brother was little more than a baby, he suddenly uttered a yell of outrage. Asked what was the matter, he protested, "My nose smells bad!"

Now without flinching into a discussion about the subject and the object, let us admit that there was some logic in his statement. Whether one's nose smells bad or good is a matter of intense concern.

I HAVE ALWAYS been aware how greatly my pleasure in living has been intensified by the sense of smell, and I remember gratefully moments of delight which might be listed under "these things have I loved." Such as:

The aroma of junipers when the sun shines hot.

The bitter pungency of chrysanthemums in the fall and of Jonquills in the spring.

Linden trees in bloom. At Pendle Hill, the Quaker retreat near Philadelphia, the terrace is bordered by a row of old lindens. To have tea there in late June when the air is filled with a heavenly fragrance is something one never forgets.

The country smell of old farmhouses.

Plum blossoms.

The vanilla scent of dark red oleanders.

The quaint spice of pinks.

Parma violets. Frangipani in the tropics and white jasmine.

Home-grown lilacs. Wet honey-suckle.

The delicate flesh of a clean baby.

The musty smell of ancient books. As Charles Lamb said, "The odour of their old moth-scattered coverings is fragrant as the first bloom of those celestial apples which grew amid the happy orchard." Pierre Bayle's Encyclopedia is positively intoxicating when you open it.

A husband's overcoat when he comes home from the office, a small compounded of tweed, weather and tobacco.

Sun-dried sweet clover. In Virginia, I am told, they pack the smoked hams in bags lined with dried clover.

"The sacred smell of the earth"—that strange fresh sweetness which just a few times during the year rises from the ground in the early morning. When that happens, it really lifts up the heart.

AND SPEAKING of the morning, there is nothing wrong with the aroma of hot, strong coffee floating up from the kitchen.

Nothing wrong either with gingerbread baking or chili sauce simmering on the stove.

The fragrance that haunted my room in Bandol near Toulon. Daudet says it comes from the wild herbs of the Provencal hills, but it seemed to me that it emanated from the woodwork and the furniture, pervasive and constant like the perfumed mahogany of Martinique.

The Christmas tree standing in its corner, and literally smelling green, evoking faintly all those other Christmas trees that wind in a gay and fragrant procession back through the years.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

A READER wrote us the other day to say he had found a real easy way to take care of cracks between floor boards. His solution was to cover the entire floor over with sheets of hardboard and then cover the hardboard with linoleum.

This may sound like a sort of extreme cure but it makes a good deal of sense in certain situations. Some floors have wide cracks between every board and to fill each of these cracks with a filler or wood strip could take an awful amount of time and filler. What's more, it's doubtful how attractive the finish job would look.

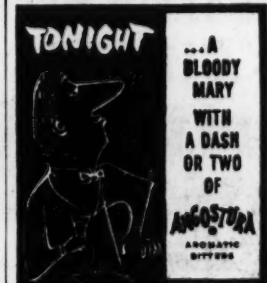

If there are just a few cracks between boards, cleaning them out and then packing them with a filler is not too bad a solution. It's best if you can tint the filler so that it matches the color of the wood flooring and it's also best if you do this job of filling just before the floor is refinished.

Many older homes have beautiful softwood floors and with these you often find very wide cracks. About the best solution here is to glue a strip of wood into the crack. The wood strip should be cut so that it slips easily into the crack and this means a power saw for best results.

In some of the newer homes the flooring was damp when it was put down and when it dries out it shrinks, causing countless cracks. Here about the best solution if you want a wood floor is to carefully take up the floor and re-saw it. This is a long dull job, but it will take care of the cracks once and for all. If the floor is nothing to brag about we'd recommend the suggestion of the reader—cover it with hardboard and over this apply linoleum or tile.

Answers to Questions On Etiquette

By Emily Post

MY husband and I have been invited several of our neighbors to an informal supper. We do not drink but all our friends enjoy a cocktail before dinner. Knowing this, would it be inopportune not to serve them cocktails? We do not object to drinking, it is just that we don't enjoy it.

If that is what your friends are accustomed to and they know that you do not object, it would be very inopportune not to serve cocktails.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am a young business woman living alone in a small apartment. When a man calls to take me out for the evening, is it proper to invite him up to the apartment for a short while, or must I always meet my male friends downstairs?

Answer: An old friend you certainly would ask up. If he is a man you know slightly and do not know the type of man he is, you would meet him downstairs.

DEAR MRS. POST: I have often seen notices sent out by a firm of the death of one of its members. My question is, would it be wrong for the family of a man who had hundreds of friends all over the country to send an announcement of his death to these many friends?

Answer: It is perfectly proper to send notices to anyone with whom he corresponded.

Apple Salad Francaise Ingredients: One large orange, one very large red delicious apple, or two medium-sized red apples, two tablespoons raisins (rinsed in very hot water and drained), salad greens, Curry Mayonnaise.

Method: Cut rind from orange so no white membrane remains; cut pulp sections away from dividing membranes; save orange juice. Cut very large apple into eighths or medium-sized apples into sixths; remove core but do not peel. Slice thin fan-

THE CAT family includes lions, tigers and leopards. All of these fierce beasts have been captured in their infant stage, and have been kept for a time as pets. When they come close to the adult stage, however, it has been found that they grow dangerous. They may even destroy the lives of their owners.

Wildcats also are dangerous, but much less so than the large cats I have mentioned. A wildcat will hide from a hunter who is passing through the woods, and never (in its right mind) will start a fight with a man.

There is a wide difference in the size of wildcats. One kind which lives in Paraguay weighs about three pounds after it becomes an adult.

Next to dogs, tame cats are the most popular domestic pets in many countries. Often they go under the name of "house cats," but we may speak of them simply as cats.

Q. Where do house cats come from?

A. It is believed that they are descended from certain kinds of wildcats, especially those of small size. They were domesticated in ancient Egypt, also in Asia and Europe.
